HOUSE PASSES INFLATION BILL FOR VETS' BONUS

Vote 318-90; Fight Looms in Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Amid scenes of tense and turbulent drama the house today passed the Patman bonus bill, which would set federal printing presses a-humming to turn out 2 billion 15 million dollars in greenbacks to pay adjusted service certificates of veterans. The final vote was 318 to 90.

For a time the fate of the inflationary measure hung in the balance as a strained house voted on a motion to substitute the Vinson bill, calling for payment of the bonus by the treasury. This was defeated by a vote of 207 to 204.

The Patmanites, after this narrow margin of victory, galloped roughshod over all opposition. They crushed a motion to substitute the Tydings-Cochran-Andrews compromise bill, providing for the issuance of bonds over a period of nine years to meet the bonus.

Stampede on Final Vote.

On the final vote congressmen, with a weather eye to the next election, stampeded to climb on the inflation band wagon. The conclusion of the roll call was greeted with wild cheering from dancing supporters of the measure.

On the roll call 248 Democrats, 60 Republicans, 7 Progressives, and 3 Farmer-Laborites voted for the Patman bill. The opposition mustered 54 Democratic and 36 Republican votes.

The majority was the largest rolled up by the Patman forces in the three times the measure has come before the house. Twice before it seeped through by a less substantial margin only to be defeated in the senate.

The administration hopes to defeat the measure in the senate a third time. President Roosevelt has indicated he will veto the measure should it reach his desk.

Senate Inflationists Busy.

Following the house action, senate inflationists moved for early consideration of the Patman bill. Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.] announced he will introduce it as an amendment to the Roosevelt 4 billion 880 million work relief program.

The house convened before a thronged gallery at the rap of Speaker Byrns' gavel. Members who gathered in full force buzzed over the stormy session of yesterday at which Patman forces virtually clinched victory.

The Patmanites fired the first gun when Representative Tom Blanton [Dem., Tex.] launched into a prolonged parliamentary argument to prevent a vote on substitution of the Vinson bill. He was booed soundly as members clamored for a vote.

Call Roll on Substitute.

When Speaker Byrns overruled Blanton, Representative Fred M. Vinson, lanky Kentucky Democrat, offered the motion. The house was as quiet as a church congregation when the clerk began droning the roll.

Opposing leaders followed the roll call with pencil tabulations. After the first eighty names had been read, the two factions were running neck and neck.

Each member watched to see if any overnight shifts were made. Those answering the call boomed out "ayes" and "noes." There was almost none of the usual cheering following such responses, as the factions were engaged in weighing their chances on each vote.

Vinson Plan Seems Winner.

At the end of the first reading of the roll call the vote was 170 for the Vinson measure against 169 for Patman. This threw the house into confusion.

At the end of this roll call the vote stood for the Vinson bill 205, and for the Patman bill 204. Byrns cast the deciding vote for Vinson at the end of the call. This announcement roared out by Speaker Byrns made the previous outburst faint by comparison.

'JIM' COLLINS LOSES LIFE IN HIS FINAL TEST

Writing Career Was to End Flying.

Farmingdale, N. Y., March 22.—[Special.]—Test Pilot Jimmy Collins, a peace time martyr to the cause of war, made his last power dive from a point 20,000 feet above Farmingdale, at 6:05 p. m. today. He said it would be his last, and it was. Ten thousand feet high in the gathering dusk, the motor ripped loose. Screaming like a stricken animal, his "mystery plane" spun down against the setting sun and plowed him a grave among the tombstones of Pine Lawn cemetery.

Naval observers, staking this country's fighting prowess in the air on the Grumman single place biplane fighter which he piloted, at once threw a cordon of state police around the burying ground to guard their cherished military secrets from the prying eyes of strangers. The 33 year old pilot, injured internally, was dead when he hit the ground, according to government spokesmen.

Writer of "Flying Stories."

"I'll let you know how I make out," he had written in his daily column of "Flying Stories," published in The Chicago Tribune and other newspapers. "I'll let you know as soon as I know. So watch." Since that time [a few days ago], elated by his success as a writer, he had confided in his friends that today's test would be his last. With his wife, Dolores, and their two small children brought from Oklahoma only a few days ago and settled in a cottage in Garden City, he had decided to risk his life no more.

Flanking the officers who watched Collins' dive to death was his sister from Oklahoma, Mrs. Elizabeth Joyhard, who had not until this week seen him for years. She was a proud spectator when he took off on his flight into tragedy. The body was taken tonight to the Fairchild mortuary at Garden City. After funeral services on Monday the body will be cremated and the ashes strewn from the air—perhaps over Roosevelt field; perhaps in Oklahoma.

Naval Chief's Version.

The official naval version of the evening's tragedy as given out by Lieutenant Commander Andrew Crinkley, chief of the naval observation staf, watching the accident, was this:

"The navy required each of the new ships to make ten power dives from 20,000 feet, leveling off at 10,000 feet before they would accept any of the eleven high powered planes being built by the Grumman plant.

"Collins had made nine dives earlier in the week. He went up this afternoon for the tenth. The ship carried a full military load of two machine guns and a dummy bomb. At 20,000 feet Collins turned his plane nose down and started a roaring dive. At 10,000 feet he began to level off.

"There was no indication that it ever was under control after it leveled off in the sudden 'pull out' to which it was subjected, and things started to let go immediately."

Motor Buried in the Ground.

The motor, a new twin-row radial air cooled type developing 650 horse power, was torn free of the plane and buried itself 3 feet in the ground more than 100 yards from the spot where the main part of the plane and its pilot fell.

The left wing also ripped loose as the ship spun crazily to earth and dropped nearly a quarter of a mile away. Collins was wearing a parachute, but apparently made no attempt to use it, thus strengthening the belief that he lost consciousness in the sudden "pull out" from his 10,000 foot dive and never recovered. Naval authorities said he never knew what happened.

Mechanics and other observers at the Farmingdale field raced to the scene of the crash in automobiles and pulled Collins' crushed body from the wreckage. There was no fire when the ship struck, but the wreckage was drenched with gasoline and in freeing the pilot's body a storage battery was overturned and short circuited, setting fire to the plane.

One or two of the would-be rescuers were singed, but Collins' body was clear of the plane before the fire started. The ship was destroyed with the

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 23.—[Saturday.]—"It is an insult to the Japanese to insinuate that we descended from monkeys," Deputy Hideo Mikami of the Seiyukai party charged in the lower house yesterday in submitting a motion to forbid the teaching of Darwin's theory of evolution in all schools.

The statement was made in connection with a dispute regarding the constitution which arose as a result of charges instituted against Dr. Tatsukichi Minobe, an upper house member, who claims the emperor is an institution and not a god as far as the law is concerned. Stirred by this contention, members of both houses have been engaged in a fierce debate in the last two weeks.

Many deputies support Mikami. They argue that inasmuch as the emperor is the son of heaven and all Japanese are members of his family, they also are direct descendants of heaven and not of monkeys. Mikami also objected to the teaching of the theory that the Japanese came from the south seas. Genji Matsuda, minister of education, in a reply said he did not know such theories were being taught, and he promised to investigate.

Girl Writer Kills Suitor; Expects Noose

New Orleans, La., March 22.—[Special.]—Remorse stricken over the tragic ending of her Bohemian romance, Miss Marian King, 23 year old "sob sister writer," told authorities tonight she expects the full punishment of the law for fatally stabbing her sweetheart, John Irving Pierce, 23, a free lance writer and son of a wealthy Jackson, Miss., widow.

"If I don't hang by the neck until I am dead it won't be my fault," she was quoted as telling Assistant District Attorney M. E. Culligan. Police booked her on a murder charge pending preparation of a formal state charge.

The stabbing occurred early today in the presence of fifty horrified guests in the "Nut club," French quarter café. It cut short a whirl of New Orleans night life which the writers planned to climax today with a trip to Florida. Pierce had a $300 a month income from the estate of his late father.

Asks to Be Excused; Dies.

Even in his final moments, after he had been stabbed in the heart, the young man carried out the nonchalant, careless life he and his companion had lived for four months in a squalid Royal street apartment they shared with Pierce's roommate. He politely asked to be excused and then fell dead.

"He died like a gentleman," Miss King asserted today after proving that she has a taste for the dramatic. At her own request she was twice taken to the morgue to view her dead sweetheart's body, each time collapsing beside the slab and announcing: "I didn't mean to do it, Johnnie."

She unhesitatingly related circumstances of the stabbing but steadfastly refused to discuss the nature of the quarrel that precipitated her act.

A "Personal Matter."

"That," she told police, "is an entirely personal matter."

She told of meeting Pierce six months ago and of how he had finally succeeded, by patient treatment, in breaking her of a narcotic habit to which she fell victim after adversity caused her to succumb to the lures and pitfalls of night life. She admitted she was penniless when she met Pierce in a night club.

"We had a couple of drinks in the Nut club about 4 o'clock this morning," she related, "when we started arguing. The argument went on for some time, something that I can't talk about.

"Earlier in the evening I had told him: 'You know that this is the wrong time to go too far.' I had a nervous breakdown when I kicked the junk habit three months ago. I said, 'For

MISS NOYLE INSURES HER EMPLOYER FOR A GREAT SURPRISE

J. K. Walker, a member of the insurance firm of Moore, Case, Lyman & Hubbard, 175 West Jackson boulevard, is going to be surprised when he hears about this.

Two Negroes walked into his office yesterday and asked for Mr. Walker. Miss Evelyn Noyle, 444 St. James place, the insurance executive's secretary, said he was out of town.

"Boss Walker told me," asserted one of the Negroes, "that when I got some good whisky to bring it to him. Well, I got some."

The two men went away, but returned a little later carrying three heavy whisky cases, which they deposited in the office. Then they demanded $243. Miss Noyle, unable to talk to Mr. Walker, consulted other employés of the firm and with their advice paid the whisky merchants.

A little later she looked into the cases and found that they were filled with some very good potatoes.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR RECOVERY OF PRESIDENT'S AID

Washington, D. C., March 22.—(AP)—All hope for the recovery of Louis McHenry Howe, first secretary to President Roosevelt, was abandoned tonight by attending physicians.

Howe's condition became more grave late today when complications set in. He suffered an attack of pleurisy in addition to the bronchial and cardiac attacks which sent him to his bed more than a week ago.

Find Milady's Underthings and Shotgun in Bundle

Marshall Van Maldegiam, a repairman for the Illinois Bell Telephone company, discovered a bundle last evening in the alley behind his home at 2455 Logan boulevard. An inventory showed it contained one pair of pink silk bloomers, one nightcap [feminine], one sawed off Winchester shotgun, and a doll's outfit with blanket, cap, shoes, and dresses. Van Maldegiam turned the bundle over to the Shakespeare avenue police.

Planes to Carry $2,000,000 Radium Ore from Mines

EDMONTON, Alta., March 22.—(AP)—Airplanes will fly $2,000,000 worth of radium ore from the mines to the railroads this year. W. L. Brintell, president of the Mackenzie Air service, said today the ore is to be moved this summer from the desolate wilderness of the Great Bear lake country to the refinery at Port Hope, Ont.

A robber who attempted, with the aid of four companions, to seize a $30,000 pay roll in the offices of Wilson & Co., packers, at 4100 South Ashland avenue, was shot and possibly fatally wounded late yesterday afternoon by two guards of the Brinks Express company. His companions, dismayed by the unexpectedly vigorous opposition, fled without getting any money.

The wounded man, who first gave the name of Joseph Materski, later said at the Bridewell hospital that he is Joseph Gorneak, 26 years old, 3047 Keeley street. He was struck several times in the abdomen and physicians said that his condition was critical.

Stay to Guard Money.

Edgar Buzzo and Peter J. Ries, the express company guards, had taken the $30,000 to the packing company plant and had carried it to an office on the third floor earlier in the afternoon. They had then remained on guard while Mrs. Ebba Gaelzer, the cashier, paid off most of the employés.

It was about 4 p. m. when the robbers, who are believed to have surveyed the interior previously, drove an automobile in front of the entrance. Leaving one man in the car, the others entered the building. Mrs. Gaelzer at the time was counting over the envelopes for which employés were still to call and the guards were standing near by in her office.

Smash Glass in Door.

To reach this office it was necessary to cross a larger room in which about 150 clerical workers, mostly women, were sitting. Gorneak, entering this larger room alone and crossing to the inner office, sawed off shotgun in hand, demanded entrance. Mrs. Gaelzer was slow in complying and the bandit broke the glass of the door with his weapon.

"Hands up!" he shouted.

Buzzo and Ries, ready for just such emergencies, opened fire at once and the robber fell to the floor before he could fire the shotgun. By the time the guards reached the hallway the three other men had fled down the steps to join the driver in the car.

Wilson Congratulates Guards.

Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board of the packing company, was in the building. He congratulated the guards and recalled that there had never been a successful holdup of the plant.

Gorneak was identified by finger prints taken a year ago when he was arrested as a robber. That case was dismissed. He refused to tell the names of his pals.

Three armed bandits obtained $200 later in the day when they invaded Avalon laundry, 1236 East 79th street, and held up six drivers and a woman cashier. Two girl clerks were held up in the Dutch Mill candy shop, 154 North Clark street, by a single bandit who escaped with $12.50 from the till.

BANDIT SLAYER RECOVERING

The condition of Policeman Alvin Eckhardt of River Grove, who was wounded in a gun battle Thursday night in which he shot and killed Anthony Ignatius, 33 years old, an ex-convict, was reported improved yesterday at the West Suburban hospital in Oak Park.

Samuel Sainatzky, 2737 North Sawyer avenue, identified the body of Ignatius as that of the man who robbed him of his automobile on March 8. Ignatius and a companion were speeding in the car Thursday night when Eckhardt gave chase in River Grove.

The pursuit led to Elmwood Park, where the fugitive car collided with another driven by Clarence Mueller, 7808 Sunset drive, Elmwood Park. Ignatius continued to drive for another block and crashed into a fence. His companion fled, but Ignatius exchanged shots with the policeman. The hoodlum was fatally wounded and Policeman Eckhardt shot in the shoulder. No trace was found of Ignatius' companion.

NELSON DEATH BATTLE STORY TOLD BY CHASE

Takes Stand in U. S. Murder Trial.

John Paul Chase, on trial for the murder of Inspector Samuel P. Cowley of the department of justice last Nov. 27, testified yesterday that he and "Baby Face" Nelson, the notorious outlaw, had fired on Cowley and other government men in self-defense.

Taking the stand in his own behalf in the court of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan, Chase, a former California bootlegger, told the jury a vivid story of the gun battle at Barrington that November afternoon which resulted in the deaths of Nelson and Cowley and Herman Hollis, another federal agent.

Says Agents Fired First.

The defendant insisted that the government men had fired first without disclosing their identities or making any attempts to arrest him and Nelson, whose real name was Lester Gillis, and the latter's wife, Mrs. Helen Gillis.

"For God's sake, we're going to get murdered," Chase said he told Nelson before opening fire on Cowley and Hollis. Chase asserted that he only fired in the air because he did not want to hit Nelson, who was between him and the agents.

On cross-examination Brien McMason, special assistant to the United States attorney general, sought to show that Nelson and Chase had been the aggressors in the gun battle. The defendant denied this.

He would not identify positively any of the weapons which the government has introduced in evidence and has shown by its witnesses to have been used by Chase and Nelson.

Cross-examination of Chase will be concluded this morning. He will be the only witness for the defense. The trial will then be adjourned to Monday, when final arguments will be made. The case is expected to go to the jury Monday night.

Government Concludes Case.

The government concluded its proof yesterday morning. Judge Sullivan then overruled a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal and Chase was called to the stand by his attorney, W. W. O'Brien.

The defendant is about five feet ten inches tall with smooth black hair, wrinkled forehead, deep set dark eyes. His features are thin and hard. He was dressed in a dark blue suit, with a handkerchief peeping from the breast pocket, and wore a blue striped tie. At the outset of his testimony he told the jurors in an apologetic tone that he was deaf in the right ear.

O'Brien asked him to describe the events of Nov. 27 beginning at 8 o'clock in the morning. By starting Chase's story at this point the defense apparently hoped to prevent the government from going into the witness' past history on cross-examination.

Chase referred to the Nelsons throughout his testimony as Mr. and Mrs. James Williams. It was not until cross-examination that he admitted he knew the real identities of the couple.

Begins Story of Fatal Day.

"At 8 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 27," Chase began his story under direct examination, "I was with Jimmy and his wife in a town southwest of Chicago. We got in the car [a Ford V-8 sedan, stolen the day before in Chicago] and drove around, had breakfast, and I went to a barber shop. Then we headed toward Lake Geneva, Wis., and when we got there began looking for Eddie. [Later O'Brien explained that Eddie, who was not identified further, was a friend of Nelson who operated a resort in the Lake Geneva region.]

"We drove to Lake Como [five miles northwest of Lake Geneva] still looking for Eddie. We couldn't find him. We went to a resort nearby, but it looked deserted. Finally we saw a man there, but he was not Eddie."

The "man" referred to was James J. Metcalf, government agent, who recognized the occupants of the car and informed Cowley at the Chicago office of the department of justice that the outlaws were headed toward the city.

"Let me interrupt you, Johnny," O'Brien said at this point, "to ask if that man was in uniform and whether he told you he was a government man, or made any attempt to arrest you, or produced machine guns?"

"No," Chase replied.

Describes the Death Battle.

"After going back to Geneva and not finding Eddie," the witness continued, "we started to Chicago. Near Barrington we saw a Ford coupe, containing two men, coming toward us. [These men were Federal Agents William C. Ryan and Thomas McDade. This encounter was on the Northwest highway at the outskirts of Barrington.] There were no license plates on their car. They turned and started to follow us, so we turned and went back to meet them. They turned again, and Jimmy, who is a fast driver, caught up with them. Jimmy told them: 'Pull over,' and he said to me: 'They may belong to the Dago syndicate in Chicago. Put the gun on them.'

"He told me to shoot. I said: 'What for? I have no reason to shoot any one.' Helen cried: 'For God's sake, don't shoot.' They speeded away and then started to shoot at us.

"Jimmy took his revolver and began firing with his left hand, the other hand on the wheel. Helen cried out that she was shot. [She was not actually shot, it was learned later.] Jimmy said: 'Do we have to be killed before we can shoot any one?' Then I put a gun to the windshield and fired through it."

Says Agents Didn't Identify Selves.

"Had they sounded any siren, flashed any badges, told you to halt, in fact done anything to indicate they were government agents and wanted to arrest you?" O'Brien inquired.

"No," Chase replied.

"We went on down the highway," he continued, "and suddenly I heard a ping and the sound of broken glass and saw our back window had been hit. There were two men following us in a Hudson. [These men were Hollis and Cowley.]

"'We're going to get murdered,' I cried to Jimmy. They had fired several times when we pulled in about 50 feet off the Northwest highway [near the intersection of Route 63]. The other car stopped on the highway. Jimmy told me to pass the big gun from behind to him. I did so and he started firing at the men in the Hudson.

"I got out on the right side of the car. I didn't notice Helen [Mrs. Gillis had jumped out and hidden in nearby weeds]. Jimmy told me his gun was jammed and he took another gun from my hand.

"He started toward the Hudson, firing. He was half way there when those men began firing at me. I took another gun from the back seat of the car and fired in the air so as not to hit Jimmy, who would have been in line."

Claims Self-Defense.

"Why did you fire?" O'Brien asked.

"Because they were firing at me," Chase replied. "They must have been. I was the only one there."

"The men fell in the road. Jimmy must have been shot, too, but gave no indication then. He got in the Hudson, backed it up to our Ford, and told me to transfer the guns to the Hudson. I put some of them in. Then Jimmy said: 'Drop everything and take me to the priest.' I asked him where Helen was and he said he didn't know. I got behind the wheel and then she ran up and jumped in. Jimmy moaned: 'I'm done for.' Helen was crying. She said she would help me find the priest.

"I drove to the priest's home. [The priest was the Rev. Philip W. Coghlan, who was staying at his sister's residence in Wilmette.] After he came out I asked if we could bring Jimmy in the house. The priest saw he was shot and wanted to know who had done it. I said I didn't know. The priest told me he would lead us to a doctor or hospital.

"Jimmy had nearly passed out in the priest's garage, but he revived enough to ask where we were going as we followed the priest's car. I told him we were going to a hospital. Jimmy said: 'Turn around. I know a place to go.' I drove to the house directed, parked the car in the rear and two men came out and took Jimmy in. [Chase was not asked to tell the address or the identity of the two men.]

Leaves and Abandons Car.

"One of the men said: 'You'll have to get that car out of here.' I told him I would if he would come with me because I didn't know my way about.

"With this man driving ahead, I drove the car to a road I think was 41A. Just as I crossed some railroad tracks the car ran out of gas. I got out and left it there. I asked a man who was passing how to get to Chicago. He directed me to a railroad station. I got on the train and went to Chicago."

The automobile was found the day after the shooting in Winnetka road just west of the Skokie electric line tracks on the west outskirts of Winnetka. Shortly afterward Nelson's clothing was discovered in a prairie beside Railroad avenue, one block south of Howard street in the village of Niles. Nelson's body, unclad and wrapped in a blanket, was found at Niles and Long avenues in Niles Center later that day.

It was theorized at the time that Nelson died in a hideout and his body was placed in the car and driven to the spot where it was found, and the car was then abandoned by Chase and Mrs. Gillis.

Q. [by McMahon]—Where were you the night before, Nov. 26? [The defense objected that this was not proper cross-examination as Chase had begun his direct testimony on Nov. 27. The objection was overruled.) A. [by Chase] —I was in and around Chicago with the Williamses.

Q.—Did you go to bed? Where did you stay? A.—I slept in a hotel.

Q.—Where were you all day Nov. 26? A.—In and around Chicago.

Lays Car Theft to Nelson.

Q. When did you first see it? A. When Jimmy had it.

At this point O'Brien objected to what he termed the prosecutor's "shouting and threatening attitude." Chase remained calm and the judge ordered the examination to proceed.

"I was in Chicago, sitting in a Ford truck," Chase said. "Jimmy was with me. He told me he was going to take a walk. He came back with the Ford sedan."

McMahon then asked Chase if he recalled talking to Earl Connelley, a government agent, when the defendant was brought back to Chicago after his capture in Mount Shasta, Cal., last Dec. 27. Chase replied that he did, but further questioning along this line was halted, at least temporarily, when O'Brien objected that it was not within the scope of cross-examination.

The government was apparently trying to show that Chase had made some sort of confession to the agent. McMahon will argue on the admissibility of this evidence this morning.

Continuing the questioning on Chase's activities on Nov. 26, McMahon asked whether there had been any weapons and ammunition in the Ford truck in which Chase waited for Nelson while the latter "was taking a walk" and bringing back the sedan. Chase replied that he did not know.

Q.—Did you transfer anything from the truck to the sedan? A.—I transferred some luggage.

Q.—Did you see any guns and ammunition being moved? A.—No.

Admits Long Friendship.

Q.—How long had you had the truck? A.—I had been in it with the Williamses on and off for a month. I bought it with Jimmy's money when we were in Las Vegas, Nev.

Q.—He was a great friend of yours. What name did you know him by? A.—Jimmy Williams.

Q.—Did you know him as Baby Face Nelson? A.—In a way.

Chase finally admitted he knew Williams positively as Nelson and had met him in a cigar store at Sausalito, Cal., in 1932.

"Now coming back to Nov. 27," McMahon continued, and at this point he made a mistake in names which was apparently slyly intentional, "first you drove into Little Bohemia, or I mean Hermanson's resort at Lake Como?"

"It was somewhere in Lake Como," Chase replied to the question.

Denies Seeing Guns in Truck.

Q.—Do you deny there were guns and bulletproof vests and automobile licenses in your Ford sedan? A.—I don't know anything about that.

Q.—How many times did you fire at the government men? A.—To the best of my recollection not over six times.

Q.—Were you using a long gun? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did any of your guns have silencers? A.—A silencer, what is that?

Q.—It's a device to silence the retort or blast of a gun. Did you have any? A.—I wouldn't know one if I saw it.

Q.—Did you point the gun at Agent Ryan's head because Nelson asked you to? A.—I don't know.

The final government witness was Joe Duncan, 2017 St. Paul avenue, a truck driver. Duncan testified that he was driving on the Northwest highway with his assistant, Lester Benner, when they saw Cowley and Hollis in the Hudson pursuing the bandits' sedan. Duncan said that he hid behind a gasoline station and saw most of the battle.

MAN WHO OWES RFC $25,000 HELD ON RUM CHARGE

Rochester, N. Y., March 22.—[Special.]—Charles L. Noble, head of the Clyde Products company of Clyde, N. Y., who only in January obtained a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $25,000 to enable him to continue the production of vinegar and sauerkraut, was held in $5,000 bail today on a warant charging him with the illegal disposal of alcohol.

Although Noble has turned over to the RFC as security for his loan $58,000 in warehouse receipts and presumably satisfied the lending agency as to his credit standing, the government taxing agency involved in the case—the internal revenue bureau—also charges that he failed to keep books and records as prescribed by the internal revenue commissioner.

Surrenders to U. S. Marshal.

Noble surrendered to United States Marshal Joseph Fritsch Jr. here today after a warant had been issued charging him with violating internal revenue laws. United States Commissioner C. H. Timmerman of Buffalo issued the warant on information by Inspector James F. Keenan of the New York City alcohol tax unit, who led a raid on the products company plant Feb. 6.

In the warant Noble is charged with having illegally diverted and disposed of 78,730 gallons of domestic alcohol for beverage purposes since Dec. 1, 1932.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyrus W. Phillips, Noble was held for a hearing April 11. He was released on bail furnished by Fred Noble, a brother, and Paul Collier, both of Clyde.

Libel proceedings against the plant also have been instituted by the internal revenue department. Noble is required to file an answer in these proceedings by next Monday.

Leases Vat and Cellar Space.

In the libel proceedings, however, the internal revenue department is seeking only to attach Noble's personal property. The schedule does not include a warehouse in which Noble leases vat and cellar space to the Douglas Guardian Warehouse corporation of New Orleans.

It is in the vats of this warehouse that Noble stores his finished product and where he now has 700,000 gallons of vinegar and 5,000 barrels of sauerkraut, and the warehouse receipts which secure his RFC loan were issued by the New Orleans corporation.

Noble's lawyer, Edward A. Murphy of Geneva, who accompanied him to Rochester, said that the Clyde manufacturer would fight the charge to a finish. The arrest will not interfere with Noble in continuing the operations of the company, he said. Noble will resume his duties immediately on his return.

The RFC loan was given him to enable him to continue the purchase of cabbage and other materials, it was said. The details of the negotiations for the loan and the identity of the governmental agents who approved it have been kept secret. All efforts to pry the information out of officials or files thus far have failed.

SHRINERS FACE MASONIC OUSTER OVER "LOTTERY"

Medinah Ticket Sale Brings Charges.

Officials of Medinah Temple who sanctioned the three charity dances to be held May 27 and a lottery scheme for promotion of ticket sales, face possible suspension or removal from other Masonic orders on charges preferred by Superior Judge Grover C. Niemeyer, grand master of Illinois Masons. Lodge trials of a dozen prominent Shriners are scheduled, it was learned yesterday.

Although Judge Niemeyer refused to discuss the reported internal Masonic strife and Norman J. Kissick, recorder for the temple, would admit the existence of only a "jurisdictional dispute," a dozen officers and past grand potentates of the Shrine are said to be facing trial in their blue lodges. Suspension or removal from the lodge, primary order of Masonry, would disbar these men from membership in other orders, including the shrine.

The Cause of Dissension.

The charges arise from a meeting two months ago at which certain officials and past potentates approved plans for the lottery scheme to bolster the sale of the dance tickets.

The lottery scheme, successfully used by a number of other Masonic and veterans' organizations in ticket sales, is promoted by a concern which offers two woolen blankets with each book of tickets it issues. The tickets are sold and the purchaser of the winning ticket in each book receives one of the blankets; the salesman who sold the book of tickets receives the other; and meanwhile the organization's tickets presumably are sold in greater numbers. An added incentive is the raffling of two autos at the dance [or whatever event for which the tickets are sold], each ticket holder having a chance in the drawing.

Claiming that Masonry is opposed to lotteries, Judge Niemeyer as grand master of Illinois Masons, has filed charges in their blue lodges against the shrine officials sponsoring the ticket sale.

Under Masonic procedure, the grand master will appoint a commission to hear the charges against the alleged offenders and determine the punishment of the members who are charged, an official revealed, with "conduct unbecoming a Mason."

Hope to Iron Out Troubles.

"If this goes too far every Shriner who has sold tickets for the dances may be removed from the blue lodges," one Masonic officer said. "Members of the temple feel that Judge Niemeyer has gone too far already in bringing these charges. We hope to iron things out before any members are suspended or more drastic action is taken."

Proceeds from the dance will be used to replenish the treasury of the temple, said to have been depleted in recent years by the organization's philanthropic work. In addition to aiding members, the Shrine has contributed to a number of charitable enterprises and has cared for widows and children of other Masonic organizations.

CLOUDS OF DUST ROLL OVER CITY FOR TWO HOURS

Partly Cloudy and Colder, Forecast Today.

Dust clouds, whipped up on the dry plains of Kansas and Oklahoma, again swept into Chicago yesterday morning and from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. deposited a rain of fine silt upon the city.

A shift of the wind, bringing in clear air from over the lake, drove the dust clouds out and ended the second phenomenon of the kind during this week in Chicago.

Partly Cloudy and Cooler Today.

The temperature yesterday rose to 67 at 3 p. m., far above normal. The forecast indicated that today would be partly cloudy and somewhat colder and Forecaster W. P. Day hazarded the opinion that the mercury would not crawl far above the 50 mark. Increasing cloudiness, with mild temperature, probably followed by showers, is expected tomorrow.

Expert observers blamed the dust storms on the years of subnormal rainfall in the states east of the Rocky mountains, from Canada to Mexico. Late last spring dust swept over the eastern half of the country and the same thing is happening again this spring, and earlier.

At Kansas City, Mo., "stifling" clouds were hanging over the plains for the eighth consecutive day. Severe damage to crops, as well as inconvenience to residents of the affected areas, was reported.

Dust a Mile High.

Aviators who landed in Chicago asserted that the dust extended to a level more than a mile high. Higher cruising levels were adopted to escape the menace. Generally speaking, however, the cloud was not so thick as the one that dropped down on the city Wednesday night.

Late in the afternoon, after the cloud had all but disappeared, Frank A. Chambers, head of the city smoke abatement service, ran a few tests of the amount of dust in the atmosphere. At the street level near the city hall there were 19,000 particles to a cubic foot of air. On the same date last year there were 3,300.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, said the dust presented no serious menace to health.

Oil Fields in Making.

Wichita, Kas., March 22.—(AP)—The duststorms which have been sweeping Kansas will one day—millions of years hence—make of this state a great oil producing field, said a theory advanced today before the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

The ostracod, one of the minutest of organisms, is believed to be one of the constituents of petroleum. It is this little fellow, geologists said, that causes the irritating sensation in the nostrils when a duststorm is raging. The ostracod comes from the mountain states along with volcanic ash and other red substances. Wherever it falls, the geologists explain, a potential oil well is in the making.

SIX DIE, 100 ILL IN DUST STORM; CROPS RUINED

Denver, Colo., March 22.—(AP)—The American Red Cross moved tonight to provide aid for southeastern Colorado, where suffocating dust storms, prevailing more than a week, were held at least partly responsible for six deaths, serious illness to more than 100 persons, and destruction of virtually all farm crops.

E. S. Transue, disaster relief worker of the Red Cross, telegraphed the organization's St. Louis headquarters requesting that workers and supplies be sent into the wind torn district immediately.

Kenneth Welch, ERA director of Baca county, moved ailing children from the sand-swept prairies into Springfield homes.

"Our most desperate need is hospitalization," Welch telephoned. "The nearest hospital is at Lamar, 50 miles away, and the six physicians in this county cannot reach many of the stricken over the drifted highways."

Live stock has suffocated and surviving animals were weakened by a long shortage of food and water.

Some localities reported dust drifted to depths of six feet.

PURSE GRABBER GETS AWAY WITH IT A SHORT TIME

Purse snatching on the north side was fairly unprofitable last night for Robert Potenga, 23 years old, of 1440 Melrose street.

Here was how it happened:

Answering a call that a purse snatcher was in operation Sergt. Charles Steffen and his squad picked up Potenga in the vicinity of Paulina and Melrose streets and took him to Town Hall station.

As he was brought inside Mrs. Rose Jacobson, 2231 Berwyn avenue, was talking to the desk sergeant. She turned, saw Potenga, and exclaimed:

"That's the man I was telling you about who took my purse."

Before the culprit had time to catch his breath in came Miss Pauline Piketcz, 1474 Grace street, who also had a good look at Mr. Potenga and cried out:

"That's him! I called up a few minutes ago to tell you somebody snatched my purse and that's the man."

POLICEMAN SHOOTS PURSE SNATCHER.

Warren McClelland, 22 years old, colored, of 900 Townsend street, was shot in the leg last night by Policeman Matt Brennan, who saw him fleeing after he had snatched the purse of Mrs. Marie Engelmeier, 191 Walton place.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 22.—[Special.]—Defending himself against a half million dollar alienation of affections suit filed by Nathan Borin, Chicago manufacturer, Ephriam M. Asher, film producer, today declared he "hardly knew" Mrs. Claire Burman Borin, 24.

Mrs. Borin, who won second place in a Chicago movie contest in 1932 and became the wife of Borin in 1933, went to Los Angeles for a vacation last December. Borin charges that Asher gave jewelry to his wife, placed an automobile at her disposal and accompanied her to parties and night clubs.

Borin, who went to California two weeks ago, said he became alarmed when the tone of his wife's letters changed a short time after her arrival here. He said today he had talked with his wife a few days ago and that she had admitted having been in Asher's company. Asher declared other persons always were present.

The head of the Borin Manufacturing company, 2641 Polk street, Chicago, also charges Asher sought to induce Mrs. Borin to divorce him and meet the producer in Europe. Borin said he asked Asher for an explanation and it was refused. His attorney also was unable to obtain satisfactory answers to questions and the suit was filed as a result.

When Borin's legal attack here is settled it is understood he and his wife will return to Chicago to push separate divorce actions.

STATE DEMANDS QUICK RETRIAL OF DON CHAMPAGNE

Quiz Launched After One Member Ties Up Jury.

The state's attorney's office yesterday moved for an early retrial of John Donald Walker, better known in Chicago night life as Don Champagne, whose first trial ended in a disagreement earlier in the day when one of the jurors refused to vote a verdict of guilty. A thorough investigation into this angle of the case also was started by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty.

Walker was charged with larceny by bailee of $21,000 worth of stock certificates from Mrs. Grace M. Forschner, of Palos Park, wealthy widow of Thomas J. Forschner, general contractor. Witnesses testified he sold stock given to him by the widow and intended as collateral for a loan. Walker, a former convict, started to get money from the widow within two months after his parole from the penitentiary, and was accused of having obtained $250,000 all told.

Eleven to One for Conviction.

The jury, according to information given to Assistant State's Attorney Alexander Napoli, stood 11 to 1 for conviction from the start. The vote did not change during 19 hours of deliberation. Judge John C. Lewe of the Criminal court discharged the jury after the members appeared likely to go further than a verbal quarrel.

Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane promptly asked Judge Lewe to send the case to Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan for reassignment after the jury disagreement. This was done, but Prosecutor Dougherty said he would ask for an immediate trial from the judge to be named next week.

Friend of Both Women.

Throughout the case Prosecutor Dougherty said, he was hampered in his prosecution. Mrs. Forschner, an elderly woman, was a none too willing witness, the prosecutor said. The same was true of Mrs. Louise Ranger, a sort of confidential secretary to the elderly widow. It was Mrs. Ranger who introduced Walker to Mrs. Forschner and helped him throughout in getting the funds from the widow.

Walker, who served a prison term for forgery, had been a friend of Mrs. Ranger for many years. She has been a close friend of Mrs. Forschner and the latter said "she would have trusted her life to Mrs. Ranger." No explanation was given in court by the women for their interest in the good looking and well dressed former convict.

2 WOMEN KILLED, 2 HURT AS AUTO SKIDS OFF ROAD

Two women were killed and two others were seriously injured last night when an automobile in which they were riding skidded off route 7, two miles south of Joliet, fell down an embankment and was overturned.

The dead were Mrs. Ida Stregel, 70 year old, 111 Copeland avenue, La Crosse, Wis., and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Myrtle Stregel, 25 years old, of the same address. The injured are Miss Marie Stregel, 30 years old, daughter of Mrs. Ida Stregel and a resident of La Crosse, and another daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Stregel, 1051 Grace street. They were taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet.

In the car with the four women were Joseph Stregel Jr., 2 years old, 1051 Grace street, and Henry Stregel, 2 years old, son of Mrs. Myrtle Stregel. They suffered only cuts and bruises. The car, driven by Miss Stregel, was bound for Chicago at the time of the accident.

John Treat Jr., 6 years old, 824 North Harding avenue, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a coal truck in the street near his home. He died in the Robert Burns hospital. The driver of the truck, Charles Cavanaugh, 39 years old, 604 North Springfield avenue, was held for the inquest.

The boy's death increased the Cook county automobile toll for the year to 202. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday there had been 164 automobile deaths within the city limits, and the injured totaled 3,126.

William Moretti, 5 years old, 1117 Townsend street, was critically injured yesterday afternoon when an automobile plunged over the sidewalk at Orleans street near Elm street and crushed him against an iron fence. Peter Schenk, 17 years old, 1516 Burling street, told police that he swerved his car to avoid a collision. He was held by police after he took the injured boy to Henrotin hospital.

BRITISH PERFORM ABOUT FACE; TRY TO PACIFY FRANCE

Drop Scheme to Include Germany in Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 22.—Great Britain performed a delicate maneuver today to calm France's anger and at the same time satisfy Germany's pride.

It decided not to invite Germany to attend the conference to be held at Lake Como, in north Italy, among British, French, and Italian representatives after Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon's "exploratory visit" in Berlin starting Sunday.

Instead, as a means of satisfying Reichsfuehrer Hitler, Britain will ask Germany to attend a general conference later if Simon is able to find a basis for discussion in his talks with Hitler.

French Assail British Move.

Angry criticism burst forth from France immediately after Simon, in the house of commons last night, held out an invitation to Germany to attend the Como talks. The French saw in the invitation a new indication that "the British can't be trusted." France wants Britain and Italy to agree with it upon a single course of action regarding Germany.

The French wanted the Anglo-French-Italian conference held before Simon's visit to Berlin, but when the British refused to form a solid front against Germany they agreed to hold the meeting after the Anglo-German parley.

Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, flew to Paris today to explain what Simon thinks he can accomplish at Berlin. Eden will see Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, tomorrow morning, and will have luncheon with Laval and Fulvio Suvich, Italian under secretary of foreign affairs, in an attempt to thrash out conflicting French and British views.

Little Optimism in Britain.

Eden will try to learn whether France intends to make concessions after its first anger against Germany calms down. Sunday he will fly to Amsterdam to join Simon on the way to Berlin.

Though the British are renowned for their optimism, there does not seem to be much optimism left about the possible results of Simon's powwow with the Nazi chieftains, according to a sound source of information.

The disclosure today that Germany is likely to ask for a navy one-third as strong as the British navy did not please the British. The only consolation seems to be that warships cannot be built under cover easily, so there is little danger that the British will wake up some morning and find the German fleet is on the way back to its power in the days of Kaiser Wilhelm.

Fear Balance of Power Upset.

The danger is that a fleet a third as big as the British will disturb the balance of power in European waters. Britain insists upon having a navy as big as the combined navies of any two European powers, so if the Germans go ahead, Britain will be obliged to build new costly ships.

Another sign that British optimism is not so bright as before is, so THE TRIBUNE is informed, the fact that the foreign ministers of the Scandinavian countries intend to gather together in London after Simon's return from Berlin.

It is likely that the British are grouping their satellites about them in the same way that France is striving for alliances.

Simon Hints at Isolation.

LONDON, March 22.—(AP)—A hint that Great Britain may adopt a policy of isolation was dropped tonight by Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon when he said in a speech near Leeds: "We cannot indulge in every sort of foreign adventure over all the world or pledge our activity to everybody's quarrel."

GERMANY IS REBUKED BY SECRETARY HULL FOR DEFYING TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today broke his silence in the political crisis in Europe to voice a mild rebuke against the German government for its decision to increase its army through reëstablishment of conscription in defiance of peace treaties.

Although Secretary Hull did not mention Germany by name he said the United States is concerned over growing tendencies in the world to ignore treaty obligations. This statement, in the opinion of state department officials, constituted a pronouncement of policy of this government.

Observers also saw in the declaration further expression of disapproval of Japan's recent abrogation of the naval limitation treaties.

Hull broke his silence in answer to questions from newspaper men at his daily press conference concerning the American attitude toward the European crisis. He said the position of the United States and its people always must be that of encouraging strict observance of treaties.

The state department, Hull said, realizes that the situation in Europe is filled with difficulty and that the public here really is concerned over the recent European developments.

Hull added that every one knows the United States always has believed that treaties constitute the foundation upon which any stable peace structure must rest.

He added that all who believe in pacific settlement of international problems of all kinds have felt increasing concern over the tendencies in various quarters of the world to fail to live up to the letter and spirit of the treaties.

'PROSPERITY' HITS FRANCE IN WAKE OF WAR SCARE

Stocks Boom; Blockade of Germany Urged.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 22.—While official spokesmen today maintained discretion regarding France's intentions in connection with the rearmament of Germany, a section of the press affiliated with French heavy industry began to pound the war drums with unprecedented violence.

The Temps, which is controled jointly by the two greatest industrial groups in France—the coal trust and the steel trust—but which none the less passes for the semi-official mouthpiece of the Quai d'Orsay, proposed a blockade on raw materials for Germany's war industries in case the forthcoming Anglo-German parley fails to produce any radical change in the German attitude.

Predicts Failure of Parley.

"It is doubtful that Sir John Simon [British foreign secretary] will bring back anything but insufficient engagements from Berlin," the Temps said. "Therefore, peaceful powers will have to take certain measures unless they want to see German audacity exceed all limits.

"It is too early to decide the nature of these measures before Simon's trip to Berlin, but there obviously are certain steps which must be envisaged. These are:

"FIRST—Overhauling of military forces which are to preserve order in Europe;

"SECOND—Organization of collective mutual assistance accords, complemented, if necessary, by certain bilateral guarantee pacts;

"THIRD—Economic measures destined to prevent Germany from continuing to stock up raw materials for its war industries.

"It is not with a light heart that one beholds the erection of an international system excluding Germany. But neither through weakness can Germany ever be brought back to the place among the great nations which it should rightfully fill."

The Journal des Debats, which is more directly an organ of the steel trust, carried an important front page article under the signature of Gen. Duval, in which he referred with approval to hints dropped by Gen. Louis Maurin, minister of war, before the chamber of deputities army commission yesterday that additional credits would shortly be asked for new materials.

"The government ought to consider its duty to take measures for industrial mobilization without delay," Duval wrote. "The serious advance which Germany has on us in this respect represents the gravest peril. Maurin is right, but perhaps we should go further and envisage in this respect a veritable commencement of mobilization."

A Synthetic Prosperity.

The stocks of all concerns supplying war materials have been mounting briskly all week, and today even raw materials of all sorts benefited. Peaceful persons all over the country—vine growers, sardine fishermen, cement manufacturers, lumber yards and many other interests—are sharing in the new prosperity, for the French army is a universal dumping ground on which deputies, through pressure on the government, try to unload all sorts of local produce.

The naval appropriation which will be voted Monday will give work to an estimated 35,000 workers, and no doubt, if the present tension continues for a long time without actually leading to war, government subsidies to industry in the shape of orders for the army will produce a synthetic prosperity such as the advent of Adolf Hitler brought Germany.

In the diplomatic field today the only event was the ratification by the chamber of the Rome accord by which France ceded some African territory to Italy. The vote was 555 to 9. All in opposition were communists.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, arrived for diplomatic conversations, and Fulvio Suvich, Italian foreign undersecretary, will reach Paris tomorrow morning.

DOUBT EXISTENCE OF MYSTERIOUS PAROLE SPONSOR

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan yesterday asked the state parole supervisor's office for any proof it may have of the existence of Henry B. Gray, supposed owner of a garage at 5513 Wabash avenue, who acted as the sponsor to the release on parole of Harold Taylor, colored convict. Chief Sullivan said two of his squads have spent two weeks trying to question Gray and have been unable to find him, although they have been told such a person actually exists.

Taylor was paroled last June after serving five years of a 1 to 20 year prison sentence for the larceny of an automobile. He reported to the parole office that he was employed at $40 a month by Gray who assumed responsibility for his release. Two weeks ago Taylor was caught after a daylight holdup in the loop.

"Gray has always 'left 15 minutes ago and will be right back' whenever we call at the garage," reported Sergt. James Fitzgerald.

"Maybe he's a gray ghost; bring him in so we can see," ordered Chief Sullivan.

DEAL WITH US AS AN EQUAL OR NOT AT ALL: GERMANY

Nazi Chief Tells Hitler's Security Terms.

BERLIN, March 22.—(AP)—Germany will play the European security game as an equal or it won't play at all.

That was the insistent assertion of Nazi officials, proud of their new "official" army and their new "official" air force, today as the time approached for the arrival of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to talk peace arrangements with Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

A government spokesman said Germany, provided its equality is fully and freely recognized, will give due consideration to Simon's expected proposal that it participate in conferences with Britain, Italy, and France, just as it will consider anything else Simon has to propose.

Rejects Status as "Inferior."

Having itself seized arms equality by breaking down the barriers imposed upon it in the Versailles treaty, however, Germany will not stand for any power trying to deal with it as an inferior, the spokesman said.

That will be the German policy on all international affairs hereafter, it was stated.

Simon is expected to arrive Sunday and to confer with Hitler and other German officials Monday and Tuesday. Many measures on which early legislation is necessary are being held in abeyance with the evident thought of giving the British guest his say first.

Among such deferred measures are those putting into formal effect the order for universal army conscription Hitler announced Saturday.

French Vets Cancel Visit.

The effects of Hitler's announcement included the shattering of plans for representatives of French war veterans to come to Berlin this week to visit German veterans. All details for the visit had been arranged, German veterans said, French denials notwithstanding.

Gen. Werner von Blomberg, defense minister, today said charity was helping finance Germany's "regenerated army." His carefully worded statement to the press said contributions "from all sections of Germany's people" are being received daily "for the upbuilding of the armed forces."

Expressing "heartiest thanks for this spirit of sacrifice," the defense minister gave instructions as to where and how contributions should be sent.

Military Strategist Off to Berlin.

LONDON, March 23 [Saturday].—(AP)—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Hongkong said today Gen. Hans von Seeckt, famous German military strategist who has been acting as adviser to the Chinese National government, has left for Berlin with his staf.

ITALY PROPOSES REARMAMENT FOR 3 LITTLE POWERS

ROME, March 22.—(AP)—Italy will champion the right of Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria to rearm at the three power conference subsequent to the visit of the British foreign secretary to Berlin for conversations with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, a high official said tonight.

The well informed newspaper La Stampa of Turin, which is often chosen to echo the government's viewpoint, said: "Italy is of the opinion that other nations placed in conditions of military inferiority by the peace treaties—Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria—must reach the equality of rights through negotiation. Every initiative taken in this direction will be seconded by us, as in the past, with the certainty that the time has come to remove such an absurd post-war straitjacket."

Denies Mobilization Plan.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 22.—(AP)—A government spokesman denied reports today that the little entente [Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia], and the Balkan entente [Turkey, Greece, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia] would mobilize if their former enemies, Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria, followed Germany in adopting military conscription. He called the reports "absolutely unfounded."

SEMINOLES DECLARE TREATY MEETING WITH ICKES IS BURLESQUE

Fort Myers, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—The Seminole Indian association today branded as a "fake" and a "burlesque" the sun dance at West Palm Beach, when Indians presented a "treaty" to Secretary of the Interior Ickes and John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs.

In a strongly worded letter to Commissioner Collier the association asked for an investigation of "exploitation" of Indians by "publicity seeking palefaces."

The action was taken by directors of the association after Indian medicine men had complained to W. Stanley Hanson, trusted white spokesman, that the "sun dance" was no part of the Seminole ceremony and that the Indians who participated in the parley with Ickes and Collier were not accredited to act for either of the two Seminole groups.

LEAGUE COUNCIL IS SUMMONED TO 'TRY' GERMANY

Acts on France's Plea Early in April.

GENEVA, March 22.—(AP)—A common front, though not an aggressive front, probably will line up against the rearmed reich when the league of nations council meets in extraordinary session to reconsider France's appeal against Germany, league circles said tonight.

Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish foreign minister and acting president of the council, today convoked the extraordinary session for the first week in April. The exact date will be announced later.

No Immediate Reprisals.

Although any idea of trying to impose penalties upon Germany for its asserted violation of the Versailles treaty's arms provisions has been relegated to the background at this delicate juncture, it was believed an expression of regret at Germany's unilateral denunciation of the treaty would come out of the council meeting.

Reiteration of the principle of the sanctity of treaties also was expected. Some delegates predicted an effort would be made to adopt resolutions solemnly warning Germany that its continued absence from international peace systems is dangerous to the peace of Europe.

Urge Security Accords.

The resolutions, these delegates said, also might set forth that Germany, having declared for peace, might well participate in security accords and return to the league of nations in order to disabuse the rest of Europe of the opinion that armed unions in defense against it are necessary.

AUSTRIA PUTS ON 'AIR RAID'; MANY TOWNS 'LEVELED'

WIENER-NEUSTADT, Austria, March 22.—(AP)—Many factories and at least twelve communities were theoretically "destroyed" today by aircraft in air defense maneuvers held in this industrial area, south of Vienna.

Despite the opportunity to show a military air force the Austrian government used only nine sport and commercial airplanes in the demonstration.

Busy streets and crowded market places emptied as if by magic when the warning sirens howled, and the towns appeared utterly deserted. The factories were empty while the workmen hid in nearby woods. The chiming of church bells announced the end of the raid.

Gandhi Begins Long Silence to Catch Up in His Work

WARDHA, India, March 22.—(AP)—So far behind with his work is Mahatma Gandhi that today he vowed himself to silence until April 19 to catch up. There is no political significance in the long period of silence, his secretary said, Gandhi merely being desirous of getting his personal correspondence up to date and revising some manuscripts.

DEAL TO RESCUE NRA MADE WITH LABOR LEADERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—As a senate committee today subpenaed the papers of a manufacturer critical of the NRA and denounced him for lobbying, President Roosevelt quietly put through a deal to insure the extension of the recovery administration.

The President, it was indicated, has made a trade with the American Federation of Labor whereby the A. F. of L. will support the NRA in exchange for administration support of the radical Wagner labor disputes bill outlawing company unions.

Richberg Favors Wagner Bill.

This development came to light as Donald R. Richberg, New Deal coördinator, took temporary command of the NRA. Upon assuming the chairmanship of the national industrial recovery board, Richberg announced that he favored the principles of the Wagner bill.

A few minutes after Richberg's significant announcement the President himself said the NRA was not the administration's "Little Orphan Annie," but a very lively young lady. He said he was confident a law extending the NRA two years would be passed. A. F. of L. officials, it was learned, will go before the senate finance committee next week to back the NRA.

Manufacturer's Papers Seized.

Senate finance committee attachés meanwhile were busy rounding up the papers of Francis M. Curlee, St. Louis clothing manufacturer and head of the Industrial Recovery Association of Clothing Manufacturers, who testified before the committee this morning.

Curlee was clamped under oath, his papers subpenaed and his practices denounced to the tune of shouting and fist pounding after Senator Alben W. Barkley [Dem., Ky.] had accused him of stirring up protests against Barkley's NRA stand with a view to "intimidating" Barkley. The committee, scenting a lobbyist, left the NRA to shift for itself and set out after Curlee with might and main.

Senator Barkley, his face red with anger and his powerful voice booming, read a telegram received from W. H. Brizendine, Mayfield, Ky., clothing manufacturer, accusing him of favoring the NRA and protesting.

Charges Intimidation Attempt.

"If you or any one else requested Brizendine to send that telegram, I state it was based on a false report and is a species of conduct I regard as contemptible. On its face it is an attempt to intimidate me in my efforts to bring out the truth at these hearings," Barkley stormed angrily.

Curlee admitted calling Brizendine long distance and discussing the NRA hearings with him. Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.] pounced on him and asked if he had suggested that Brizendine send the telegram. Curlee said he thought he had. La Follette asked if Curlee had done the same in other instances. Curlee said he could not recall.

When his memory failed him on other points, Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] moved that he be put under oath. Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] objected that to do so would not be fair, since other witnesses had not been sworn, and drew an immediate protest from La Follette. The committee at last agreed to swear all witnesses, and Curlee was put under oath.

Vote to Subpena Papers.

Senator La Follette immediately moved that the committee subpena Curlee's papers to determine whether he had been systematically stirring up NRA protests addressed to members of the committee.

Once more Senator Thomas Gore [Dem., Okla.] objected that witnesses in favor of the NRA had not been treated so, and added that he thought "free born American citizens should be allowed to come here and testify." His objection was overridden and the subpena issued.

Charles Schweppe Named on State Welfare Board

Gov. Horner announced yesterday the appointment of Charles H. Schweppe as a member of the state board of welfare commissioners to succeed Alfred C. Meyer of Highland Park, who resigned recently. Mr. Schweppe has been president of the board of St. Luke's hospital since 1926. The other members of the welfare board are Willoughby Walling and Miss Agnes Vandreil of Chicago, Rodney Brandon of Batavia, and Miss Mary Humphrey of Springfield.

TOO EARLY TO TELL ABOUT NEW TAXES, PRESIDENT ASSERTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today said it was too early in the session of congress to predict whether new taxes would be necessary, but he refused to say how passage of the bonus might effect the situation.

The President has frequently said that any appropriations over and above his budget, such as the bonus, must be financed by congress out of new taxes. The Patman bonus bill, however, provides that new paper currency be printed to pay the bonus, thus avoiding the tax issue.

As long as congress stays within his budget for the fiscal year which opens July 1, there will be no demand for new taxes, the President intimated, but appropriations in addition to those he has suggested will raise the taxation question, he said, adding that this was not a threat to congress.

He insisted that the fact that tax collections thus far this year are better than those a year ago had no bearing on the situation.

PRESIDENT ASKS STRICTER FOOD AND DRUG LAWS

Says Present Statute Is Evaded.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt again today appealed to congress to tighten the pure food and drug law as the senate commerce committee recommended its passage of the Copeland bill for this purpose.

The President declared that the country needs protection against the "chiselers" who misrepresent their products or who offer adulterated or harmful goods. He advocated "standards of identity and quality" and "careful enforcement."

The President advocated "honesty" as the best policy, and said the obvious means to this end would be the enforcement of standards of identity and quality and the exclusion of harmful or adulterated products.

Honor of Producers.

"The honor of the producers in a country ought to be the invariable ingredient of the products produced in it," the President said. "The various qualities of goods require a kind of discrimination which is not at the command of consumers. They are likely to confuse outward appearance with inward integrity.

"In such a situation as has grown up through our rising level of living and our multiplication of goods, consumers are prevented from choosing intelligently and producers are handicapped in any attempt to maintain higher standards. Only the scientific and disinterested activity of government can protect this honor of our producers and provide the possibility of discriminating choice to our consumers."

Would Extend Control.

"It is time to make practical improvements. A measure is needed which will extend the controls formerly applicable only to labels advertising also; which will extend protection to the trade in cosmetics; which will provide for a coöperative method of setting standards and for a system of inspection and enforcement to reassure consumers grown hesitant and doubtful, and which will provide for a necessary flexibility in administration as products and conditions change.

"The great majority of those engaged in the trade in food and drugs do not need regulation. They observe the spirit as well as the letter of existing law. Present legislation ought to be directed primarily toward a small minority of evaders and chiselers.

"At the same time even handed regulation will not only outlaw the bad practices of the few but will also protect the many from unscrupulous competition. It will, besides, provide a bulwark of consumer confidence throughout the business world.

"It is my hope that such legislation may be enacted at this session of the congress."

Committee Approves Bill.

Shortly before the President's message was read to congress, the senate finance committee had voted 9 to 6 to report out favorably the Copeland bill amending the pure food and drug law. The bill has been revised from the form in which it failed of passage last year.

Chief change is the limitation put on the arbitrary power of the secretary of agriculture to prescribe rules, regulation and standards. The secretary, under the revised bill, is required to submit any such regulations to two boards, one of which will pass on drug and cosmetic matters while the other handles food matters. The board is to be appointed by the President.

The bill, differing from the original Tugwell bill, does not make publishers or radio stations liable for false advertising.

INFLATION BILL FOR VETS' BONUS PASSED IN HOUSE

Vote Is 318 to 90; Fight Switches to Senate.

another. They cheered and shouted and danced.

Representative E. E. Cox [Dem., Ga.] struggled to get the attention of the chairman. Speaker Byrns again brought the gavel into play. At length, Cox, who had voted "present" on the rollcall, announced he would change his vote to favor Patman, tying the vote.

The house then passed beyond control.

Patman Gains Necessary Votes.

When order was restored Representative Hatton W. Sumners [Dem., Tex.] announced he would follow Cox's example, bringing victory to Patman. A moment later Representative William B. Oliver [Dem., Ala.] came down to the well of the house and shouted for recognition.

"I am opposed to both of these bills," he roared. "So I am going to change my vote from aye to no."

His action made the final count 207 to 204.

It was the Patmanites turn to demonstrate and they did. The walls rang with their cheers.

When the celebration died away Representative Allen Treadway [Rep., Mass.] secured the floor to offer a motion to substitute the compromise proposal for the Patman bill. Even the compromise forces conceded the motion was nothing more than a gesture.

This roll took half an hour to complete. Members wandered about to discuss the Patman victory and were unconcerned about the motion's outcome. Speaker Byrns became red faced from his gavel exertions in an effort to maintain order.

The motion was defeated by a vote of 313 to 82.

Rush for Bandwagon.

As the roll call was concluded a throng of members rushed to the house well. Most of these sought assurance they had been recorded as voting "aye.' Some changed votes to "aye" and a few wanted it known they had voted "no." An observer explained that congressmen view an "aye" vote as a strong bid for veteran votes at elections, and votes make congressmen.

An interested spectator in the gallery was Frank Belgrano, commander of the American Legion. The adoption of the Patman bill was a distinct blow to Legion leaders who had supported the Vinson bill. Belgrano was evasive in comment on the defeat. He expressed himself pleased at the bonus strength developed in the house, but would not say whether he will support the Patman bill in the senate.

Commander Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who were solidly behind Patman, was jubilant. He expressed the hope that Belgrano would join with him in securing passage of the Patman bill in the senate.

'VOLUNTARY' PAY CUTS TAKEN BACK BY COUNTY AIDS

Elected Officials Collect Amounts Deducted.

Most of the elected officials of the Cook county government who voluntarily agreed to accept 15 per cent pay cuts during the years 1932, 1933, and 1934, when they were giving all county employés similar reductions, are filing claims and being repaid the sums deducted from their monthly checks. This was learned yesterday at a meeting of the commissioners on the county finance committee.

Without debate the committee approved claims for $3,375 each made by Commissioner Mary McInerney and former Commissioners Marie Blumb and Amelia Sears. Last week Commissioner Dan Ryan's claim was approved and all four of these salary demands are expected to be paid today after the regular board meeting.

Some Already Paid.

Investigation disclosed that a number of salary claims of other county officials already have been paid in full. Among these were $3,375 each to Former Commissioners Homer Byrd, Grace Fleming, John Kasper, and Charles Weber; $4,050 each to George Self, former clerk of the Criminal courts, and Robert M. Sweitzer, former county clerk, now county treasurer. A salary claim of $725 made by Edward R. Litsinger, former member of the old board of review, also has been paid.

Among the members of the old county board which went out of office last January, only six have failed to claim their salary cuts. These men are William Busse and George Miller, Maurice Kavanagh, Peter Kelly, and John Traeger, all of whom are members of the new board, and Emmett Whealan, now a member of the board of tax appeals.

Some Take No Cuts.

Yesterday it was learned that neither Frank Zyntak, clerk of the Superior court, nor Thomas Wallace, clerk of the Circuit court, took any pay cuts, their salaries having been taken directly from fees collected in their offices. Sheriff William D. Meyering also obtained his full pay from office fees, and former State's Attorney John Swanson got a judgment for $2,217 against the county immediately after he left office.

Funds for all the claims paid thus far were taken from an appropriation of $111,449 set up in the 1935 budget for that purpose. The money was included in the budget after several of the commissioners instituted mandamus suits against the county and obtained judgments.

None of the county employés can obtain judgments for the salary reductions made for the past three years.

'JUST TAXPAYERS' GROWS IN A DAY TO ORGANIZATION

"John Taxpayer"—the little fellow of the cartoons who almost daily is seen staggering across editorial pages carrying his burden labeled "national debt"—yesterday became Just Taxpayers, Inc., with a membership button, articles of incorporation, and an articulate organization.

In an effort to separate those who receive their incomes from the government from those who pay taxes to the government, Just Taxpayers, Inc., was organized by Warren Piper, founder of the Interfraternity club.

Yesterday, 24 hours after Mr. Piper got the idea for the organization and told a group of business men about it, the Cruver Manufacturing company had received applications for 6,000 buttons. Meanwhile articles of incorporation were drawn, with Piper, Paul Cook, and Ralph Warren as officers.

The insignia of the organization is a button bearing the words: "Just a taxpayer, neither on dole nor public pay roll."

AT WHITE HOUSE

SENATOR BORAH.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho's Republican, was a luncheon guest at the White House today. Although Borah was noncommunicative about the meeting President Roosevelt described it as "a most satisfactory kind of a talk."

The President said Borah has "a most interesting mind." He said they exchanged views about a great many things, including legislation and foreign affairs.

The President said the NRA was not discussed specifically, but the general problem of excess production in certain industries was. He added that the discussion on legislation was confined to principles rather than to details.

Asked if he had discussed the German situation "specifically" the President said with a smile, "no," they had discussed the European situation "pacifically."

BABY FARM CHIEF AND WIFE FREED OF CHARGES HERE

The Rev. Edward L. Brooks, 65 years old, yesterday was found not guilty of operating a maternity hospital without a license by Judge Michael Feinberg in the Criminal court. A similar charge against Brooks' wife Grace was nol prossed on motion of the state at the conclusion of the case. The Brookses operated the Beulah Home and Maternity hospital at 2144 North Clark street until it was closed last May. They also maintained a home for babies in Beulah, Mich.

The state produced only two witnesses. At the conclusion of their testimony Judge Feinberg granted the motion of Defense Attorney George L. Quilici for a verdict of not guilty.

First to testify was Miss Angeline Wojciechowski, 24 years old, 2019 West North avenue. She testified that she had entered the home on Jan. 3, 1934. Then, she said, she went to the North Chicago hospital, where her baby was born. She was followed to the stand by Mrs. Elizabeth Seiger, inspector for the state department of public welfare, who testified that she had visited the home in March, 1934, and protested that the place was a fire hazard.

PURSE SNATCHERS GET $115.

While Mrs. Sidney Winsberg was en route yesterday to a bank with $115 from her husband's drygoods store at 3437 Southport avenue, two thieves snatched her purse at Roscoe street and Bosworth avenue.

THREE LEADERS IN CITY CLERGY INDORSE MAYOR

Express Wish That He'll Be Re-elected.

Mayor Kelly's candidacy for reelection on April 2 received indorsements yesterday from three leading clergymen, Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, and Dr. John Thompson, minister of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

In letters to the mayor all three of the clergymen expressed their appreciation for the manner in which he has administered the affairs of the city. Bishop Stewart wrote:

"It occurred to me the other day that I should have written you earlier to express to you not only my hope, but my confidence that you will be re-elected mayor.

Praises Financial Improvement.

"During your incumbency it has been my good fortune to meet you on a good many occasions, and to see you in a great many different rôles, and I have always felt that you represented the city with dignity and grace; but far beyond that I have observed with satisfaction the improvement in the financial situation under your administration; and beyond that I have had not a few evidences of your eager desire to strengthen and support the constructive moral and religious forces which are seeking to insure a better Chicago."

Dr. Stone wrote:

"These days must be filled with many problems for one in such large responsibilities as those which face you. I am only writing this letter in frank good will to state that you have my confidence and appreciation in the fine work which I believe you are aiming to do for our city.

"I have always been a Republican, but have never allowed partisan affiliations to in any way interfere with local good government.

"I am writing this letter frankly to you, and you have my thought and prayer in the earnest work for our city which I believe you are trying to do, and for the work you have already accomplished."

Wishes Mayor "Easy Success."

In wishing Mayor Kelly "every success" in his campaign Dr. Thompson enclosed remarks that he had made at a safety campaign meeting held in the Civic Opera house. His comment then was:

"Mayor Kelly's administration is worthy of the highest commendation and we are fortunate in having him as mayor during these days of stress and strain. He has made an unsurpassed record."

M'KINLEY RULES MEDICAL SERVICE MUST BE CLOSED

Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Superior court ruled yesterday that the United Medical Service, Inc., 23 East Jackson boulevard, must cease operation. The chief justice held with Attorney General Otto Kerner of Illinois that the organization is in violation of the state law prohibiting the practice of medicine by a corporation.

Attorneys for the medical service announced they would appeal to the state Supreme court. Officials of the service announced that it would continue in operation pending outcome of the appeal.

The defense attorneys held that the corporation was not practicing medicine, but that licensed physicians were treating patients. They argued that the court should not differentiate between the ordinary licensed physician and a licensed physician employed by such a concern.

Attorney General Kerner, asked what action would be taken concerning a number of clinics practicing medicine as corporations, said that a survey of such institutions would be made. He said that there would be no further action until the appeal is decided in the Supreme court.

EX-TREASURER OF BROOKFIELD SENT TO PRISON

James C. Pentis, 49 years old, former treasurer of the village of Brookfield, was sentenced yesterday to one to fifteen years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg of the Criminal court for embezzling $3,900 of the village funds. Pentis was allowed 30 days in which to perfect an appeal.

Judge Feinberg overruled a motion for a new trial and imposed sentence immediately after a jury had returned a verdict of guilty.

The state charged that Pentis bought up special assessment bonds of the village from holders at a discount and redeemed them with village funds at par. Pentis, who lives at 3544 Prairie avenue, Brookfield, was treasurer of the village from 1923 to 1934.

JAUNTY SLAYER SWEARS HE DID JOB FOR WIDOW

Jas. Senese, 20, Accuses Mrs. Ericksen.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The twelve strong men pledged by the state as jurors "not to be influenced by a woman's tears" had their first real test yesterday during the murder trial of Mrs. Anna Ericksen, 39 year old mother of six, before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court.

Mrs. Ericksen, who is packing them in so that all standing room in the courtroom is taken, wept fluently as James Senese, jaunty young murderer of her husband, George, 36 year old tavernkeeper, told his story on the witness stand. Senese blandly related that there was nothing but friendliness in his heart for George as he fired nine bullets at Ericksen when he approached the back door of his home at 6221 South Keating avenue at 1 a. m. last Dec. 22.

Extra Bullets "Do Job Right."

"You knew George Ericksen, didn't you?" inquired the tall red haired prosecutor, Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle, at the end of Senese's casual recital of what he alluded to as "this here shooting."

"Yes, I knew him as long as I knew Anna—about two years," said Senese, leaning back comfortably in the witness chair.

MR. BOYLE—Did you hold any grudge against him of any kind?

SENESE—I did not.

Q.—You were friendly with him? A.—Yes, I was.

Q.—Why did you fire the extra bullets into him? (Senese had testified he fired eight bullets after the first felled Ericksen, emptying his gun.) A.—Well, Mrs. Ericksen had told me, "Do the job right or they would hang me."

Says Widow Gave Him Gun.

At another point, when Senese first revealed Mrs. Ericksen had thus urged him on to "do a good job," Senese added, squaring his shoulders in their natty tan spring suiting:

"I told her I would do my best."

He identified an automatic as one she had given him last Nov. 20 in the airport grill operated by her and her husband at 6001 South Cicero avenue, with the words: "Here's the gun for you to kill George with."

It was loaded, he said. The gun previously was identified, with holster, by Gordon Dake, former filling station proprietor, of 1141 Pratt boulevard, as one he had lent Anna 18 months ago when she told him she needed it for protection in running a restaurant she and her husband then operated at 6212 South Cicero avenue.

Senese followed Dake on the witness stand. He gave his address as 6204 South Keating avenue, and told the jury brightly that he had become 20 years old the previous day.

He said he was the same Senese who, with Elmer Krueger, a later witness, was indicted jointly with Mrs. Ericksen for the murder, and that he and Elmer since have been confined in the fifth floor of the administration building adjoining the county jail.

Assistant State's Attorney Boyle, who, with Assistant State's Attorneys Emmett Moynihan and Frank Donoghue, is handling the prosecution, then led Senese through a recital of the various parleys he had had with Anna over the proposed killing of her husband. Senese was fortified on these occasions with free drinks of whisky and beer, he said.

Tells of $500 Offer.

She offered him $500 which she was to obtain from insurance policies on his life, Senese said, and pointed out to him that he could have a good time on the money. That was Oct. 25. He saw her again in the taverns on several occasions, when she told him there was nothing to be afraid of, and on Dec. 20 showed him insurance cards.

"She said there were only ten days left in which to do the shooting or they wouldn't pay, and we'd get no money at all," Senese said cheerfully, running a hand speculatively over his wavy black hair. "She said to do the killing on a Friday, as George worked at the tavern until 1 a. m. That was Thursday night.

"She said I should be waiting at the back porch at 6221 South Keating avenue, and she'd have him go around to the back, on account of it was dark back there and no one would see."

Recounts Moving of Home.

Meanwhile, Senese testified, he had helped her move from a former home at 6319 Knox avenue to the Keating avenue address.

"She said it was no good to do the killing at the Knox avenue place, because the squad cars passed on 63d street, and she said she'd found an empty building at 6221 South Keating," Senese said.

Krueger, who had been promised $250 by Senese to help him kill Ericksen, met him the afternoon before the murder, Senese said. They went to the Empress theater, then to a grill at 63d street and Cicero avenue, then to a nearby poolroom, and wound up at Ericksen's tavern.

Tells of Wait for Victim.

"We met some friends in the tavern and had some drinks," said Senese.

"George Ericksen served us and we talked to him. Then we left and I said to Elmer, 'This is the night.' He said, 'All right, let's get it over with and get the money.'"

Senese left the witness box, swaggered to a chart, a state exhibit, and pointed out where he and Elmer waited near the Ericksen back porch after getting the gun from his home.

"We stood there half an hour waiting for Ericksen," he said.

"We heard footsteps on the rear porch at 1 a. m. Later we heard Ericksen in the gangway leading to the back door."

PROSECUTOR BOYLE—What did you do?

SENESE—I fired one shot. He fell, and I fired eight more. I emptied the gun.

Q.—Into him? A.—No, not into him. I missed some.

Q.—Where was Elmer? A.—He was gone, after the first shot.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—I ran down the alley home, and met Elmer, and let him into the basement. I hid the gun and went to bed.

Mrs. Ericksen was biting her handkerchief and her finger nails and dabbing her eyes. Later her eyes reddened, but her jaw set defiantly when Senese alluded to George Collard, her 30 year old sweetheart who committed suicide on March 8 in Milwaukee.

"I talked to her about him last November," he testified. "She said he was a very nice friend and after this here killing she was going to marry him. I saw him a few times in the tavern."

Krueger, who corroborated the story of the murder, said that for several months in the summer of 1934 when he was employed as bartender at the tavern Collard came in regularly for his meals. Several times a week Anna would empty the cash register of cash and meet Collard at the corner, returning hours later, he said. On one occasion she told him, he said: "It was the mistake of my life when I married George Ericksen. Collard is such a nice fellow."

Both Senese and Krueger admitted under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Emmett Byrne, that they had entered not guilty pleas to the murder indictment last Jan. 2. Senese, apparently anxious to be agreeable, said when asked if it were a fact that he was not guilty, replied: "I am. That's right. I am not guilty."

Would Lie to Help Self.

Asked if he would lie to help himself, Senese answered "Yes." Later Attorney Byrne asked: "You don't care what happens to anybody else in this case?" The witness replied:

"I wouldn't say I feel that way about it." [Here Mrs. Ericksen wept.]

Two other state witnesses, Nathan Caliendo and his wife, Teresa, of 6003 South Cicero avenue, also identified the gun as one they had once borrowed from Anna and returned Sept. 27 last. Defense Attorney Harold Levy, in cross-examination, brought out details of a birthday party given the previous night in the jail administration building for Senese, attended by them.

Court was adjourned until Monday. When one juror arose, protesting against being locked up for two days, Judge Sullivan assured him that the bailif had made arrangements for the jury's being taken on an automobile trip "in which you will see the beauties of nature in our country."

Deny Charges

Miss June Wieland, 32 years old, and Miss Ruth Howe, 32 years old, both of 1503 East 64th street, were arrested early yesterday on the complaint of Frank Zack, owner of the Tip Top tavern at 18 West Jackson boulevard, who alleged they had hurled milk bottles through his plate glass windows. When the police arrived the women were standing on the sidewalk. They denied they had broken the windows and asserted they were put out of the tavern when they complained of money being taken from their purses.

CHAS. C. DAWES FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

Charles Cutler Dawes, 1430 Lake Shore drive, nephew of Charles G. Dawes and son of Rufus Dawes, former president of A Century of Progress, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court, listing liabilities of $532,874. No assets of value were scheduled with the exception of $300 in household furnishings, which are exempt, and some securities of "doubtful value."

The petition was filed by the law firm of Keehn, Poust, Keeley, and McGuire. The schedules name some fifty creditors with claims ranging from $50 to $30,000, the latter amount being owed on a note to Rufus Dawes. Among the creditors are a number of stores.

'GOOD-BY' FLIGHT KILLS COLLINS, FAMOUS PILOT

Flyer-Writer Dies in Last Test Dive.

All information about the machine was refused by Commander Crinkley and officials of the Grumman company, who said its performance and several devices aboard were "navy secrets." In general it was similar to the standard shipboard fighter with retractable landing gear that this company has been building for the navy for several years.

Once before, flying another naval plane over Anacostia station, near Washington, Collins went into a dive which just grazed tragedy. As he told of it in his newspaper articles, a wing broke loose as he dove down from the clouds, his head bumped against the stick, and he was knocked unconscious. For seconds he lay slumped in his seat as the plane dove earthward, but he recovered his senses in time to bring down the ship safely.

Found it Too Risky.

Such things as these led him to tell his friends that he was through with test flying.

"I get woozy after I'm through with them, and my mind seems to go blank," he said. "It's too risky a business to keep up."

The ship he was flying embodied the latest improvements of the American war strategists. It was powered with a 14 cylinder, 650 horsepower Pratt and Whitney Wasp twin motor. Like the one Grumman plane now in naval service aboard the airplane carrier Saratoga, it was so powerful that once it left the ground the pilot could turn it nose up and climb straight into the air. Gleaming stainless steel made up the body construction, but the details were carefully suppressed by the navy, which has watched every step in the building of the ship.

Up Once Earlier in Day.

Collins had already made one test flight earlier in the day. The instruments on his board had failed to register all that the naval observers desired, so he went up once again.

For this dive, he was to get $1,500. He told his chums at Roosevelt field that it was easy money, adding:

"I might just as well take it, and then settle down to my job of writing."

It was three weeks ago that Collins' series of "Flying stories" began in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and other papers.

Veteran pilots at Roosevelt field had their own theory to account for the crash. They believed that the ship was equipped with an adjustment which made it possible to change the pitch of the propeller blades from the cockpit. It was their theory that in the dive this pitch apparatus was thrown out of balance. In such a case, the motor would be given such a terrific wrench that it would tear loose.

ONCE MORE AND QUIT!

One of the last articles written by Test Pilot Collins and published by The Tribune was entitled "Don't Do That." It was as follows:

I interrupted my writing efforts a few moments ago to drop over to Roosevelt field restaurant for a cup of coffee. I saw Duke Krantz, pilot for the Daily News photographic ship, having a cup of coffee himself.

"Well," he said, "you won't be doing any more of this diving business, will you, now that you've got a job writing?" Since October I had tested two military airplanes which I had had to dive 10,000 feet straight down, just to see if the wings would stay on.

"Sure I will," I said. "I've got a diving job coming up next month."

"You ought to quit now," he said.

"But I promised them I would do it. I promised them before this writing job came up. I'll do this once and quit."

"You ought to let well enough alone," he said. "What if a part of the engine came back and hit you in the head?"

"I've got a crash helmet," I countered.

"What if a wing folded back and socked your head?" he went on. He's persistent like all Swedes.

"I've got a crash helmet," I countered again.

"I remember Speed Duncan over at Newark in 1925," he went on, paying no attention whatever to me and my crash helmet. "Speed insisted on doing outside loops with that exhibition ship he had. We told him it wasn't built for it, but he wouldn't listen. He did two of them, and went up for the third. He came straight down for about three thousand feet in a power dive. When he pushed under to do the loop his wings just exploded. He must have got hit with something, because he had a chute on, but never got out of the ship."

"Well," I started, "this is different. This is a military ship I'll be diving. It's built to do it. The engineers know a lot more now than they did then, and——" My conviction in my own argument was tapering off rapidly. I was thinking: Speed did it twice and then—— I've dived twice, and next month——?

I turned on Duke savagely. "Hey! Duke, will you shut up?" I pleaded. "You're not helping me a bit."

PROWLER SUSPECT SEIZED.

Davenport, Ia., March 22.—[Special.]—With the arrest of Frank Cole, 62, ex-convict, by Rock Island police last night, local authorities believe the numerous prowling jobs in Davenport during the last month have been solved.

Alert Bus Driver Foils an Attempt at Suicide

Despondent over unemployment, Charles De Baets, 51 years old, 237 South Morgan street, flung himself in front of a crowded bus at Washington boulevard and Union street yesterday. The driver stopped the bus less than a foot from the man's head and turned De Baets over to the Des Plaines street police. There De Baets admitted he had made several attempts to commit suicide. He will appear before Municipal Judge N. J. Bonelli on a disorderly conduct charge today.

CLOSE STRACHEY HEARING; U. S. TO RULE NEXT WEEK

New Dealers Quoted in Fight on Deportation.

A hearing on deportation charges against Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, British author and lecturer who admits being a communist but says he does not favor the overthrow of the government by force and violence, was concluded yesterday after Strachey compared his views with quotations from Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Strachey was arrested in Glencoe on March 13 on orders of Immigration Commissioner D. W. MacCormack at Washington. The warant charged him with being an alien, subject to deportation. A hearing begun Thursday in the offices of Fred J. Schlotfeldt, director of immigration for the Chicago area, was conducted by Inspector William J. Zucker, who will make his report and recommendation in Washington some time next week.

Confronted with Own Writings.

Throughout the hearing Strachey was asked to comment on excerpts from his books and magazine articles on communism. In his own defense he quoted the sayings of the New Deal cabinet members.

A paragraph from Secretary Wallace's book "Statesmanship and Religion," was read into the record, as follows:

"I am inclined to agree with Tawney and Weber that capitalism is a rather natural outgrowth of Protestantism, and I would go further in saying that Socialism, communism, and Facism are in turn rather natural developments from capitalism."

"I am honored to notice that Secretary Wallace appears to be coming around to my point of view," Strachey commented.

Quotes from Ickes' Book.

Secretary Ickes' views were taken from his book, "Social Control of the Sources of Living," and were read as follows:

"The source of men's living is coming under something like a social control. Life processes, by which I mean factories, farms, mines, transportation, and such things, are being transformed from empires controled by industrial and financial overlords into social enterprises in the output of which there must be a decent sharing by those who do the work, pay the bills, and consume the output. The government has to go a new way because the old way is closed forever."

"Mr. Ickes certainly seems to be going a new way and a long way," commented the British communist.

Strachey at Newark; Confident.

Newark, N. J., March 22.—(AP)—Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey arrived at Newark airport from Chicago tonight, commented briefly on the deportation move against him and hurried away.

Both Strachey and his attorney, Arthur Garfield Hays, said they were jubilant over the establishment of the two precedents at the Chicago deportation hearing before immigration officials today.

One precedent, Hays said, was admission of the press to a hearing. Second, he said, was the success of the defense in obtaining a copy for its own use of the record of the hearing.

Though he has booked passage for Thursday, Strachey said he has no intention of leaving the United States until he is either deported or granted the right to remain.

Persistent Robbers Make Victim Lead to Cash

After stealing $17 from the cash register in the dry goods store of Milton Cohen at 3842 South Kedzie avenue yesterday, two gunmen forced Cohen to point out $35 more under a counter and, still grumbling, compelled him to lead them to his office upstairs, where they got an additional $135.

JUDGE WARNS ON JUVENILE COURT'S SOCIAL ACTIVITY

400 Delegates Hear Child Welfare Discussions.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Defining the Juvenile court as an agency designed specifically to administer laws affecting children, Judge Harry L. Eastman of the Cleveland Juvenile court yesterday warned against expansion of its functions into the social service field.

Judge Eastman addressed 400 delegates from ten central western states attending the regional conference of the Child Welfare league of America at the Knickerbocker hotel. The conference was called to consider the welfare problems of children and to urge more adequate legislation in their behalf. A luncheon today will close the two-day session.

"The juvenile court's function is purely judicial and it must stay clearly within the definite limits of its jurisdiction," Judge Eastman said. "However, lack of welfare facilities or lack of cooperation with private agencies has forced it to perform functions of the welfare field which it is not equipped to perform. Thus the Juvenile court has come to be looked upon as a social agency instead of a socialized court.

"As a tribunal where welfare agencies may bring legal conflicts as a last resort, the Juvenile court is an authoritative support of such agencies. As such, it should abstain from engaging in forms of social work."

The tendency of a few courts to assume nonjudicial functions has now developed a pronounced trend toward expanding courts into general welfare agencies, with all their educational and administrative duties even to preventative and predelinquency service, Judge Eastman said. Under the broadest interpretation of its powers, the court has no legal power to perform these functions, he added.

This morning the social needs of older children, boy offenders, relief service for minors, and the unmarried father will be the subjects of round table discussions.

DISCUSS LIQUOR INDUSTRY

Divergent views of the liquor industry—those of the welfare worker, parent, control commission, enforcement agents, the minister, temperance advocate, and the dealer—were discussed last night at the annual meeting of the Juvenile Protective association at the Chicago Women's club.

Opinions ranged from that of Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, who held that the liquor should be banned as a habit forming drug, to that of Edward J. Kaindl of the Retail Liquor Dealers Protective association, who maintained that the chief interest of tavern owners is enforcement of existing laws.

FEAR KIDNAPERS SEIZED YANKEE RANSOM AGENTS

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, March 22.—(AP)—Anxiety was expressed tonight by American and Mexican officials at the prolonged absence of emissaries sent into the mountains of Zacatecas state to negotiate with a bandit gang for the return of Mark Fowler, American mining engineer kidnaped more than a week ago.

The emissaries had been gone more than 48 hours and it was feared they also may have been captured. No direct word regarding Fowler of Nebraska City, Neb., or Louis Vremsak, a Californian, who was also reported kidnaped in the same vicinity, has been received here since their disappearance.

The ransom emissaries are reported to be Frank O. Jasmer [or Jasmine] of San Antonio, Tex., and an American named McGowan, a business associate of Fowler from Monterrey,

GOV. DAVEY'S CHALLENGE.

Experienced observers in Washington are satisfied that the quarrel between Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, and Gov. Davey of Ohio amounts to little more than a typical struggle for patronage between rival politicians. As there are several thousand jobs in the Ohio relief service, the struggle has been a bitter one.

As a private row within the Democratic family the conflict would have attracted no great interest. Public attention has been drawn by the character of the charges exchanged. It seems not unlikely that in their growing irritation the combatants lost their heads and blurted accusations which on second thought they might have kept to themselves. Hopkins accused Davey of using the Ohio relief to build up a campaign fund and a political organization. Gov. Davey has replied with charges of waste and incompetence and both men have said they can and will supply chapter and verse.

Taxpayers throughout the nation are following the matter closely in the belief that the situation in Ohio is not unique. Probably it is typical. If the truth can be learned about what has been going on in Ohio, citizens of every state will feel that a great deal of light has been thrown on their problems.

The grand jury investigation under the direction of the federal department of justice will satisfy no one except Mr. Hopkins. The attorney general is a colleague of Mr. Hopkins and therefore a partisan. Grand juries are generally under the control of the prosecutor who works with them and, in any event, a grand jury inquiry is by its nature one-sided. Even if the governor were tried and convicted, the public would not be justified in concluding that, because Davey was guilty, Hopkins was innocent of the charges the governor had made.

There is another means by which the truth can be ascertained promptly. Gov. Davey has brought suit against Mr. Hopkins, alleging criminal libel. Mr. Hopkins can easily evade the issue by staying out of Ohio, but if he takes this course he will have convicted himself at the bar of public opinion of cowardice and falsehood.

The trial of the libel suit will test the good faith of both men. If the truth is with Hopkins, Davey will be utterly discredited and his impeachment would become a probability. If the truth is with Davey, Hopkins, and with him the federal administration, stands convicted, in effect, of misfeasance and malfeasance on a scale without precedent in the history of the United States.

If Hopkins declines the issue the public will conclude, rightly or wrongly, that Hopkins is afraid to face the disclosures which Gov. Davey is prepared to make. The average man will say that Hopkins is afraid to face cross-examination by the governor's lawyers. So far as the public is concerned Hopkins must substantiate his charges or, if he declines the issue, convict himself of being the leading corruptionist of the present administration.

Gov. Davey's charges of the wasteful use of relief funds in Ohio come on top of the Farley scandals, the Ickes scandals, the Wallace scandals, and the scandalous use of RFC money in up-state New York for the manufacture of bootleg liquor. Obviously it is high time the country took warning. Obviously, too, if the administration in Washington has any regard for its good name it will require Mr. Hopkins to accept service. Just as there has been no administration in American history which has squandered money as this one has, so there has never before been so rich an opportunity to fasten a corrupt political machine upon the nation.

The taxpayers have reason to suspect that their money is being used to corrupt the electorate. The trial of Davey vs. Hopkins would show what part, if any, Mr. Hopkins' organization has played in the corruption of the voters. The public wants to know, and sooner or later will know, whether the sufferings of the unfortunate and the billions being spent to relieve them are being turned to political profit.

CO-OPERATION IN THE FAR EAST.

The marquess of Lothian [Philip Ker], one of the best informed public men in Britain on world politics, writes to the London Times that while he does not think Japan will start a naval building race "in view of the present naval temper of the United States," it is quite clear that Japan "has already set to work to nullify the political basis of the Washington treaties—namely: the integrity of China, equality of opportunity for the trade of all nations in China, and the principle that these questions were the collective concern of the signatories of the nine power treaty." Lord Lothian further calls attention to the report that Japan has invited China "to relinquish her membership in the league of nations, send away her European and American advisers, and enter into an Eastern Asian association on such intimate political and economic relations with Japan as would not only keep the rest of the world at a distance but would terminate what remains of the unequal treaties and in the long run end in the destruction of the property and trading interests built up by Europeans and Americans in China in the last 150 years."

Lord Lothian does not propose a way to deal with this situation, but suggests that there is "all the difference between a policy of drift and a vigorous use of such power and influence as the other signatories of that nine power treaty possess, which is now being torn up without their consent. China, as will be agreed, does not wish to be absorbed by Japan, and Lord Lothian suggests that the United States, the British empire, Russia, France, and Italy can give her more effective financial help than can Japan and thus probably keep her "in the orbit of the league of nations and the Washington treaties" as well as preserve their own legitimate rights.

The suggestion is one common sense might support. Its practicability seems to us unlikely and we doubt Tokio will view it with alarm. To bring about agreement among the governments involved would take more time than the Nanking government can spare under the formidable pressure of the Japanese government, which has shown unmistakably that it realizes its opportunity for masterful measures in the present state of European and American politics. In the most favorable circumstances the rivalries of the powers entangle and retard, if not defeat, effective coöperation and we see no signs of moderation in European affairs at this moment. We hope if our government is canvassing the possibilities of coöperation it will be governed by practical considerations of the interests of the American people rather than by the high flown aspirations which have made our diplomacy in recent years either futile or an international nuisance.

REFUNDING.

While the refunding of debts is rarely to be commended in theory, the blanket refunding authority which Mayor Kelly is seeking from the legislature, on behalf of all Chicago local governments, certainly has a number of practical recommendations.

The debtor, whether he be a person, corporation, or government, sells himself into slavery when he contracts a debt. Postponement of his obligation merely increases the weight of his shackles, for refunding cannot be accomplished without increasing the total interest charge, however much it may reduce it temporarily.

Our local governments, however, face a practical problem to which refunding seems to offer the best solution. We are reaping the whirlwind of tax bills sown a decade or more ago in a period of profligate expenditure of public funds in the guise of "city building." Bond interest and amortization charges are eating a larger and larger share of our total local tax payments. Unless refunding is accomplished we shall reach the point very shortly where increased bond charges will eat up all the savings accomplished by reduction of operating costs.

There is ample proof in Chicago's experience since 1928 for what might be termed the quantitative theory of tax collections. Regardless of the amount for which they are billed, the taxpayers are unable to contribute, as a group, more than a certain fairly definite sum. Any increase in the amount of individual bills—which, if the manipulation of assessment rolls is ever stopped, means any increase in tax rates—merely means that less bills will be paid, and that a larger percentage of taxpayers will be discouraged from making any payment.

If this quantitative theory be true, then local governments must expect, broadly speaking, to sacrifice a dollar of operating cash for every additional dollar which they use for debt service. Accordingly debt refunding, which will ease to a considerable extent the present financial strain on governmental operations by postponing part of the debt burden, can be recommended, with one proviso.

That proviso is that the operations shall be refunding in fact as well as name and shall be accomplished without increasing the present total of funded debt by a single dollar. Several local governments have debts in other than funded form. The manner in which these debts were incurred need not be discussed here. They were incurred legally, and it is at least possible to defend them on the ground of public policy.

But however these floating debts were incurred, they should not be transformed into funded debt. That would amount to the use of bond funds for current operating expenses, which is never defensible, and the refunding operations should not be made a cloak for any such transactions.

Editorial of the Day

75 PER CENT LIMIT VERY DANGEROUS.

[Des Moines Register.]

If the new banking bill which Gov. Eccles is urging congress to pass were in other respects the best piece of bank legislation ever, the clause on mortgage lending would still be unwise. That section would legalize lending bank funds for 20 year periods, up to 75 per cent of the value of the mortgage security.

In the first place, the very act of throwing banks wide open to real estate loans should be opposed. In so far as such credits are permitted, they should be held down to a minimum. As for that 75 per cent provision, it is utterly indefensible as a permanent policy.

Because real estate values are probably at rock bottom just now it might not do any harm at the moment. But the land market is not going to remain indefinitly in its present state, nor is it likely to stop at precisely the right point when it does begin to rise in price. And every one knows what rising real estate values do to mortgage appraisals.

In 1917-'20 wiser lenders were limiting their farm mortgages to 40 per cent of the appraisal—and see what has happened since! Those wise lenders are said today to own more than 10 per cent of Iowa's farms, taken over on defaulted mortgages, most of which represented less than 50 per cent of the appraisal at the time the loans were made. Moreover, conditions elsewhere have been even worse in this respect than in Iowa.

No, we don't want our banks to be making 75 per cent mortgage loans when the next real estate boom comes along.

AND ON INTO THE NIGHT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

HOME, JAMES!

If that robot succeeds in guiding his airplane safely to Honolulu then right away I'm going to hire a robot to drive my car. It isn't that the robot would try to drive any more safely than I do or keep closer to around fifty miles an hour on a lonely country road. But a robot has me beat in lots of ways. Of course he's got to be a talking robot and he'll probably say things that a poor, earnest individual trying to be a gentleman can't say. For instance, if a car passing from behind swings in too close and smashes my front fender and the man driving it yells, "You big boob, why don't you learn to drive? Do you want to be a farmer all your life?" (and other things, oh, many other things that I do not care to repeat), I can only say: "But the fault, my good man, was all yours; you swung in too close to my car, and, pardon me, I think you have dented my fenders to hellangone."

But that doesn't have the slightest effect on the wild man who bumped me. Now, the robot would have certain buttons on him that would be pushed in when the other car hit my fenders and he would immediately shout in a loud, hollow, metallic voice: "You cross-eyed, bone-headed, ivory-domed lunatic, who told you you knew how to drive? The button that controls my right arm holding a heavy hammer has now been released and if you will kindly step this way, you great hunk of cheese, I'll bash your brains out, if you have any." Oh, yes, I must hire a robot to drive my car.

And I would talk to the inventor and have him insert a few more words in his diaphragm, or wherever his voice comes from. They are the words I've been yearning to say for years. All I want to know about the robot who is going to drive my car is, "Can he cuss?" And if the inventor says, "It's the best thing he does. He'll make anybody's blood run cold," then I'll say, "Sold! And cheap at half the price." And my robot chauffeur's name shall be James. I've always wanted to say that.

"FRENCH ARMY Rushed to Frontier to Face Nazis."—Headline. And when two armies stand face to face with each other they likewise begin very soon to make faces at each other. And then somewhere a gun goes off and then a wave of rifle fire spreads along the whole line. Anyhow, it's been that way before in history, often and often. If the two armies have got to border the frontier the League of Nations should make them stand back to back instead of face to face. And keep their mouths shut. But it can't be done. Well, anyhow, from what we've seen of peace these last few years we would roughly conclude that peace isn't so hot after all. We'll get run around and taxed and bedeviled generally just as much if a war breaks loose as we do in peace times. However, we'll get a lot of excitement if war comes, and it helps deaden the pain of paying taxes. Excitement allays our agony just as gas does when the dentist pulls our teeth.

NRA STILL LIVES, but after Bill Borah went after the poor old thing in the senate the other day it had all its tail feathers pulled out, one wing was dragging, and it staggered around as though it had the pip, the glanders, and the hoof and mouth disease, the last two that no respectable eagle is supposed to get. But a Blue Eagle is different. It just seems to be sick of everything from dark spots before the eyes to ingrowing toenails and housemaid's knee.

And she was merciless, that goddess, when
It pleased her to be utterly alone.
Say that she pleasured her, that it was evil

ARTHRITIS—A SUMMARY OF TREATMENT.

THE arthritis problem is always with us. In fact, more of the letters received from readers of this column deal with arthritis than with any other single disease. The importance of focal infection has been pointed out from time to time, and most physicians appreciate keenly the necessity of removing infected teeth and tonsils. The obliteration of a focus of infection is sometimes followed by spectacular results, but, unfortunately, no improvement may result if the infection has localized in other parts of the body or if the diseased tonsils are removed unskilfully.

The rule that dictates the early removal of diseased teeth and tonsils should be kept in mind and, along with these structures, we should consider possible infection of the sinuses, the gall bladder, the urinary tract, the appendix, the pelvic organs, and the colon. In males the prostate gland must not be forgotten, as it may become the source of trouble.

Vaccines made from cultures of bacteria taken from joints, teeth, and other localities have been prepared, and yet vaccine therapy in chronic arthritis remains debatable ground. Many of our ablest clinical observers feel that vaccines are useless. On the other hand Wetherby and Clawson have reported improvement in 75 per cent of their cases, particularly when the vaccine is given directly into the circulation. Another group of workers advocates the use of vaccines made from organisms found growing in the lower bowel. Now and then a vaccine such as typhoid fever has proved of great value.

Young and Youmans report the use of orthoiodoxybenzoic acid given directly into the circulation. Other workers have injected this same drug into the rectum and report a great reduction in the swelling of joints, an increase in the ability to move the parts, and considerable relief of pain. The use of histamine in suitable cases was mentioned in an earlier article.

During recent years sulphur has been used, particularly in Europe, and one writer reports recoveries in three-fourths of the cases treated. It is explained that the infection causing arthritis uses up the sulphur reserves of the body, and hence supplying sulphur with the food is indicated. The conservative attitude toward the use of this element is that it should be used in conjunction with other forms of treatment rather than relied upon for cure. Nevertheless accurate chemical observations have shown that sulphur in the finger nails is markedly decreased in amount when arthritis is active.

Salts of gold, at first employed in the treatment of tuberculosis, are now being used in arthritis, chiefly in England and France. Although some reports are favorable, other authorities note that severe reactions occasionally follow the injections.

There is not much new relative to diet other than the generally accepted belief that carbohydrates should not be used to excess; in fact, a reduction in amount is advised. The vitamins should be high and hence green vegetables and fruits should be employed in great profusion.

If pain is severe, physical therapy offers some relief. Heat and rest followed by massage as soon as the inflammation has subsided are helpful.

We may as well admit that the arthritis problem has not been solved. Fundamentally arthritis upsets body functions to such a degree that numerous measures will be required for their restoration.

Most physicians recognize that arthritis is not a local disease, but a disease of the entire body. Anemia must be combated, as well as loss of weight, and hence an excessive amount of rest must be insisted upon. In other words, the general plan of treatment seeks to build the normal resistance of the body. Recovery proceeds more rapidly in a warm, dry climate.

Send a stamped and addressed envelope for leaflet detailing some of these suggestions.

LIVER TROUBLE.

C. D. writes: My mother died of cirrhosis of the liver several years ago. Lately I have been troubled with indigestion and yellowish skin. What progress has been made in recent years in detecting liver trouble? Would X-ray help?

REPLY.

X-ray will not be of value except in detecting disease of the gall bladder if such exists. Much progress has been made in combating liver diseases in the last ten years. We know that glucose in the proper amount will bring about regeneration of liver cells. Nothing of value has been learned about cancer of the liver, although much research is being carried on.

DESTRUCTION OF WILL.

Chicago, March 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you advise me if tearing up a will is sufficient to make it void? E. M.

Section 17 of the Illinois wills act provides that: "No will . . . shall be revoked otherwise than by burning, canceling, tearing or obliterating the same by the testator himself or in his presence by his direction and consent or by some other will."

Since questions might be raised as to whether the tearing was done by the testator himself, the revocation by another will is the safest course.

FLYING STORIES

By Test Pilot Jim Collins

[The author of the following was killed yesterday evening while testing a plane. Story on page 1.]

HUNGRY'S SHIP BURNED.

Lieut. Hungry Gates' ship caught fire in the air. He pulled his throttle and worked carefully but fast. He undid his belt and started to raise himself out of the cockpit. He started to leap, but remembered something. That swell bottle of pre-war liquor that a friend had given him just before he took off was in the map case. He'd need that if he got down alive. He made a quick grab back into the cockpit for it and leaped head foremost clear of the burning wreck.

He missed the tail surfaces and waited a moment, thankful for that much. He didn't want the ship to fall on him. He didn't want any of the burning debris to fall on his chute when he opened it.

When he had waited long enough, he started to pull his ripcord to open his chute, but discovered both hands already engaged. He let go of the bottle of liquor with his right hand and hugged the bottle tightly with his left arm. He grabbed his ripcord ring with his freed right hand, yanked hard, grabbed his bottle to him with both hands again and waited. The sudden checking of his speed when his chute opened jolted him up short in his harness, but he didn't drop the bottle.

He thought of the flaming wreck above him. He looked up but saw only his white chute spread safely above him, etched cold against the clear blue sky. He looked around the sky. He saw a long trailing column of black smoke and followed it with his eyes downward until he saw the hurtling ship at the end of it. It was beneath him now and no longer a threat to his chute. He watched it nose violently into a wooded patch off to his left just before he settled down into a pasture. He hit hard, fell down, but held on to his bottle.

He sat up and decided he needed a drink before he even got out of his harness to gather up his chute. He hauled his bottle out from under his arm and gazed at it in consternation, licking his lips. It was the fire extinguisher.

PREMATURE CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, March 19.—Your editorial "Premature Citizenship" is apparently directed against the bill introduced by the Illinois State Bar association to compel the registration of aliens.

Our bill in no manner urges any alien to become a citizen. It is our purpose to effect a check on the alien in Illinois who has made illegal entry into the United States and who is now a charge upon the community, state, and nation, enjoying in common with the American citizen the benefits of unemployment and relief funds provided by the government and state.

Section 3 of the act prevents aliens from assignment for labor while there is a surplus of citizens unemployed.

Section 4 requires aliens to apply to the representatives of their respective countries for aid and assistance.

There is nothing that we can do to change national legislation on the requirements under our naturalization laws, a duty that belongs to congress. If it were possible to enact a national registration law requiring all the people of the United States to register at the age of 21 and be issued certificate containing photograph and finger prints, duplicate to be retained in the archives of the district court clerk's office, we would have the best safeguard of the rights of our people against the criminal element, illegal aliens, and protection for the sanctity of the ballot.

Many states have enacted laws requiring owners and drivers of automobiles to carry license cards that compare with passports issued when visiting foreign lands. Why not go one step further and require all persons to do likewise?

Unofficial statistics disclose the fact that approximately 5 million aliens are now within the borders of the United States without proper credentials as required by our immigration laws. It is impossible to ascertain their whereabouts without a system of registration.

SPANKING THE DELINQUENT.

Mukwonago, Wis., March 14.—I was very much interested in your editorial of March 9 entitled "Why Not Spank Them?" I am very glad to see this question being raised more and more.

Some 25 years or more ago it was not necessary to have juvenile courts or large industrial schools in each state, nor military training schools for young boys, nor did we have in our presence what is called the delinquent boy, to any great extent. I am satisfied that the reason was that in those days spanking was believed in at home, in the school, and in fact in every place where it would do any good, and every one believed in it. Then these psychiatrists and sob sisters sprang up and tried to teach us that this was a relic of barbarism and should be ostracized as a means of punishment, and in trying to prove their point mentioned a few cases of so-called spirit breaking and cruelty which crept into the old system.

Spanking as a means of correction is not necessarily cruel, nor will it break the spirit of any child when it is done properly.

In the old days if the officer on the beat brought a child home and complained to the mother and father of what he had been doing the child was promptly attended to and he knew that this would be the result if the officer brought him home for any misdemeanor. Today, if an officer brings a boy home, mother will berate the officer for trying to insinuate that her dear child would ever do anything wrong, and then probably report the officer for all the mean things she could think of.

I think one of the biggest proofs of the value of spanking is in the fact that since it has become unpopular it has been necessary to resort to juvenile courts and juvenile delinquency has gone forward by leaps and bounds, even to children as young as 2, 3, and 4 years old, and we now have the more serious crimes committed by children 12 to 16 years of age, which was an unknown thing in the old days.

PANACEA.

Chicago, March 16.—Permit me to propose through your columns that the President call in the heads of large businesses and advise them to hire 5 per cent more men than they now have on their pay rolls, reduce the number of hours to 36 from 40, and pay the additional men the same rate of wages, which the government will guarantee back to the companies. This will enable the additional 5 per cent to lead normal lives, move into better places, split up the crowded homes and put more money into circulation.

HOUSING.

Chicago, March 15.—In determining the constitutional rights of the national government in condemning vast areas of property for housing purposes, the following should be taken into consideration:

Many property owners have saved all their lives to invest in homes where they could live and from the rents collected their future existence is assured. This, then, constitutes a business as much as any other line of endeavor.

If the United States government must go into the real estate business with a view of exterminating slums, they in charge of the selection of such districts should at least see that they do not antagonize respectable communities.

I live in the north side area and our immediate neighborhood [Larrabee street, Mohawk street, and Cleveland avenue from Clybourn avenue north to Blackhawk street] is made up of respectable people, living in buildings that are in good condition.

THE GREAT SIN.

Chicago, March 18.—One of the Hon. Ickes' very effective arguments against the reelection of Congressman Simpson was that Mr. Simpson had fallen so low as to play polo. Seeing that polo is such a sin in the eyes of the New Deal, it is rather shocking to read that young Mr. John Roosevelt is indulging in the pastime at Harvard. It is too bad that a young man of his antecedents should so forget the family honor. He should seek a divorce from such influence.

A PLATFORM FOR MR. GLENN.

Elgin, Ill., March 13.—The Republican party in Illinois, to regain the support of the people, must put up a strong, honest, capable leader like Otis Glenn for governor and have an up to date platform, including these:

1. Drastic reduction in expenses.
2. Consolidation of the thousands of local governments.
3. A modern road program, providing low cost all-weather roads for the farmer, superhighways for Chicago, widened streets and roads for the cities, and national highways.
4. Consolidation of the 10,000 one teacher schools and other reforms.
5. Extension of civil service to cover every job, especially the state police.
6. Reform the judiciary.
7. A better conservation program.

PRESIDENT O. K.'S LEVIATHAN DEAL; PLAN NEW GIANT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Although the government has sunk approximately 23 million dollars in the Leviathan, President Roosevelt today said he thought it was a good Yankee trade to junk the titan of the seas and to build another giant vessel with still more government money.

The President said that he had approved the plan advanced by the United States Lines to decommission the Leviathan and to put the cost of operating her into a new ship. The government will advance a large part of the funds to build the new vessel under the terms of a contract signed by the department of commerce and the United States Lines.

Sticks to Position.

Mr. Roosevelt stuck to his position even when reporters at his semi-weekly press conference called to his attention that in his shipping message to congress he had disapproved of the policy of lending federal money for the construction of an American merchant marine.

In reply the chief executive said that, despite his recommendations, he was still bound by the existing law and that under that law any shipping company could come to the government for a loan to build a vessel. He added, however, that the contract junking the Leviathan provides that the new vessel shall be financed under the proposed law rather than the existing law if the proposed law is enacted.

Could Not Pay Way.

Explaining the decision not to force the United States Lines to operate the Leviathan, as could be done under an existing contract, the President pointed out that despite honest efforts last year the company could not fill the Leviathan or make it pay its own way. Rather than to force the company to take another certain loss this year, he decided to accept the company's offer which was to put the penalty for failure to operate the vessel, as provided in the contract, into the construction of a new ship.

The Leviathan, originally the Vaterland, has been a sea elephant to the government ever since it was interned at Hoboken sixty days after setting out on her maiden voyage with the outbreak of the war. When America entered the war she was confiscated and renamed.

Made Transport Ship.

She was turned into a transport ship, broke all records for a ship of that type and then was returned to her moorings at the end of the war. There she lay for months until the U. S. shipping board took a hand and the spending began.

The board ordered its reconditioning. An estimated maximum cost of $6,800,000 leaped up to $9,568,821 before the job was done. In the next three years she was operated at a loss of $334,968. In the same period an additional $276,652 was spent on further reconditioning.

At this time under a war claim settlement the government allowed Germany $13,688,000 for the Leviathan. This brought the cost of the vessel to that date to the government to $23,863,500.

Sold to U. S. Lines.

The Leviathan was then sold to the United States Lines. The selling price was $6,782,000 for a ship which had up to that time cost more than 23 millions.

The government paid out $308,436 to the ship as a mail carrier during private operation and canceled interest of $201,764 to bring the total cost to $24,373,682. Against the total, the credits for principal and interest paid in the sale totaling $2,350,473, the net United States investment is $22,023,209.

JURY INDICTS FOUR MORE FOR HARLEM RIOTS

The second person to die of riot injuries was August Miller, 57, who succumbed tonight.

The indictments, charging four persons with burglary, were filed with Judge Morris Koenig in the Court of General Sessions. Twelve rioters, looters, and communists had been named in seven indictments returned yesterday.

While the grand jury was questioning witnesses, nine of eleven members of a committee appointed by Mayor F. H. La Guardia to investigate the Harlem disorders met in executive session. The selection of a chairman was deferred until Monday.

It was disclosed that several members of the committee have spent considerable time in Harlem in the last two days trying to ascertain just what was responsible for the rioting and what share communists had in the outbreak. All phases of social and economic conditions, as well as health and crime statistics in Harlem, will be gathered by the committee.

It was said that the election of a chairman was deferred because of the absence of Arthur Farfield Hays, attorney, member of the committee who was in Chicago defending Evelyn St. Loe Strachey.

DOG'S VAGARIES HALT 2 TRAINS ON SOUTH SIDE

Two freight trains of the Rock Island road were brought to a halt yesterday near the Grand Trunk junction at 135th street, Blue Island, by a police dog.

The animal laid down in the southbound tracks and declined to move, although the oncoming locomotive's whistle was sounded and the bell rung. When the train was brought to a halt a few feet from the animal trainmen had to kick him to get him to move over on the track for northbound trains.

When a train arrived going north the dog repeated his performance. Again trainmen made him move and were so earnest in their methods that he trotted away. Witnesses were undecided whether the dog wanted to commit suicide or was merely hitch-hiking.

PAWNED FAMILY JEWELS; DUKE IN COURT FOR FRAUD

Wins Delay in Inquiry Before British Judge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 22.—Costly jewels which he is accused of pawning with intent to defraud flashed before the eager eyes of the pudgy duke of Manchester in Westminster police court today. They were worn by his American mother, Consuela Yznaga of New York, who died in 1909, and his American wife, Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati, who divorced him in 1931.

The bad boy of British aristocracy—he is facing his second criminal prosecution—was remanded in $1,250 bail until March 30. His lawyer asked for additional time to work up briefs to show the duke had no intention to defraud.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," said Examining Magistrate Hay Halkett as he granted the delay.

Faces Trial in Old Bailey.

If on March 30 the magistrate finds a prima facie case the duke, whose adventures with the law frequently amuse or scandalize the staider members of the aristocracy, will be sent for trial to Old Bailey.

The duke is charged with pawning jewels belonging to the co-trustees of the estate of his mother and obtaining two sums, $2,000 and $1,250, from Thomas Miller Sutton, London's pawnbroking king, and Walter Matthew Lawlor, Sutton's manager, in 1931. Both men are now dead.

One of the trustees identified the jewels as belonging to the estate of Consuelo, duchess of Manchester. One of the gems is from a diamond emerald necklace and the other came from a tiara which the duchesses of Manchester wore when they appeared before the king and queen.

Pawned Two Guns.

The prosecution charged that the duke pledged both pieces of jewelry and signed one pledge ticket which read: "It is my own property and I have a perfect right to deal with the same." The other pawn ticket read: "This is the joint property of the duchess and myself. It is not an heirloom and I have a perfect right to deal with the same."

The duchess is the former Katherine Dawes, London actress.

The magistrate brought out the fact that the duke willingly sent the pawn tickets to the trustees when they asked for the return of the jewels. That is supposed to show that he acted like the perfect gentleman that every noble duke is supposed to be.

The duke's dignity and natural weight won him the privilege of sitting down in the dock when the magistrate learned that the hearing was likely to last an hour.

Finds Duke in Bed.

Eyebrows were lifted as a policeman testified that he had taken in the duke on the morning of March 18 after finding him in bed. It was considered quite ungentle for the noble duke to be aroused as early as 8:45 o'clock in the morning.

The second son of the duke, Lord Edward Montague, vies with his pudgy papa in providing sensations, the latest being an attempt to join the French Foreign Legion. He fell down stairs and sustained such injuries that the French deemed he was unfit for service and they rejected him.

RUSSIA EXECUTES 4 BOY BANDITS; SLEW 2 WOMEN

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, March 22.—A drive by soviet authorities to suppress crime and rowdyism has unearthed a gang of young burglars and murderers. Many of the gang are under 20 years of age. They maintained a thieves' club and school of professional criminals in the heart of Moscow.

The club and school exist no more. For the four young men and one 16 year old girl who composed it were convicted today of murdering a 73 year old woman. Three of the youths were put to death. The fourth youth and the girl have been sentenced to prison terms of ten and five years respectively.

Girl Called "Cow."

The girl, Vera Zacharova, who was nicknamed "Cow" by her criminal associates, was the scout for the gang. She discovered an old woman named Sobelevesky who lived next door had considerable money and valuables. She led her young men associates in a raid on the house early in the morning of Feb. 27.

They bound and gagged a young maid and when the mistress of the house opened the door they shot her to death. The gang then rifled the home and one of the youths raped the maid.

The gang escaped, but the police traced them by fingerprints on the glass of an ikon, whose silver frame they had stripped off.

This case was the most flagrant of several here and in other parts of the soviet union recently. Yesterday a young man was executed here as an incorrigible bandit after stabbing an old woman to death on the street for no apparent reason.

Publicity in War on Crime.

The authorities here are employing publicity as well as police work in an effort to supress crime. Some of the papers recently began publishing columns of police news—robberies, accidents, and the like.

The League of Communist Youth has launched a campaign to keep young children off the streets by organizing children's clubs, playgrounds, excursions and proper training facilities.

In some southern cities, such as Odessa and Sevastopol there are still lawless waifs, the last remnants of homeless children who proved a great problem after the revolution and world war.

The courts as well as criminals are being watched in the current campaign against crime. A special court has gone from Moscow to Frunze to try 45 officials and employès of the Supreme court of Kirghizia on charges of taking bribes. One hundred witnesses have been called in the probe.

OPEN VERDICT RETURNED.

A coroner's jury returned an open verdict yesterday in the death of Jacob Popsuewich, 52 years old, 2033 Crystal street, who on Thursday fell from a sixth floor window of the Northwestern Yeast company building at 1750 North Ashland avenue.

COURT BLOCKS LONG'S ATTEMPT TO PUNISH PRESS OF LOUISIANA

New Orleans, La., March 22.—[Special.]—Act No. 23 of the legislature of 1934, imposing a tax of 2 per cent on the gross volume of advertising of newspapers in Louisiana with circulation of 20,000 or more copies weekly, was declared unconstitutional by a three judge federal court in New Orleans today.

The law was declared to be violative of the Louisiana and the federal constitutions. Decision was unanimous, and was signed by Circuit Court Judge Rufus E. Foster and Federal District Judges Ben C. Dawkins and Wayne G. Borah.

In outlining the conclusions, the opinion stated:

"We think that act No. 23 of the legislature of 1934 not only violates the constitution of the state of Louisiana, but is violative of the fourteenth amendment of the United States constitution, in that it does not represent a legitimate exertion of power of classification. And denies the protection of the laws to those against whom it discriminates.

"The act makes a positive and direnl discrimination against the plaintifs. There are nine plaintifs in the case, each being the publisher of one or more daily newspapers in Louisiana, with circulation of more than 20,000 copies a week."

While the measure was pending before the legislature Senator Huey P. Long, repeatedly declared he was going to "punish" the newspapers at "two cents per lie," and his verbal assaults on the dailies during pendency of the bill were included in the plaintifs' complaint to the federal court.

Quack Gets 18 Months in House of Correction

Charles L. Smith, 30 years old, colored, of 510 East 33d place, one of a number of persons caught in the state drive on unlicensed physicians, was sentenced yesterday to a year and six months in the house of correction for violation of the medical practice act. Smith was arrested after a colored woman said he had been treating her and prescribing medicine.

GERMANS EXPAND AIRSHIP SERVICE; FORM NEW FIRM

Dr. Hugo Eckener to Head Enterprise.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 22.—Germany today founded a new Zeppelin company—German Zeppelin Lines, Ltd.—to establish and operate regular airship lines for passenger, freight, and postal services.

Disasters to American airships have failed to daunt the spirit of enterprise of German airmen, who base their optimism on the achievements of the Graf Zeppelin in six years of regular service.

Eckener Chairman of Board.

Herman Wilhelm Goering, former German war ace and now minister of aviation and general of military aviators, presided at the meeting which founded the new company. Commander Hugo Eckener of the Graf Zeppelin was named chairman of the board, with the Graf's chief engineer, Capt. Ernst Lehmann, and Karl Christiansen, police president of Madgeburg, as directors.

The company, which has its headquarters in Berlin, expects in the near future to be able to operate with two airships. A super-Zeppelin is nearing completion at Friedrichshafen to reinforce the pioneer Graf Zeppelin.

German experts say the disasters to American airships cannot deter them because their builders, workers, and crews have been trained for decades and have become masters of their art after building and flying more than 100 airships since the days when Count Zeppelin first amazed Germany with silvery flying ships.

3 Companies to Coöperate.

The Zeppelin Luftschiffbau company, which builds Zeppelins, is the main shareholder in the new company. It built the Graf with the help of voluntary donations from the German people and subsidies from the German republic. Today it owns $2,270,000 capital in the new company, while Germany's chief aviation company, Lufthansa, owns the balance of $1,550,000. Thus close coöperation between the companies has been assured.

They will work together on the Graf's regular route to South America. Eckener hopes it will be possible to run a similar coöperative service to North America, though is friends assert that several financial obstacles are still in his way.

When the Graf resumes regular service to South America on April 6 it will be possible to send a letter from Berlin to Buenos Aires in three and one-half days. It takes the fastest steamship close to 24 days.

OHIO GOVERNOR MOVES TO BARE FERA WEAKNESS

New Director Fires 75 to Cut Costs.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., March 22.—[Special.]—Gov. Martin L. Davey prepared today to expose the weaknesses of the federal relief system in a state-wide investigation next week. It will be conducted by a legislative committee dominated by Davey Democrats.

"From information on hand," said the governor, "I think we will show the people of the United States that we are not justified in asking the taxpayers for more money for relief until much waste has been stopped. The same situation may be found in other states. There are high salaries being paid to those that do not need them. I am informed that there has been favoritism in coal and drug contracts.

Gaining Two Objectives.

"I have had two objectives in this campaign. One was to get the federal director, Harry L. Hopkins, to take full responsibility for this situation. He has now done so. He did it under a smoke screen, making a gratuitous attack on me, but he has the responsibility at last. The second objective is to cut down the expenses and get the relief money where it is needed. That will be begun in a week. The investigation committee will have able counsel, auditors and other assistants. They will go to the important cities of the state. I expect to have this situation cleaned up in two weeks."

C. C. Stillman, Ohio relief administrator, who has been in office less than a week, is not waiting for any investigating committee to tell him what to do.

"I do not care where the lightning hits," he said today. "I am going to cut expenses and correct evils as fast as I find them. I think that people never will be satisfied with a relief system, but I am going to do the best job I can. I feel very humble about my capacities. This is everybody's business, the public's business.

Committee Is Welcome.

"Let the committee come over, or any one that represents a public group. They can have any information I have and look into our books all they want. I think the overhead has been too high and I am cutting it down, although I hate to fire people.

The administrative expense is 8.8 per cent in this state, which is low, but not low enough when you consider the volume of business, which is ten million dollars a month. We have discharged 75 persons from this staf. The others will have to work harder, that is all."

Stillman fired two expert hay watchers today who had cost $1,000 in salaries while guarding $1,200 worth of hay. He also looked into the spoiled meat situation which was reported to him yesterday. This report involved W. R. McNamara and Thomas E. Jones, formerly in charge of the surplus commodities division of the relief office. They were two who signed affidavits for Director Hopkins that they had solicited funds for Gov. Davey's campaign fund and inaugural expenses.

Report Worse Than Facts.

The preliminary report was about twice as bad as the real facts about the meat, Stillman said today. He has been informed that much of the meat was only "spoiled on the edges" and that the good part was saved for sausages. He began a check of additional meat in the warehouses, and also a report of storage charges on potatoes when there should have been no charge. He would continue, he said, to give out information of this character whenever it was justified, regardless of its effects on politics.

"My only instructions are to do a good job and pay no attention to politicians," he said.

Department of justice investigators were reported arriving in Columbus and other cities of the state today.

John A. Lee, former relief hay buyer, is being sought by deputy sheriffs. He was suspended by Stillman and was one of the men named in the affidavits against the Democratic committee.

CALL FOR CLEANUP

Washington, D. C., March 22.—(AP)—The battle over Ohio relief administration was reflected today in developments among the state's delegation on Capitol hill.

Charles H. Hubbell of Cleveland, independent Democrat, called upon Senators Robert J. Bulkley and A. V. Donahey, Democrats, for a "house cleaning" of the party's state headquarters.

Representative Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus Democrat, said he was considering asking the house to investigate the whole relief setup under Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

There were reports in reliable sources that friends of Gov. Martin L. Davey were beseeching some house members to use their influence in behalf of W. A. Walls, state relief administrator, who was removed from control of federal funds when Hopkins took the responsibility from Gov. Davey.

QUIZ AIRS RELIEF 'ORDER SPLITTING' TO AVOID BIDDING

Officials Questioned; Coal Contracts Let.

An investigation of purchasing methods, conducted yesterday by the Illinois emergency relief commission, indicated, it was reported, that splitting of orders for office supplies, as well as lumber, was commonly practiced by some IERC. officials to dodge the state law requiring formal competitive bids on all purchases amounting to $500 or more.

The immediate object of the investigation was to determine why the Berwyn Lumber company of Berwyn was given $106,000 of a total of $181,000 in orders distributed among 171 companies. The inquiry also sought to find the reason why each of 1,171 orders given to the Berwyn company was for less than $500—the "no bid" limit—in many instances several of these small orders having been filed on the same day.

The commission members failed to shake staf executives from their insistence that the Berwyn company was favored only because it rendered the "best" service. These same relief executives justified the unusual number of orders under the required bidding figure with the statement that these orders were placed only when "emergencies" necessitated immediate deliveries.

Disproves "Overcharges."

Published charges in which the Berwyn firm was accused of numerous overcharges were disproved by Charles E. Clark, a member of the regional code authority for the retail lumber industry. Clark assured the commission members that he had checked the alleged "overcharges" and found the prices to have been in exact compliance with the schedule authorized under the NRA.

The commission went into executive session after hearing the evidence and emerged to state that it will withhold action until the return from California of Robert J. Dunham, chairman.

Present for Questioning.

W. W. Murray, a former purchasing agent for the IERC, willingly assumed responsibility for "order splitting" when Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, a commission member, produced requisitions illustrative of the practice.

"If there was an emergency need in some department, an order was placed to get the supplies in a hurry," Murray said. "It was to the advantage of the commission in such cases to save time by getting fair prices through informal quotations from various dealers. As to lumber there were times when the commission would have saved money even if it had to pay double to get materials right away."

Murray, who candidly explained that his resignation had been requested on grounds of inefficiency last October, defended his former coworkers.

Business Manager F. A. Deniston also was questioned. He asserted he had known nothing of the "split order" practice. Deniston's authority was taken from him several months ago. He said further that he chose inexperienced persons as purchasing agents because they would be "unbiased."

New Coal Contracts Let.

The commission authorized the awarding of coal contracts on a competitive basis for the remainder of the heating season. Having sacrificed what has been estimated as $20,000 by its delay of a week in taking advantage of the prices available since the NRA abandoned fixed prices, the commission made its awards on a heat-factor basis. This means that the higher priced southern Illinois coal will be used in 29 of the 52 districts in Cook county.

The recommendations of staf executives, which would have given contracts in all but one district to low bidders on lower priced coal from central Illinois and Belleville mines, were rejected.

At its morning session, the commission approved a broad program for the rehabilitation of 142,000 rural relief clients. By means of community projects and the distribution of seed, farm animals, equipment, and land, the commission hopes to make these clients self-supporting. Much of the program can be carried out in 1935, it was said, but it will not be until 1936 that the benefits can be extended to all members of this class. The program will be submitted to Washington officials for approval.

RUSSIA GIVES UP HISTORIC RAILWAY

Map shows Chinese Eastern railway, which Russia today formally transferred to the Japanese puppet empire of Manchukuo. The sales agreement and the general protocol were signed at ceremonies in Tokio. The main line of the railway crosses the rich granary of north Manchukuo. Japan sees in the formal transfer the railroad a final victory in the 40 year Russo-Japanese struggle for possession of Manchuria.

N. Y. RELIEF AIDS GET PAY BOOSTS, INQUIRY REVEALS

Mayor Denies Knowing of Increases.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—Relief administration took the spotlight today when Mayor F. H. La Guardia said he did not know that $17,000 had been included in the March relief appropriations for pay rises to relief aids. The aids themselves testified before the aldermanic investigating committee that they had not asked for increases.

Aldermanic President Bernard S. Deutsch, chairman of the committee, said later he would not have voted for the record March relief appropriation of $20,128,820, had he known that salary increases had been "cleverly concealed" in it.

Asserts Raises Did Not Show.

"The relief administration could never have obtained the approval of the board of estimate if the members knew that these raises showed in the monthly appropriation for March," Mr. Deutsch said. "It's a mystery to me why they give raises at this time, and I am certainly not in favor of it.

"I think it was brazen and outrageous to give the raises publicity before today's hearing of the investigating committee. This begins to look like a social service racket."

Welfare Commissioner William Hodson testified before the committee that the salary increases had been approved by Mayor La Guardia.

"But didn't the mayor tell me this morning, in your presence, that he had not agreed to them?" demanded Mr. Deutsch with a look of astonishment.

Explains Mayor Agreed.

"The mayor agreed that the salaries should be raised, but we did not discuss the details of it," Mr. Hodson explained.

The salary increases were disclosed at a time when Mr. Hodson and his aids were supposed to be conferring with the mayor on tapering down relief.

A number of relief workers testified before the committee that they were receiving higher salaries than they had ever received in private employment. In all 859 pay increases were made in the relief bureau, it was charged.

LETTER TO ROOSEVELT TELLS 'HIGH HANDED' WORKERS FOR IERC

Rockford, Ill., March 22.—[Special.]—Officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission were charged with "domineering, high handed tactics" by a committee of the Winnebago county board of supervisors in a letter sent today to President Roosevelt.

"Objection is made," the committee wrote, "to the monopolistic practices of progressional social worker racketeers who have taken possession of the relief administration in this state and conduct the administration of relief primarily for their self-interest." Hundreds of persons on the IERC pay roll, it was charged, need not work for a livelihood.

The committee refrained from asking an audience with the President, as it had intended to do, since it felt its purpose will be accomplished by the committee which the legislature will send to Washington.

ROSEMARY AMES TO ASK DIVORCE IN COURT TODAY

Mrs. Rosemary Ames Ketting Meyer, the actress, will appear before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort today to ask a divorce from Bertie A. Meyer, London theatrical producer. It was indicated the action will be uncontested.

It was reported that immediately after the divorce is granted Mrs. Meyer, who is the daughter of the late Knowlton L. Ames, will be married to Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. Neither Stilwell nor Mrs. Meyer could be reached to discuss this report. Thursday when Mrs. Meyer arrived at the Chicago airport she was greeted by Stilwell and a big kiss, which caused the banker some embarrassment when a battery of news camera men recorded the scene.

William C. Boyden, attorney for Mrs. Meyer, said that Meyer, who is in England, has been served by publication in the suit. It appeared likely that the actress' divorce would be granted by default.

Mrs. Meyer married her present husband Jan. 6, 1932, shortly after her divorce from Ogden Ketting, whom she married on Feb. 20, 1928. Her name and Stilwell's have been linked for several months, but each has denied that they planned to marry. Stilwell was divorced in Reno last Sept. 19 by the former Ella Neville.

RUSSIANS TURN OVER RAILWAY TO MANCHUKUO

TOKIO, March 23.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The soviet bowed its way off the Manchurian stage today at ceremonies marking the transfer of the historic Chinese Eastern railway to the new Japanese created empire of Manchukuo.

A check for 23,333,000 yen [the yen is currently quoted at about 27.8 cents], which Gen. Ting Shih-yuan, Manchukuan ambassador to Tokio, handed to Konstantin Yurenev, the soviet ambassador, officially clinched the bargain by which Manchukuo became sole owner of the railway.

[At Nanking early this month the Chinese foreign office declared China still retains her claim to part ownership in the railway, formerly owned jointly by China and Russia, and said the sale is considered "illegal."]

Thus ended Japan's long struggle to turn back Russia's glacier-like penetration into east Asia, which 40 years ago appeared irresistible, and thus was removed, diplomats agreed, one of the most prolific sources of Russo-Japanese friction.

FIRST—Signing of the sale agreement and the general protocol governing the transfer.

SECOND—Hirota and Yurenev exchanged notes, in which Japan gave and Russia accepted guarantees for Manchukuo's fulfillment of the terms of the sale contract.

THIRD—Yurenev, Ting, and Hirota signed a tripartite protocol providing for the establishment of a commission to arbitrate disputes that may arise concerning Manchukuo's payments.

Two-thirds Payment in Goods.

The sale price for the road, agreed upon after two years of hard fisted bargaining which several times threatened to collapse entirely, was 140,000,000 yen, of which two-thirds may be paid in goods during the next three years.

The Chinese Eastern railway, the principal instrument of Russian Imperialism in the far east and the foremost factor in the economic development of Manchuria, consists of the main line 922 miles long right across the rich granary of North Manchukuo from Manchuli on the west to Pogranichnaya on the east, and a branch line 149 miles long between Harbin, headquarters of the system, and Changchun, or Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo. Serving the trunk lines are 526 miles of branch lines, mostly leading to coal mines and lumbering concessions.

The documents signed today marked, the Japanese believed, final victory for Japan in the four decades of Russo-Japanese competition for possession of Manchuria, which flamed into sanguinary war at the turn of the century and kept the two great Asian powers almost at sword's points during the last three years.

MAYOR ASKS CITY TO SHOW FLAG ON ARMY DAY, APRIL 6

Mayor Kelly issued a proclamation yesterday asking Chicagoans to observe April 6, which congress has designated as National Army day, by display of the flag and other appropriate decorations. The proclamation was presented to Col. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, commander of the Chicago chapter of the Military Order of the World War, in the mayor's office. Col. Fitzpatrick announced there that Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, had accepted the invitation of the Chicago chapter to attend the Army day banquet to be held at the Hotel Sherman.

BANK HELD UP SECOND TIME BY SAME BANDIT EXACTLY YEAR LATER

Nashville, Tenn., March 22.—[Special.]—With a brusk "Hello, you know me, don't you?" Herman Sadler, 25, Tennessee's public enemy No. 1, walked up to L. O. Hardaway, manager of the Woodland street branch of the American National bank here, this afternoon and poked a pistol in the startled bank official's face.

Just one year ago today at 1 o'clock Sadler had done the same thing to the same man and escaped with $6,000. Today, he got between $4,000 and $5,000 and, like last March 22, escaped.

Last March 22, Sadler and Ed Bell, another ex-convict, shut Hardaway and two other employes of the bank in a lavatory while they looted the cages.

Today, Sadler was not accompanied by Bell, for the reason that Bell was in jail at Murfreesboro after being captured last night on a charge of being one of three bandits who held up the First National Bank of Smyrna at noon yesterday.

Bell was captured with George Borrolla, who fled from the Tennessee state prison with him on Feb. 26. The two were caught, but the third bandit escaped. He was identified as Sadler.

After gathering up all cash in sight, the two bandits backed out of the door and ran to their car, parked half a block away. Hardaway, grabbing up a pistol, fired two shots in vain.

Woman Embezzler Taken to Dwight Reformatory

Miss Bertha C. Burnham, 39 years old, was taken to the woman's reformatory at Dwight yesterday to begin serving a sentence of one to ten years for embezzlement. Miss Burnham pleaded guilty to taking $23,859 from the Evanston real estate firm of Quinlan & Tyson, where she had been employed as a bookkeeper for 11 years. She was sentenced by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Nick Centoni, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge John C. Lewe.

Three "pants bandits" captured last Monday were held to the grand jury in bonds totaling $100,000 by Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court yesterday. The three have confessed 87 robberies, in many of which they compelled their male victims to surrender their trousers to hamper pursuit.

One of the men, Casper Stevens, 21 years old, offered in court to make as many refunds to their victims as the robbers' finances would permit, but there were no takers. "We don't want any hard feelings," Stevens explained. The others are James Moore, 22 years old, who came to Chicago with Stevens from Nashville, Tenn., and Isadore Bergman, 19 years old, 741 North Clark street. Jack Bell, 21 years old, Stevens' roommate at 159 West Oak street, was cleared of complicity in the robberies and was released.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Five youths were held yesterday by state's attorney's police after they had confessed the theft of 17 automobiles. They are Stanley Jakalski, 16 years old; his brother, Joe, 17 years old, both of 3408 Colfax avenue; Harry Surdyk, 25 years old, 3410 Saginaw avenue; Stanley Mazurski, 17 years old, 3415 Essex avenue, and Casimir Barczak, 19 years old, 3013 East 83d street. The arrests followed the request of Mazurski's father that police find his son. They boy was found sleeping in a stolen automobile. Questioned, he confessed the thefts and implicated the others.

Four Piece Single and Double Breasted Sports Back Suits Introduce a New Fabric

This new fabric got its start 14,000 feet above sea level. Thibet, the home of the Cashmere goat that produces a fleece that is reputed to be the finest and softest of any obtainable. But we're ahead of our story. The Cashmere goat came into this as a result of an attempt to duplicate a fabric, woven centuries ago, so fine in quality it was confined for the use of emperors alone. It is the nearest duplicate of this rare fabric that we've used in the tailoring of these sport back suits. In colors that can be worn now with one pair of trousers that matches the coat—the other pair is a pair of slacks in contrasting color.

THE WARWICK is one of thirty different styles of hats in our spring collection. It has a 2¼ inch snap brim for men who have found the 2⅛ inch brim too narrow and the 2½ inch too wide. The Warwick also has a hand stitched bound edge with the binding running much wider on the under side than you are accustomed to seeing it. The idea behind this is to keep the brim edge firm and straight. In dark grey, light blue, grey and brown.

SOX LOSE, 7 TO 4; PIRATES POUND KENNEDY

Defending Champs Eliminated.

St. Mel advanced to the quarter-finals of the national Catholic interscholastic basketball tournament by defeating De Paul academy, 23 to 18, last night at Loyola gymnasium. Passing crisply and displaying a snug defense, the west side team, which holds the Chicago Catholic league championship, took the lead soon after the opening whistle and never was headed.

St. Mel, playing confidently, protected its advantage in workmanlike fashion to lead, 4 to 1, at the quarter, 14 to 8 at the half, and 17 to 13 at the third period. From that point the west siders moved smoothly to a handy victory.

Semi-finals Tonight.

The other teams in the quarter-finals are Central Catholic High school of Fort Wayne, Ind.; St. Francis Mission school of South Dakota, St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky.; St. Mary of Huntington, Ind.; Catholic High school of Baton Rouge, La.; St. Mary of Anderson, Ind., and Spalding institute of Peoria.

The quarter-finals will be held at 1:30 this afternoon and the semi-finals this evening. The championship will be decided tomorrow evening. St. Mel will be matched against Spalding in the quarter-finals, Central against St. Francis, St. Xavier against St. Mary of Huntington, and Catholic of Baton Rouge against St. Mary of Anderson.

Champs Are Beaten.

The defeat of Catholic High school of Joliet, defending champion, marked afternoon play in the tournament. The overthrow was accomplished by Central Catholic High school of Fort Wayne, Ind., 29 to 21.

In defeating the title holders, the Fort Wayne team made one of the most brilliant comebacks of the tournament. Central was unable to score a field goal in the first quarter, and at one time in the second period, was trailing, 10 to 1. Then the Indiana boys began working together and cut Joliet's advantage to 13 to 10 at half time. Soon after the start of the third period, Central took the lead and held it the rest of the way.

The St. Mary team of Anderson, Ind., gave the crowd some of its most exciting moments by getting up in the last minute to beat Marmion of Aurora, 33 to 31, in the first evening game. Outweighed and apparently hopelessly outclassed, St. Mary's trailed, 7 to 2, at the quarter and 18 to 7 at the half.

During the third quarter, the Indiana boys began working with amazing precision and cut Marmion's advantage to 21 to 19.

Even, Then Ahead.

The most sensational playing of the tournament occurred in the fourth quarter. Baskets by Dell and Seal carried Marmion to a 25 to 19 lead before St. Mary started its most determined drive. This attack was climaxed when Broderick sent the ball into the net with three minutes to play, tying the score at 29 to 29. Then Wenckus counted for Marmion, giving the Aurora team a 31 to 29 advantage. This set the stage for little Gene Zagorski of St. Mary to make a hero of himself. With a minute to go, Gene tied the score, and a few seconds later tossed in the winning basket.

Spalding of Peoria advanced to the quarter-finals by virtue of a 22 to 21 victory over St. Catherine High school of Racine, Wis. Neither team was able to score consistently, the Racine boys being particularly inaccurate. They missed repeated opportunities to tie the score in the last few minutes of the game.

Champaign, Ill., March 22.—[Special.]—Thornton of Harvey, 1934 runner-up to Quincy, tonight reached the semi-final round of the Illinois high school basketball tournament by smashing through Peoria Central, 45 to 28, in one of four games played here this afternoon and evening.

Moline also entered the semi-finals with a 31 to 30 victory over Quincy, Illinois champions, this afternoon. The winners built up a comfortable lead of 30 to 21 at the end of the third period, and just succeeded in halting the titleholders' furious fourth quarter drive.

Springfield Beats Champaign.

It took some time for Springfield to get started against Champaign, but a second half attack resulted in an easy 28 to 16 triumph over the home town quintet. Pekin wound up the evening's program with a smashing 37 to 19 victory over Hillsboro to complete the semi-final round bracket. In tomorrow afternoon's contests, Moline will play Springfield and Thornton and Pekin will battle for the right to enter the final.

Thornton, south suburban champion, took the lead over Peoria Central following the first tip-off, which Hellman tapped into the hands of Boudreau. The Harvey five then rammed in eight points in the first three minutes. Leu counted for Peoria, which then took time out. Thornton kept driving hard and ran its first period margin to 18 to 5.

Hellman Scores Nine Baskets.

Boudreau continued his clever floor play and constantly fed the ball to Hellman, who, playing under the basket, dropped in nine field goals for Thornton. Central tried to combat this team play with long shots, which accounted for the victory over Danville last night. Richardson created a flurry of excitement when he sank four baskets from far out, but Thornton raced along to 28-17 at the half.

SIR MALCOLM WON'T GO AFTER WATER RECORD

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell today denied he has made any plans for an assault on the world speed boat straightaway record, now held by Gar Wood.

"I know there is a boat being built in England," he admitted as he played golf this afternoon after seeing Bluebird, his seven ton racing car in which he set a land speed record of 276.816 miles pere hour here March 7, safely crated and stowed aboard a flat car for shipment to New York.

JOE LOUIS SIGNS TO BOX CARNERA FIFTEEN ROUNDS

Jacobs appeared at the meeting of the New York state athletic commission today with contracts bearing the signatures of Carnera and Louis and asked permission to stage the 15 round bout at the Yankee stadium June 19.

The commissioners, while acknowledging the contracts, withheld action until their next meeting Tuesday. They said their understanding was that the Garden's contract with Carnera gave that organization first call upon his services and permission would not be granted without further investigation.

Leader—Georgetti.

BULLETIN.

Three teams were tied for the lead in the six-day bicycle race at the Stadium at 3 a. m. today. They were the Letourner-Georgetti, Schaller-Buhler, and Reboli-Thomas combinations, all with 2,099 miles 9 laps. Letourner and Georgetti had a wide advantage in points.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Eyelids were beginning to grow pretty heavy when the field in Chicago's 33d international six day bicycle race wheeled into the final day of the grind early this morning.

But the customers, including the barber from Cicero who has spent his annual vacation at the race, rubbed the sleepiness out of their eyes and watched some of the most exciting riding of the week just before the final day of the long journey to no place got under way.

Red Devils Take Lead.

When the jamming was over and the riders began to sip broth—Letourner, the Frenchman, took a jigger of brandy—and nibble at baked apples and baked potatoes in order to keep going another 23 hours the situation was just this:

The Red Devils, Letourner from France and Georgetti from Italy, had picked up twelve laps in three days of furious riding and were sailing along in first place.

A lap behind them and tied for second place were Jerry Rodman of Chicago and his partner, Charley Ritter of Newark; the German team of Willie Krosmeier and Lothar Ehmer; Tony Schaller of Chicago and Ernest Buhler, the watchmaker from Switzerland, and Tino Reboli of Newark and Bobby Thomas of Kenosha.

12,000 Cheer Rally.

The rally which sent Letourner and Georgetti up with the leaders thrilled 12,000 spectators, although it was not unexpected.

You stay-at-homes missed something. You should have heard the Germans in the crowd shout "Come on, Krosmeier" when the German boys put on their rally to climb up into a tie with the leaders and later drop back a lap behind them.

Peden, Audy Move Up.

Torchy Peden and his riding mate, Jules Audy, put on the drive last night they expected would carry them into contention. Between 9 and 10 o'clock their rallies gave them three laps, and as the 11 o'clock sprints started they were only five lengths out of the lead after being 13 laps behind 24 hours earlier.

They could not keep going with Letourner and Georgetti, Schaller and Buhler and the German team as the midnight hour neared, however, and dropped back to six laps behind.

Spencer, Testa Out.

The team of Freddie Spencer, Newark, N. J., and Eddie Testa, of Los Angeles, Cal., one of the most popular in the race, was forced to the side lines at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Testa quit the grind at noon due to a bad case of tonsilitis.

Spencer waited until 4 o'clock, and when he couldn't get a partner, he too, withdrew. Spencer had been riding one of the greatest races of his career.

2—Lipsett, Peden, Wissel, Martinetti.

CUNNINGHAM AND HORNBOSTEL WIN IN TORONTO MEET

TORONTO, Ont., March 22.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham tonight won the mile race at the Maple Leaf indoor games in 4:17.7. The time failed to eclipse the new Canadian indoor record of 4:16.6 Cunningham set at Hamilton Wednesday night. Cunningham trailed during the early running, but came up fast on the last two laps to beat his University of Pennsylvania rival, Gene Venzke, for the 20th time in 21 meetings. Bill Daley of Detroit university was third.

Chuck Hornbostel, sensational Indiana half miler, won his specialty in 1:57.4. Hornbostel took the lead at the gun and never was threatened. Elton Brown of Kansas City, one of the few runners ever to defeat the Hoosier, was second, 20 yards behind.

BY ED STORER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 22.—The Italian boxing federation elimination tournament to choose Golden Gloves boxers to represent Italy in Chicago on May 22 will reach a climax tomorrow night with the final interregional match between Latium and Lombardy at Jovinelli hall in Rome. It will be the last of the team contests in which 16 regions of Italy have competed against each other.

One of the most interesting fights tomorrow will be that between the heavyweights, Angelo Saruggia, of Milan, truck driver, 24, and Furio Meniconi, of Rome, a 23 year old butcher.

The Lombardy team is composed chiefly of Milan boys, who are favorites in tomorrow's matches. They won a previous encounter in Milan, 12 points to 4. If Saruggia, who is the idol of Milan fans, beats Meniconi tomorrow, he is likely to be the Italian heavyweight in Chicago.

He's a Big Fellow.

Saruggia is a strapping, six footer of 209 pounds, who has won nearly all his fights by knockouts, and has never been defeated.

The boxing federation is giving Italian amateurs a thorough test under fire to determine the eight best boxers in the land. First elimination matches were staged between the chief towns of the various regions such as Piedmont, Lombardy, Latium and Sicily. This was done during January. It was followed by two months of weekly matches between the regional squads picked as a result of the January fights. Later Lombardy beat Emilia, and Latium beat Campania, to qualify for tomorrow's match.

Results of these team fights will give the selection committee an approximate idea of each boxer's ability. After tomorrow will come the individual amateur championship bouts at Milan, lasting from April 3 to 6. On April 7 the Golden Gloves team will be named by a special committee of the Italian national Olympic committee.

Guinchi Named Coach.

Boxing critics expect that the following men will be chosen: Heavyweight, Saruggia, if he wins tomorrow; light heavyweight, Luigi Messina of Venice; welterweight, Otello Binazzi of Rome; lightweight, Marino Facchin of Genoa, a dock worker; featherweight, Alessandro Bonetti of Rome; bantamweight, Ulderico Sergo of Trieste; flyweight, Ortensio Valli of Rome or Enrico Buratti of Milan.

After selection of the team it will begin training under Leo Giunchi, who will accompany the team to Chicago. Giunchi is a former amateur featherweight who has fought in the United States.

Lasky, 3 to 1 Choice, Beaten by Braddock in Fifteen Rounds

New York, March 23.—[Special.]—James J. Braddock added another upset to his list tonight when he pounded out a fifteen round triumph over Art Lasky of Minneapolis at Madison Square Garden.

The Jersey heavyweight, who has been relegated to the ranks of also rans more than once during the last five years, fought one of the best fights of his long career to turn back the heavily favored Lasky in a savage struggle that thrilled a crowd of 11,000.

Braddock entered the ring a 3 to 1 short ender and even his most loyal supporters were not too optimistic regarding his chances. But Braddock demonstrated once more, and quite convincingly, that odds and form mean nothing to him. Depending almost entirely on his right hand, which he has used in more than twenty knockouts, he met Lasky's charges confidently, drew his best fire, and struck back often enough to register a decisive victory.

Spoils Lasky Strategy.

Lasky tried to keep the fighting at close quarters in the hope of wearing down Braddock, for whom the fifteen round route was expected to prove too arduous. But Braddock refused to be drawn forward. Instead, he kept out of range of his rival's charges often as he could, and speared Lasky time and again with long right hand punches to the head.

The ease with which Braddock landed his right surprised the crowd and confounded Lasky. The latter seemed unable to offer any defense for this weapon, although he tried such expedients as switching to a southpaw stance and trying to fight out of a crouch. Using his left mainly to paw Lasky's guard aside, Braddock repeatedly drove his right at his foe from all angles, and a good number of these blows landed squarely on the chin.

Lasky showed plainly enough in his losing fight that he can take a punch. His knees sagged often under the force of Braddock's blows, but he managed to keep his feet all through the bout.

Ten Rounds for Braddock.

Braddock, in the opinion of most observers at the ringside, took ten rounds, as against five for Lasky. One of the rounds credited to Lasky was taken away from Braddock because of a low punch.

The fans were shouting for a knockout as early as the first round, when Braddock planted several rights on Lasky's chin. They reckoned without the Minnesotan's durability, however. He absorbed the punches gamely and fought back with spirit. Braddock swept through the next two rounds, scoring often at long range, but dropped the fourth when Lasky succeeded in battering the midsection effectively with both hands.

The fifth went to Lasky when Braddock struck the low blow that drew a caution from Referee Arthur Donovan. His better in-fighting earned Lasky the sixth and seventh rounds, but Braddock came back to take the next two with his incessant right hand attack.

GRIMM LISTED AS JUROR IN FEDERAL COURT

Charley Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, is wondering whether Federal Judge John P. Barnes is a baseball fan. It was disclosed yesterday that Grimm has been summoned to serve as a petit juror in Judge Barnes' court, beginning April 1 and continuing the rest of the month.

To those who wondered whether Kiki Cuyler and Tuck Stainback et al. would be able to make base hits with their manager in a courtroom court attachés dolefully whispered that Judge Barnes has never been known to adjourn a court to attend a baseball game.

5 RUN ATTACK IN 7TH BREAKS UP MOUND DUEL

Bush, Weaver Check Chicagoans.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 22.—The White Sox did pretty well for a time this afternoon, but eventually fell apart in their efforts to administer a spanking to the Pirates of Pittsburgh. By virtue of a rally in the seventh inning the Pirates put together a cluster of five runs and this proved more than sufficient to flatten the Chicago boys in the second game of the pre-season series. The score was 7 to 4.

GUY BUSH.

The best thing the Sox did was to furnish a little excitement for Guy Bush, the Mississippi gentleman, whom they knew well as a Cub. The swarthy southerner pitched for five innings and surrendered seven hits, but was damaged in only one inning. That was the fourth, when three hits scored two runs and brought on a 2 to 2 tie which existed until grief in various form appeared in the seventh. By this time another ex-Cub, big Jim Weaver, was performing in Bush's place.

Sox Pitching Not Bad.

Despite the quantity of Pirate runs the Sox pitching wasn't exactly bad. Les Tietje allowed one tally in three innings and Whit Wyatt one in a workout of equal length. Both runs were inspired by Arky Vaughan and Gus Suhr. Then Vern Kennedy took charge in the seventh and should have yielded only one run as the result of an outbreak by the Waner boys, but Luke Appling erred in a pinch. This gave Vaughan a chance to swing with a couple of mates on base and he harvested three runs by the simple method of knocking the ball into the seats.

Even though hopelessly in arrears, the Sox at least put on a finishing touch that was encouraging. They did nothing with Weaver in the sixth and seventh, but frisked him for a bargain run in the eighth. Then in the ninth Pinch Hitter Mule Haas singled for a starter. Hayes and Bonura did the same, but just when it was beginning to look promising Vaughan leaped up and stabbed a whistling liner that Washington had propelled.

Double Play Halts Sox.

The Sox had a chance to do some business with Bush in the first inning but a double play intervened. Hayes led off with a single over Traynor's head and was forced by Radcliff. Bush hasn't forgotten about that homer by which Al Simmons beat him 1 to 0 in a city series game a few years back, so he endeavored to bear down when the Milwaukee Duke faced him. Bush bore down so hard that Simmons walked. This put matters in the hands of Bonura. He slapped one squarely on the nose, but the agile Vaughan speared it on the bounce and set the twin killing in motion.

Tietje gave the Pirates nothing except a string of three outs in their first inning, but they helped themselves to a couple of hits in the second, thereby scoring a run. The annoying Vaughan opened with a single to right. Traynor was held down on a fix to Radcliff, whereupon Suhr singled to right, sending Vaughan to third. Vaughan sprinted home while Dykes was throwing out Lavagetto. Tietje finished the inning without further mishap and then completed his day's chores by dropping three Pirates in a row in the third.

Wyatt Yields a Run.

Jocko Conlan, batting for Tietje, furnished a two bagger to start the Sox third, but the next three batters couldn't give aid to the cause. The escape from this pinch inspired the

Loop Theaters Show Golden Gloves Movies

"Golden Gloves Champions," the official motion picture of the 1935 CHICAGO TRIBUNE boxing tournament, opens in the loop tomorrow at the Clark and the Monroe theaters. The film will run simultaneously in Cleveland, Detroit, Omaha, Minneapolis, Louisville, Nashville, Indianapolis and more than 200 other cities in territory represented in the world's greatest boxing meet.

Opening with the "Golden Gloves Salute," sung by the Lawson Y. M. C. A. Glee club, under the direction of Frank Bennett, the picture runs for 31 minutes. It closes with the presentation of team trophies to the Catholic Youth Organization of Chicago and to the Cleveland, O., Plain Dealer, whose representatives made the best showing of any of the 40 teams in the tournament.

Among the personalities who appear are Lynn Waldorf and Tug Wilson of Northwestern university's athletic staf; Dr. Walter E. Meanwell of Wisconsin, Lieut. Tom Hamilton and Rip Miller of the United States Naval academy, Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, Frank Thomas of Alabama, Noble Kizer of Purdue, and Barney Ross, world's lightweight champion, who is a graduate of the Golden Gloves tournament.

Doctors, clerks, referees, judges, and other officials who help to make the show a model of promotional efficiency all are filmed at their various tasks.

NEW SPARMATES HELP CONDITION GOLDEN GLOVERS

Borchert Goes Home with Cut Lip.

An S O S call for additional sparring partners to help the Golden Gloves boxers train for their intercity bouts with New York at Chicago Stadium next Friday was answered yesterday by Tom Kenneally, Joe Mendoza, Robert Mills, and Harold Brown. Kenneally, Catholic Youth organization heavyweight, and Brown, lightweight member of last year's intercity squad, were eliminated in the recent Tournament of Champions. Mills is light heavyweight representative of the Savoy Athletic club. Mendoza was 175-pound runnerup to Buck Everett in the 1930 Golden Gloves Tournament. He has been fighting professionally the last three years.

All four were quickly sent into action at the Illinois Athletic club, Kenneally against Otis Thomas, second string heavyweight; Mendoza with Lorenzo Pack, 200 pound champion; Mills against Dave Clark, No. 1 middleweight, and Brown with King Wyatt, welterweight titleholder. More aid will be forthcoming today when Chester Rutecki, C. Y. O. 147 pounds, reports. He may be named alternate in place of Bill Borchert, Green Bay, Wis., who went home yesterday because of a cut lip and homesickness.

Layoff McReynolds.

Elwood McReynolds, 147 pound finalist, showed up with a slight bump over his right eye. Coach Johnny Behr fears it may develop into a boil and so he gave the colored boxer a layoff. Thus McReynolds had to be content with four rounds of floor work only.

Outstanding practice bouts yesterday were those between Harold Brown and Champion Wyatt, Lovings and Champion Gamiere, Kenneally and Thomas, and Charles Wozniak and Herman West.

Wyatt and Brown leveled punches at each other's chin for two rounds. They were followed in the ring by Lovings and Gamiere and the battling was so spirited coaches called a halt in the second round and warned each to be careful of possible eye injuries and broken hands. West and Wozniak put on an old fashioned slugging bee for a couple of rounds and Kenneally outboxed Thomas for three frames.

Thomas Gets Test.

It was agreed that Thomas obtained his best workout of the week against Kenneally. Observers pointed out that the drill aided the big colored boy, correcting his judgment of distance and improving his wind.

Lorenzo Pack was given a fast two round workout by Mendoza. He was scheduled to go another round, but it was called off when the champion landed on Mendoza's head so hard he bruised his hand. Pack displayed considerable pep and refusal to allow him to go another round piqued him.

No Boxing Tomorrow.

He asserted again that most of the squad was close to fighting weight and the greatest worry at present is to keep each battler from going stale. George Dungey, lightweight, who weighed 144; Gamiere, 135 pounder, who was at 140; Pat Kelly, featherweight, at 129½, and Andy Scrivani, 126 pounder, who scaled 131, were the only members of the fat boys' brigade yesterday. Although the four showed signs of worry over the surplus poundage, Behr was pleased.

"I wish the other members had a little excess weight to work off," he exclaimed. "It would guarantee the 16 to be named to fight the eastern invaders would be at top strength."

In an effort to give the light boys a chance to put on two or three extra pounds the coach will forego boxing tomorrow, the first respite since the boxers assembled at the I. A. C. a week ago last Thursday. He issued a warning, however, that any one caught loafing will forfeit the rest period.

NEW YORK OFF TODAY

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—Confident and ready, New York's Golden Gloves team will leave tomorrow afternoon from Grand Central station for Chicago and the eighth annual intercity matches in the Stadium next Friday night. A squad of 41 boxers will make the trip on the Golden Gloves section of the Twentieth Century.

Two stopovers will be made. The special will be pulled on a siding at Schenectady, where the Glovers will engage in road work and shadow boxing. A stop will be made for the same purpose at South Bend, Ind. The Golden Gloves special is scheduled to arrive in Chicago Sunday morning and a workout will be held that afternoon.

HAWKS OPEN CUP DEFENSE TONIGHT WITH MAROONS

Montreal Fans Make Chicago Favorite.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 22.—The world champion Chicago Blackhawks and the Montreal Maroons, those two old feudists of ice hocky, who have been known to make the Hatfields and McCoys look like a couple of sororities, will have at each other in the Forum tomorrow night in the first game of the second place bracket for the Stanley cup and the world's championship.

Immediately after they have been separated for the evening they will entrain for Chicago, where the argument will be resumed on Tuesday evening at the Stadium. The team scoring the most goals in the two games will then become eligible to meet the winner of the third place series between the New York Rangers and the Montreal Canadiens for the right to battle Boston or Toronto, first place opponents, in the Stanley cup finals.

Hawks Are Favorites.

Tonight even the staunchest Maroon fans were willing to admit the Hawks resembled a right smart hocky team, too smart probably for the Maroons, who have never been overly troubled with brightness. There is more than one reason for the misgivings of the natives, not the least of which is the manner in which the Chicagoans finished the season. They closed with three handsome victories over the Bruins, Rangers, and Canadiens. Among other items which make the Hawks favorites in the two game series are:

1. The presence in the Chicago cage of Lorne Chabot, who won the Georges Vezina trophy for gate tending this season by restricting his opponents to 88 goals.

2. The happy comeback of Howie Morenz, the Babe Ruth of hocky, who played a major rôle in each of the Hawks' finishing victories.

3. The physical and mental condition of the Hawks, who went through their final workout at the Forum this afternoon with a verve worthy of champions.

Overconfident? O, No!

This is not, of course, to say that the Hawks have been taken down with overconfidence. Clement Joseph Loughlin, who has made good in a dozen ways in his first year as manager of the team, has seen to that. In fact, he strapped on a pair of skates himself this afternoon and dashed around to give the players advice.

There is plenty of incentive for both teams to play a lot of hocky tomorrow night. For the Hawks there will be the matter of the guilefui Thomas Patrick Gorman, who piloted them to the cup last year and then switched to the Maroons this year. Then, too, there is big Lionel Conacher, who played a deal of hocky for the Chicagoans before joining Gorman. The Hawks would consider it a successful series if they could embarrass the Messrs. Gorman and Conacher, if none else.

The Maroons, aside from the prestige of eliminating the champions, would like to even up that little matter of last year, when the Hawks knocked them out of the playoffs in the semi-finals.

Connell Is Keyman.

The big red team is fairly well equipped to do just that, too, for they have at goal Alex Connell, who, after a year's retirement, came back to be second only to Chabot. It is generally suspected that Connell almost single handed kept the Maroons in the running more than once, turning in nine shutouts, one more than Chabot.

On the strength of their six meetings during the regular season the Hawks and Maroons would appear to be even, each having won three. The Chicagoans won by scores of 4 to 3, 3 to 2, and 6 to 1, while the Maroon decisions were secured by 2 to 1, 4 to 0, and 3 to 0. That amounts to 15 total goals for Montreal to 14 for the Hawks.

As an indication that there is no love lost between the two, referees were forced to all 49 penalties on the two teams, five of them majors, growing out of fisticuffs. The Hawks have proven themselves better stretch runners, collecting 7 of their 14 goals in the third period.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, Blackhawk owner, and William J. Tobin, the club's secretary, will arrive tomorrow morning and will accompany the team back to Chicago.

CUP FIGHT BEGINS

New York, March 22.—(AP)—A six team race for the Stanley cup, the battered 42 year old trophy that symbolizes the world professional hocky championship, begins tomorrow.

The schedule, involving six of the nine National Hocky league clubs, sends the Toronto Maple Leafs against the Boston Bruins in the league championship series starting at Boston, the Chicago Blackhawks against the Montreal Maroons in the second place series, and the Montreal Canadiens against the New York Rangers.

The Boston-Toronto duel, bringing together the teams that finished first in their respective divisions, is decided on a best three out of five games basis, with the winner receiving the prince of Wales trophy and qualifying for the Stanley cup finals. The second game will be played at Boston Tuesday and as many more as are needed to reach a decision at Toronto.

The second and third place games are two game total goal affairs starting at Montreal tomorrow and at New York Sunday. The second games are scheduled for Chicago and Montreal Tuesday. The winners then will meet in another two game struggle for a final berth.

Lakeland, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—Two left hand rookies, Clyde Hatter of Louisville and Joe Sullivan of Hollywood, pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 12 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

The youngsters held the world champions to 7 hits while the Tigers were pounding Paul Dean and Bill Walker for 16. Walker was charged with the loss. Dean pitched the Cards into a two run lead in the first five innings, but Walker was nicked for 10 hits and 10 runs in the next three.

The same lineups the Tigers and Cards used in the world series faced each other, including Owen and Medwick, co-stars of a near series riot. The Tigers showed some world series jitters and committed three errors. Score:

St. Louis [N.]	004	000	010— 5 9 1

GIANTS GET GOING.

Mel Ott smacked his first home run of 1935, scoring Shortstop Dick Bartell in the first inning. In the ninth the Reds tallied twice and had the tying run on third, but Jim Bottomley lined out. Score:

BROWNS WIN, 9-1.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns continued their march toward the championship of the grapefruit league today by lambasting the House of David for 15 hits and a 9 to 1 victory.

Beau Bell was the leader of the attack with two doubles and a single. Alan Strange got there singles. The bearded boys, who beat the Browns, 1 to 0, last season, were helpless after the first inning. Score:

House of David	100	000	000—1 4 3
St. Louis [A.]	311	100	12*—9 15 1

Batteries—Janesko and Kearney, Rangnow; H. Mills and Grube.

Cold Weather Keeps Cubs, Seals Apart

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 22.—The Chicago Cubs did not play Lefty O'Doul's San Francisco Seals this afternoon, the reason being that it was very, very cold hereabouts. Though the weather outlook is none too good, the promoters are hopeful of putting on a contest between the two teams tomorrow.

The game that was frosted today was No. 8 on the Cubs exhibition schedule and the first to be canceled, though Vice President Charley John Grimm tried to get the affairs in Modesto and Oakland called off. The minor league tour through which the Cubs have been wobbling was arranged by the Los Angeles management as a good-will pilgrimage.

Coast Cool to Majors.

The good-will of the Coast league has been negligible ever since the major league teams hit California, and if Vice President Grimm has anything to do with things next year, and the Cubs do return to California, he probably will insist upon the Chicago club handling its own exhibition plans instead of delegating the matter to the Los Angeles outfit.

No one in the Chicago delegation seeks to make out that San Francisco is anything short of being one of the world's greatest cities, but it certainly isn't any place to fetch a ball club in March. The three Coast league teams in the bay district do not train here, themselves—the Seals train at Fresno, the Oaks at Modesto, and the Missions at Marysville.

Lee Ready for Debut.

Both Seals and Oaks moved in temporarily to engage the Cubs. The Missions would not risk the rigors of hometown weather and refused to come here from Marysville for the one Cub game offered them.

Tomorrow, if the game is played, Bill Lee and Clay Bryant will pitch. It will be Lee's first exhibition appearance. Bill's sore back is supposed to be almost all right. Bryant is feeling all right, too, except that the White Sox bruised his feelings some last week-end.

In the women's singles, which began last night, the defending titleholder, Louise Hofmeister, conquered two opponents, Lorraine Zimmer and Pearl McCoy. Mrs. Florence O'Connell gained the semi-finals with victories over Mary Victor, 6-1, 6-0, and Frankie Ford, 6-2, 6-3.

After holding Davenport to a two point lead during the first half, Bronson High school faltered and its opponents advanced to the semi-finals with a 38 to 27 victory. Davenport's flashy offense failed to function until the second half, but the winner held a 17 to 15 lead at the half.

Mason City beat Murray, 35 to 24, to advance to the semi-finals tonight.

PICARD HOLDS 3 STROKE LEAD IN CHARLESTON GOLF

Charleston, S. C., March 22.—(AP)—Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., today produced a par equaling 71 and increased his lead to three strokes at the three-quarter mark of the $3,000 Charleston open golf tournament. Harry Cooper, Chicago, his leading rival after 36 holes, required 73.

As Cooper slipped, Harold McSpaden, Kansas City, took over second place with 71 for a a total of 211. Picard has 208.

Cox, who opened with 69, but carded 73 yesterday, was tied at 214 with Leo Mallory, Noroton, Conn.; Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Tex., and Ky Laffoon, Denver.

Despite his 67, Smith still was well back of the leaders with an aggregate of 216. Plagued with putting difficulties on his earlier rounds, he scored 75 and 74.

Both polo teams have won four straight matches this year. Illinois is the defending champion, having defeated the Wildcats in the season's final match last year.

Pirates to step out and score another run in the fourth, this being off Wyatt. Vaughan and Suhr also were involved in this enterprise. The former beat out a hit to Dykes with one out and went to second on Traynor's tap to Wyatt. Suhr then singled to right and Vaughan dashed across the plate. The next batter, Lavagetto walked, but Padden was easy on a grounder to Appling.

The Sox burned up three hits off Bush to get across two runs needed for a tie in the fourth. Bonura started it with a healthy single to left. A fly ball disposed of Washington, but Appling nicked the rightfield screen for two bases, putting Bonura on third. Both scored when Dykes singled past Lavagetto. The next two batters did nothing. Bush regained control of the whip in the fifth, his concluding inning. He yielded one hit in this session, Radcliff being the producer, but neither Simmons nor Bonura could stir up a rally.

Kennedy Fans First Batter.

The unhappiness in the seventh didn't begin to spread until after Kennedy had started his day's assignment by fanning Lavagetto. Padden singled to center and Weaver struck out. L. Waner singled through short and P. Waner dropped a looping single in front of the ponderous Washington in left. This scored Padden. The side should have been retired on a roller by Herman, but Appling fumbled, L. Waner scoring. Then Vaughan whacked his homer into the right field bleachers for three more runs.

The run scored by the Sox in the eighth started with Simmons, who went hitless from start to finish, surviving on an error by Lavagetto. He counted later on a single by Bonura and a couple of infield outs. Then the final run registered in the ninth on singles by Haas, Hayes, and Bonura. In between the last two hits Radcliff and Simmons popped out.

The Sox and Pirates will put on another act of their preseason show here tomorrow. John Michals, George Earnshaw, and Babe Phelps will handle the pitching for the American leaguers. Cy Blanton and Ralph Birkofer will perform for the Pirates.

COLLEGE MAT MEET DOMINATED BY OKLAHOMA

Bethlehem, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—Dominated by wrestlers from Oklahoma A. and M. and Oklahoma university, with Lehigh and Illinois given outside chances, the eighth annual national collegiate wrestling tourney reached the quarter-final bracket tonight.

The Oklahoma Aggies, defending the crown they won a year ago, piled up six points in the preliminary competition and qualified seven of their eight contenders to hold a highly favored position for the remaining three rounds of the two day meet.

Oklahoma university was close behind with five points and Lehigh and Illinois rated next with three each.

Doermer Browning, 165 pound wrestler from Oklahoma A. and M., suffered a broken leg in the second round competition. The injury occurred in the course of his bout with Port Robertson of Oklahoma university.

FOOTBALL MEN DESERVE PAY, RED GRANGE SAYS

Bloomington, Ill., March 22.—[Special.]—"Football players deserve to be paid something," Harold [Red] Grange, former star of the University of Illinois and Chicago Bears, told central Illinois fans here at a meeting of the Chow club.

"The day will come when there will be no secrecy about the fact that college players are compensated. It's no secret now, but is not admitted openly. The practice is so general that George Halas, Bears' coach, is jokingly accused of cutting the salaries of recruits from colleges. The player works hard several hours every day and is entitled to some consideration, if no more than room and board."

Grange called ridiculous the Big Ten conference rule that prevents a coach being drawn from professional football. He stated that pros study the game scientifically over a period of years and are among the best equipped men available for coaching. He urged his audience to use its influence to have the rule revoked.

"As to the comparison of college and professional football, there is none," Grange asserted. "In college, only the surface of the real game is scratched."

BALTUSROL GOLF CLUB IS AWARDED '36 OPEN TOURNEY

New York, March 22.—(AP)—The 1936 open golf tournament was awarded today by the United States Golf association to the Baltusrol Golf club, Short Hills, N. J., the dates to be announced later.

Assignment of the seventy-two hole medal play tournament to Baltusrol just about assures the east of the three major championships next year. The 1935 amateur and women's tournaments will be played in Cleveland and Minneapolis, respectively. It the usual course is followed, these tournaments will revert to the east in 1936. This year's open will be played June 6, 7 and 8 at Oakmont, near Pittsburgh.

Baltusrol, the scene of six U. S. G. A. championships in the past—open in 1903 and 1915, amateur in 1904 and 1926 and the women's in 1901 and 1911—is one of the longest standing member clubs of the parent organization.

It was organized in 1895 by Louis Keller, who built a nine hole course on his estate, and the same year became a member of the U. S. G. A., which at the time was one year old.

During the intervening forty years the club has developed into two eighteen hole courses, in attractive woodland, and is regarded as one of the foremost tests of the game in the country. The courses measure 6,500 yards each, with pars of 72.

Of the championships held there in the past, the most memorable is the 1926 amateur tournament. Bobby Jones was beaten in the thirty-six hole final by George Von Elm, 2 up and 1 to play.

SIX LITTLE 19 TRACK RECORDS PERILED TONIGHT

Athletes Gather for Fifth Indoor Games.

Records in at least six events are expected to be broken today when nearly 200 athletes from the leading Illinois colleges gather at Naperville for the fifth annual Little Nineteen indoor track and field meet at the Merner fieldhouse. Fourteen teams will compete.

Preliminaries will be held this afternoon starting at 1:30 o'clock. The finals will begin at 7:30 this evening.

Eight champions, including the North Central relay team, will defend their titles. With records in the 440, 880, 60 yard low hurdles, 60 yard high hurdles, shot put, and the pole vault likely to be broken, the meet is expected to draw a capacity crowd.

Vault Mark in Danger.

The vault record of 12 feet 8¼ inches is almost certain to fall. Lloyd Siebert of North Central, defending champion, set a new record at the Central Intercollegiate meet two weeks ago and if he repeats his leap he will soar to a new Little Nineteen mark. He will face stiff opposition from Romeis of Carthage and Romain of Wheaton, who consistently reach 13 feet.

Capt. Charley Culver of North Central, champion in the 880 yard run, will concentrate on the one mile. Prominent in the half mile are Hein of De Kalb, Forbes of Illinois college, and Keyes and Haag of North Central. All have turned in better than record time this year.

Chester Newberg of St. Viator, defending champion and holder of both the indoor and outdoor records in the shot put, and Tony Blazine of Illinois Wesleyan, second place winner last year, will be matched with Bauder of Carbondale Teachers in a duel which in all probability will send the record of 42 feet 11½ inches into the discard.

Normal Leads in Entries.

The 60 yard low hurdles race is expected to be the most closely contested event with Sieber, defending champion; Twister Crisp of Carbondale Teachers, and Mason of Bradley battling for first. The record of 307 was set in 1931 by Dunlap of Illinois college.

Illinois Normal has the largest team entry, with 23. North Central has entered 19.

Cleveland and Riding Club to Battle Tonight

The two most formidable teams in the Metropolitan Polo league, the Cleveland Riding club and Chicago Riding club, will meet tonight before what promises to be a packed house at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The game will close the league season, after which the western section of the national championships will be held in the same arena, starting Wednesday night.

Winner to Face Artillery.

The winner of tonight's game will go into a tie with the 124th Field Artillery for first place in the senior division, with four victories and one defeat as their season's record. The loser will wind up third in the standings, with three triumphs and two losses. Plans for a playoff with the Artillery are under way.

The first game of the double header will be between the Kansas City Polo club, consisting of Roy Nafziger, Al Sisler, and Lieut. H. D. [Cowboy] Reed, and Culver Military academy. The latter will line up with Cadets Ellison, Fullerton, and Vorhees.

HORNETS TO PLAY

Another change in schedules, the second this week, will pit the Hornets against Lincolnshire in the feature game of the polo double header at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street, this evening.

Lieut. Laurence Ladue will play back for Lincolnshire, marking the first change in the lineup in three years. Rounding out the Lincolnshire lineup, Edwin Hirsch, veteran star, will play No. 2 and John Bairnsfather will be at No. 1.

31 SCHOOLS TO RACE IN BUTLER RELAYS TONIGHT

Most Indiana schools are entered, including Notre Dame, Indiana and Purdue. The University of Michigan is defending champion.

Preliminaries will be held tomorrow afternoon. Events tomorrow night will include university two mile relay, college two mile relay, university and college medley relays, university one mile relay, college and university one mile relays, pole vault, high jump, shot put, 60 yard low hurdles, 60 yard high hurdles and the 60 yard dash.

Park District Fives Start Tourney Tonight

Play in the finals of the Chicago Park district's city-wide boys' 115 pound basketball tournament will start at Franklin Park, 14th and Kolin streets, this evening. Of the 49 teams originally entered in the tournament, 10 will enter the city finals to compete for the Chicago Park district championship. Four games will be played tonight.

Mostly About Dogs

By Bob Becker

Arrange Busy Calendar

There is a decided "spring upturn" in canine activities around Chicago judging by the number of events that the dog fanciers have marked on the calendars.

For example, a new kennel club is being organized in Indiana to be known as the Lake County Kennel club. The entries for the Chicago Kennel club show March 29, 30 and 31, are showing an increase over last season. The Culver Military Academy Amateur Field Trail association has announced its spring trial for April 6 and 7, with Martin Hogan of Barrington as the judge. The Tri-City Kennel club has just closed its entry lists for the dog show which will be held in Moline April 2 and 3 with a gain in entries over last season's show.

And last but not least, the training class for owners of springer spaniel hunting dogs will get under way the afternoon of March 31, at Aurora. A. P. Moecher, secretary of the Springer Spaniel Club of Illinois, and well known field trial enthusiast, is the "teacher." This training class will give Chicagoland two types of schools for dog owners and their canines. The owners of Dobermanns, Great Danes, German Shepherds, Schnauzers and other working breeds have been attending classes for some time to learn how to train their own dogs under the sponsorship of the Amateur Training club. [If interested in this type of training class you should get in touch with William Schafer who recently moved to Glen View when he acquired the site and buildings of the Wauchow kennels.]

The springer spaniel training class which will teach a springer owner how to train his dog will fill a need in Chicagoland. For the first time the average springer owner, who would like to train his dog but naturally does not know many of the fundamentals in this work, will be able to learn how to go about making his spaniel heel, sit down, etc.

As part of the first lesson motion pictures of eastern springer spaniel trials will be shown at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon March 31. A. P. Moecher, 41 Island avenue, Aurora, is the man to get in touch with if you want to get into this training class.

The Tri-City Kennel club announces that O. Jenkins of New Philadelphia, O., A. W. Brockaway of Chicago, and Forrest N. Hall of Dallas, Tex., will do the judging for its dog show. Mr. Brockaway will pick the best dog in the show. A number of dogs which will compete for honors in the Chicago show will be sent on to Moline for the Tri-City club affair.

Marigold Ring Card Complete with Six Bouts

The boxing card to be held at Marigold Gardens Monday was completed last night by Promoter Maurice Rivkin. Billy Miller, Milwaukee middleweight, and Puggy Weinert, Chicago, will be opponents in the eight round main event. The weight has been set at 150 pounds. Nestor Bruggman, Catholic Youth organization welterweight, and Sailor Pearson will meet in the six round semi-final. Other bouts:

Adam Smith, Rockford, vs. Russ Conklin, Centrallia [4], heavyweights. Meyer Frager, Chicago, vs. Lou Vine, Chicago [4], junior welterweights. Al Fahl, Sioux Falls, S. D., vs. Johnny Norton, Chicago [4], junior welterweights. Buck O'Neil vs. Kay Hoffman [wrestling].

Personalities of the sports world will attend the opening this afternoon of a new loop gymnasium at 227 West Madison street. It will be under the management of Felix Kolk, physical culture and boxing instructor. He and his partner, Paul Poloski, Milwaukee wrestling promoter, have sent invitations to Barney Ross, Joe Louis, Gus Sonnenberg, Danno O'Mahoney, and members of the Illinois athletic commission.

Dave Biggerstaff, 40, who spent most of the last 25 years as a boxer, matchmaker, and manager, died the other day at Frances Willard hospital following an operation for ulcers. Funeral services will be held at 4848 Fulton street this morning. Burial will be at Woodlawn cemetery. He leaves a widow and five children.

Solly Dukelsky, Chicago middleweight, left for Cleveland last night for an eight round contest there Monday against Paul Pirrone. . . . Johnny Phagan, west side 160 pounder, Manager Bill Bostelmann, and Larry Amadee, trainer, will head for Pittsburgh tomorrow where Phagan clashes with Marty Simmons for ten rounds Monday. . . . Al Diamond, Paterson, N. J., is in Detroit training for a six round encounter with Gene Stanley at the Olympia next Friday.

Jimmy Christy, Frank Battaglia, and Davey Day will be out of action for the next few weeks because of injuries. . . . Babe Daniels, junior welterweight protégé of Jack Hurley, will engage in his first match at ten rounds against Billy Vaughn at Billings, Mont., a week from tonight. . . . The next amateur card at the 124 Field artillery will be held Tuesday, with Jerry Mulcahy, Heniff's gymnasium, pitted against Willie Boudier in the windup.

Ten hocky teams, each a midwest sectional champion, are ready for the western division National A. A. U. hocky championship tournament, which starts at the Stadium with two games tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Three of these teams are from Minnesota, the Eveleth All Stars, defending champions, Minneapolis Ascensions, and State Teachers college of St. Cloud. Michigan will have two entries in Sault Sainte Marie and Muskegon. Eagle River, four times Wisconsin champions, will represent the Badger state.

These six clubs with four local entries, Vodrazka Hornets, Boston Store, Zaby Ruths, and C. Y. O. All Stars complete one of the finest fields ever lined for a hocky tournament here.

First round games tomorrow afternoon will bring together State Teachers of St. Cloud and Muskegon and Minneapolis Ascensions and C. Y. O. In the evening the Boston Store will play Sault Sainte Marie and Eagle River will battle the Vodrazka Hornets.

BROTHERS WIN BOXING TITLES AT NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., March 22.—[Special.]—Two pairs of brothers dominated the finals of the Notre Dame boxing tournament here tonight as eight champions were named.

Hal Gooden of Tulsa got a three round decision over Bill Whitman of Memphis to retain his 112 pound title. His brother, Howard, defeated Franklin Fox of Newark, O., in three rounds in the 126 pound class.

Bart McKernan, former Chicago C. Y. O. champion, won a close three round decision from James McGuire to retain his 160 pound championship. Bud Marcy, 135 pounds, another Chicago C. Y. O. champion, lost to Tom Durkin of Fort Worth, Tex. Marcy was cut over the left eye in the second round and had to concede a technical knockout.

Jess Roces of Manila, P. I., won the 118 pound title on a three round decision from Joe O'Neill of Springfield, Mass.

TRIANGULAR MEET AT IOWA CLOSES INDOOR SEASON

Iowa City, Ia., March 22.—[Special.]—Competition equal to that of last year when Iowa, Wisconsin, and Northwestern, finished with 55, 54, and 54 points, respectively, in an outdoor meet is expected here tomorrow when the three schools meet in the final indoor triangular track meet of the 1935 season.

Wisconsin will be a slight favorite because of apparent better balance in all events, although Iowa should score heavily in the dashes, quarter mile, and hurdle. It is expected that the scoring of Francis Cretzmeyer, Hawkeye all-around star, will be cut in half by the elimination of the low hurdle and broad jump event.

Cretzmeyer, however, is expected to score in the 60 yard high hurdles and high jump. Wisconsin will be led by Kleinschmidt, Big Ten champion half miler; Rubow, 45 foot shot putter, and Scharff and Parker, 13 foot pole vaulters.

Although the Wildcats are less formidable than last season, they are expected to make a good showing in several events. Farley of Northwestern is a favorite in the mile run.

Yale Swimmer Breaks 300 Yard Medley Record

New York, March 22.—(AP)—Norris Hoyt of Yale smashed the intercollegiate record for the 300 yard medley swim in the preliminary heats of the 29th annual individual championships of the Intercollegiate Swimming association today. He covered the distance in 3:46.4 to better by eight-tenths of a second the old national intercollegiate and I. S. A. marks established by Walter Ashley, Rutgers.

WORK AND WAGES REVEAL UPTURN IN CHICAGO AREA

February Employment Up 1.6%, Pay Rolls 2.5%.

Employment and pay rolls in the Chicago metropolitan area increased 1.6 and 2.5 per cent, respectively, during February over January, compared with gains of 2.4 per cent in employment and 4.3 per cent in wages for the state as a whole, the Illinois department of labor announced yesterday.

In the Chicago suburban cities there was a rise of 2.9 per cent in the number employed and an upturn of 4.5 per cent in pay rolls. Increases in both work and wages were concentrated for the most part in the metals, machinery, and conveyances, and the food, beverage, and tobacco groups.

Most Groups Show Gains.

Employment in the city alone increased 1.5 per cent and wages gained 2.3 per cent over the preceding month, with all manufacturing industries except the food and printing and paper goods groups showing advances in both employment and wages. The foods group reported declines in both the number of workers and wages, and the printing and paper goods group increased employment but paid less in wages.

Among other cities in the state which reported increases in both employment and pay rolls was Aurora, where the number of workers rose 3 per cent and wages 15 per cent. Upturns of 12.2 and 27 per cent in employment and pay rolls, respectively, were reported in Joliet. Metals and public utilities largely accounted for the gains.

Other Cities Report Advances.

Peoria had an increase of 4.2 per cent employment and 6.7 per cent in total wages over January. The metals and foods groups contributed most to the improved showing, although utilities reported a relatively large increase in pay rolls, but decreased employment.

Employment was up 6.1 per cent and pay rolls 9.2 per cent in Rockford. Sharp gains in both categories were reported by the metals and wood products groups. In Springfield there were gains of 1.5 and 11.8 per cent in employment and total wages, respectively.

Alton and East St. Louis reported declines in both employment and pay rolls, the Kankakee-Bradley area reported increased employment, but lower pay rolls, and Decatur showed a drop in employment, but a gain in pay rolls.

WARN OF UNION DICTATORSHIP IN LABOR MEASURE

The Wagner labor disputes bill is a vicious attempt to create union labor dictatorship and promote strife in industry, the Illinois Manufacturers' association charges in a current appeal to its members to express their opposition.

It says the bill is designed to unionize industry, nullify employé contracts, destroy company unions, guarantee the irresponsibility of labor organizers, assure domination of labor boards by organized labor agents, make the labor boards star chamber bodies, provide unlimited investigations by snoopers, making labor board rulings practically final, force the closed shop on employés, make the term 'employés' include strikers and exclude strike breakers, provide a gag rule for industry, and place a premium on strikes.

Boeing Airplanes Loses $225,977 in Four Months

Seattle, Wash, March 22.—(AP)—The quarterly consolidated report on Boeing Airplanes today showed a net loss of $225,977 for the last four months of 1934. The report covered the Boeing Airplane company and its subsidiaries, the Boeing Aircraft company of Seattle, and the Stearman Aircraft company of Wichita. C. L. Egtvedt, president of the parent company, said "unsettled conditions, increased costs, a decreased volume of business" and developments of new airplane designs combined to cause the loss.

DEMAND TAKING RESERVE BOARD OUT OF POLITICS

Bankers' Group Asks Changes in Bill.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—A firm stand for absolute independence of the federal reserve board from partisan or political considerations was expressed today by a special committee of the American Bankers' association, headed by President Rudolf S. Hecht, in a report to Chairman Steagall of the house banking and currency committee, presenting the association's views on the proposed banking act of 1935.

The bankers' committee declared that provisions affecting the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and for amendment of the banking act of 1933 were acceptable in the main. It suggested further study, however, of the provision which would make it necessary for all nonmember banks to become member banks of the federal reserve system by July 1, 1937, if they were to continue to enjoy insurance.

Urge Independent Reserve Board.

To remove the threat of domination of the reserve board by any administration, the committee recommended that the board's membership be reduced from eight to five by retirement of the secretary of the tracsury and controler of the currency as ex-officio members, and decreasing the number of appointive members from six to five. As soon as a vacancy occurred among the appointive members, the post would be left vacant. The committee also proposed that board members and the governor be removable only for cause.

Since the adoption of the federal reserve act informed opinion in congress and among bankers has favored a federal reserve board which might be described as "the supreme court of finance and banking," the committee held. It felt that if this was accepted, many of the recommendations for concentration of power in the central body could safely be accepted.

Bankers Suggest Other Changes.

The committee agreed that if the secretary of the treasury and controler were removed from the board, it might be desirable to give the President power to select the governor of the board and to provide that the governor's term be the same as that of the President.

As to open market operations, the committee suggested that they be placed in the control of a committee of the five members of the reserve board and four governors of federal reserve banks.

Permitting advances up to 75 per cent of the actual value of real estate, if amortized within 20 years, was opposed, the committee believing that such loans, if permitted under regulations of the board, should not exceed 60 per cent of the appraised value.

Want All Banks in Reserve.

It was recommended also that authority be given to the board to waive not only capital requirements but all other requirements for admission of insured nonmember banks to the system and to admit existing banks to membership permanently without requiring an increase in capital, providing their capital was adequate in relation to their liabilities.

Prof. Irving Fish of Yale testified before the committee that the bill "has, in my opinion, the greatest potentiality for good or ill of all bills that have been put forward in this administration." His analysis of the bill was this:

"Rightly administered it could bring us out of the depression in a few weeks. Wrongly administered it could thrust us deeper in."

He said a "still better way" would be to replace the federal reserve by a monetary authority, withdrawing the government from the banking business altogether.

GOLD CLAUSE IN GERMAN DOLLAR BONDS IS UPHELD

AMSTERDAM, March 22.—(AP)—A Netherlands court today ruled that the gold clause contained in a dollar loan issued in 1927 by the Osram company of Berlin is valid in requiring interest to be paid in gold or its equivalent value.

The company issued a $5,000,000 loan, partly in Sweden and Switzerland, but mainly—$3,000,000 worth—in the Netherlands. The bonds contain a clause stipulating that the capital and interest are payable in United States gold dollars of the then current weight and alloy.

Amsterdam's Effectenblad, a commercial publication, sued for the payment in gold, and the judge found for the plaintif, deciding that the 7 per cent interest must be paid in gold or its equivalent value.

It was stated that an appeal was probable but not definite.

CHEVROLET NOW EXCEEDING 5,000 UNITS PER DAY

Detroit, Mich., March 22.—[Special.]—Production of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks is now exceeding 5,000 a day, W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, announced today. Last Tuesday a total of 5,162 units rolled off the production lines of the company's nine assembly plants, he said.

"Within a week or ten days," Holler said, "the new assembly plant at Baltimore, with an estimated yearly capacity of 80,000 units, should begin to add its daily quota to our present facilities.

"Deliveries of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks from Jan. 1 to March 10, the latest figures available, are 30.3 per cent above the same period in 1934."

Holler said unfilled orders on hand are nearing the 100,000 mark.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

"Mr. President, there is not enough money in circulation in the United States to pay for this 5 billion dollar appropriation.

"Mr. President, there is not enough money in the United States to pay the interest on the national debt for one year."

This was the theme song of the inflationary drive opened in the senate today, in connection with the 5 billion dollar work relief bill, while the house of representatives was passing the 2 billion dollar Patman greenback bonus bill.

Senator Talks All Day.

Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], a silver inflationist, with platinum hair, occupied the entire legislative day haranguing bored senators on his amendment to purchase 50,000,000 ounces of silver a month, until that metal equaled one-fourth the value of the monetary reserve and to issue against it silver certificates at $1.29 an ounce. He said this would result in a total currency expansion of about 1 billion 500 million.

Before beginning his tirade, however, Thomas served notice on the senators that if they defeated this amendment he would call up another which was an exact duplicate of the Patman bonus bill.

Waiting for Thomas to conclude was Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], who has an amendment of his own to finance the entire 5 billion dollar spending program with greenbacks.

Glass Repeats Bill Act.

Senator Thomas was occasionally interrupted by Senator Carter Glass [Dem. Va.], whom he accused of dominating the financial policies of the United States for a quarter of a century. The irascible Virginian wanted it understood that he was not responsible for the monetary policies of the last two years and repeated his act with a $20 bill.

"The senator knows the promise on this $20 bill to pay in gold or other lawful money is a lie," Glass said. "He knows also that if he has any gold in his pocket he is a criminal."

When Thomas said he was not guilty, Glass shouted: "I am."

Senator Thomas spent an hour demonstrating a gold embossed disc, which by folding operations showed how much the President had devalued the gold dollar and how much further he could devalue it.

Glass Hits Uncertainty.

When he folded and unfolded the 10 per cent flap, explaining this as the President's leeway, Glass demanded:

"Doesn't the senator understand that that's what's the matter with business in the country? Nobody knows how much that chip is going to be taken off and it has created a state of uncertainty and terror."

Thomas said he agreed with Glass and thought the President ought to proceed at once to take the other 10 per cent.

"Why not just take it all?" Glass asked, scornfully.

Assails Scarcity Policy.

"They are trying to make things high by making them scarce," he said. "They kill pigs and slaughter cattle by the thousands, plow up cotton and curtail wheat production, while all the time people are going hungry. Mr. President, that makes prices high, but the food is gone and there is no money to buy what is left. I propose to make prices high and keep the pigs and the cattle and the wheat.

"The people need money, and it is the duty of congress to provide it for them."

Thomas did not conclude his speech and Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson indicated that he would move for a cloture rule unless the works bill could be adopted tomorrow. After conferring with Vice President Garner, however, he modified this by saying "the will of the senate" would be tested by motions to lay the amendment on the table.

ARGUE 7 TO 8% IS FAIR RETURN ON EDISON STOCK

A fair rate of return for Commonwealth Edison company stockholders would be about 8 per cent, according to Ivan Dobson, of Standard Statistics company, and approximately 7 per cent, according to Edward B. Hall, vice president of Harris Trust and Savings bank, who appeared before the Illinois commerce commission as witnesses in the Edison rate hearing yesterday.

Harry R. Booth, attorney for the commission, asked Hall what he thought a proper ratio between bonds and stock for a utility such as Edison should be. Mr. Hall said that a "50-50" basis, in his opinion, was proper, although a ratio of 60 per cent bonds and 40 per cent stock could be supported. Commonwealth Edison capitalization is about 48 per cent bonds and 52 per cent stock.

Dobson said rate of return for investors should be based on the amount of money actually invested in productive properties, in contrast to utilities' contention generally that reproduction costs of plants should be the criterion. Dobson said that the investment basis gives a greater degree of security to stockholders.

WESTERN UNION SAYS TAXES TAKE 60% OF EARNINGS

New York, March 22.—(AP)—Taxes in 1934 absorbed about 60 per cent of the Western Union Telegraph company's net earnings and represented an amount equal to $5.25 for every share of capital stock outstanding, said the company's 1934 pamphlet report, issued today.

The net income for the year, as previously announced, was $2,243,000, equivalent to $2.14 a share of stock, against $4,365,000, or $4.17 a share, in the previous year. Gross operating revenues amounted to $87,230,000, an increase of $4,922,000 over 1933.

Freight Trafic Gain Exceeds Seasonal Rise

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Railway freight trafic last week showed more than a seasonal increase of 10,162 cars, or 1.7 per cent over the preceding week on a total of 597,432 cars, according to figures released today by the Association of American Railroads.

The total fell 30,117 cars, or 4.7 per cent, below the 627,549 cars reported in the corresponding week of 1934, but surpassed 1933 by 143,795 cars.

Heavier trafic in coal and miscellaneous freight largely accounted for the improvement over the preceding week, while the decline from a year ago was due to losses in grain and coal loadings.

Year's Loadings Lower.

Total loadings for the year to March 16 were 6,285,916 cars, compared with 6,344,942 in the corresponding period of 1934 and 5,270,980 in 1933.

Miscellaneous freight totaled 230,830 cars, an increase of 7,577 above the preceding week, 3,027 above 1934, and 80,054 above 1933.

Less than car lot merchandise amounted to 160,267, a decrease of 246 below the preceding week, and 5,926 below 1934, but an increase of 7,091 above 1933.

Live Stock Below 1934.

Live stock loadings totaled 17,162, an increase of 79 above the preceding week, but decreases of 2,268 below 1934 and 531 below 1933. In the western districts loadings were 9,049, a decrease of 1,993 below 1934.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—The National Industrial Recovery board today exempted the American Bridge company, Chicago, from all provisions of the retail solid fuel code, except the labor provisions, to the extent that the company sells coke exclusively to its employés.

UTILITY CONTROLED BY RFC MAY LOSE BLUE EAGLE IN LABOR ROW

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—The Laclede Gas Light company of St. Louis, controled indirectly by the RFC, stands in danger of losing its Blue Eagle as a result of a ruling by the national labor relations board that it has violated section 7-A of the NIRA.

The labor board found that the company had failed to bargain collectively with the Gas House Workers' union and that it had dismissed an employé for union affiliation.

The RFC control of the Laclede company came by way of the "Dawes bank" in Chicago, which defaulted in part on its $90,000,000 government loan. The RFC holds the Public Utilities Securities corporation stock as collateral for the loan. The Securities corporation controls the Utilities Light and Power company, which in turn controls the Laclede company.

The Laclede Gas Light company is given ten days in which to show its good faith by bargaining collectively with the union as the exclusive bargaining agent of its employés and to reinstate the dismissed conveyor belt operator, who was employed in the company's coke plant.

'JOKER' IN NEW YORK UTILITY MEASURE MAY BLOCK LOANS BY PWA

The bill which the federal Public Works administration drafted for the New York legislature, permitting New York towns to build municipal power plants with PWA funds, has had a joker inserted in it. It now requires that each town hold a referendum on the question before building a municipal plant.

This provision, President Roosevelt conceded, may so delay action that no city in New York could qualify for a PWA loan on a power plant before the entire 5 billion dollar work relief appropriation is allocated. The President said he wanted to allot the money with speed and that the referendum requirement, if kept in the bill, might block all New York power plants.

There is a growing feeling also that the New Deal may be forced to retreat on two other aspects of its power policy. The government probably will not go through with its threat to build a federal power station in New York City, and utility interests feel that they have blocked passage of the President's radical bill abolishing utility holding companies. They feel that the measure will be considerably toned down before passage.

BUSINESS LAGS DUE TO DOUBTS OVER U. S. POLICY

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—Merchants have been active during the last week in loading up their shelves with tempting Easter merchandise, but the consuming public has been scarcely more than sampling it, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. General industrial recession, weakness in commodity prices, and further postponement of political decisions complicate the outlook, the agency reported.

"With few exceptions, however, the retardation was not pronounced and was more in the nature of a period of relaxation after the steady climb since last October to regain sufficient strength to take advantage of the normal spring rise, which is about to start," the agency declared.

"The current slackening gives indication of being too short to lower the previous estimates on first quarter business volume set at 20 to 25 per cent above that of 1934.

One of the most serious drawbacks to any noteworthy expansion in the immediate future is the stubborn refusal of the majority of concerns to make commitments much beyond the limits of a month, the summary says. This is attributed largely to uncertainty as to the disposition to be made of the National Recovery administration and the effect its discontinuance might have upon price levels.

Last week's sales were 2 to 7 per cent higher in dollar value than during the corresponding 1934 week, the agency said, despite several spots which made a poorer showing. Despite serious duststorms in the middle west, which blocked the roads, retail sales in the farm districts were 5 to 7 per cent higher than last year.

PANAMA MAY DEFAULT, DUE TO U. S. GOLD STAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, March 22.—President Harmodio Arias today intimated that failure of the United States to pay its annuities for 1934 and 1935, amounting to $500,000, in gold by June would force the Panama government to declare a moratorium on certain United States loans.

The loans are guaranteed by the annuity payments and by the "constitutional fund" from the original $10,000,000 paid to Panama under the treaty of 1904 and invested in New York real estate.

Arias stated that the holders of bonds issued in 1923 had received only one-third of the interest due as a result of a moratorium agreement with bondholders entered into because of the depression. The agreement expires next November.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 22.—The National Steel Labor Relations board will sit in Chicago on April 3 to hear charges that the Republic Steel company, through its South Chicago plant, is guilty of violating section 7A of the NIRA, the labor department announced today.

New Canadian Budget Boosts Taxes on Rich

OTTAWA, Ont., March 22.—[Special]—Finance Minister Rhodes today submitted to parliament his annual budget which reaches deeper into the pockets of the well-to-do, leaves the rest comparatively unscathed, and lowers the tarif on a score of British products for which there is a big market in Canada.

The budget, which is the last he will present before the forthcoming general election, proposes a surtax ranging from 2 per cent on the first $5,000 of excess income to 10 per cent on incomes exceeding $200,000. The levies are placed on investment incomes over $5,000, but all incomes above $14,000 are classed as investment incomes.

Expect 12 Million Gain.

The income tax amendments are expected to bring an increase of $12,000,000 in revenues from that source, the finance minister said. Total revenues for the fiscal year are estimated at $392,100,000, an increase of $86,050,000. The budget estimated ordinary expenditures for the next fiscal year at $370,600,000, leaving a surplus of $21,500,000.

This surplus would be applied, according to the proposed budget, to offset the deficit created by extraordinary expenses, which, with capital expenditures, unemployment relief, railway deficits and other items, amounted to more than $117,000,000 in 1934-'35.

Rhodes announced a surplus of $2,700,000 for the last fiscal year. Receipts from taxation totaled $306,000,000, an increase of $34,000,000 over the preceding year. He reported that 1,229,935 men, women, and children are receiving government relief.

Negotiating Trade Pact.

He told parliament negotiations are in progress for trade agreements with several countries, among them the United States and Poland.

The tax on gold production which yielded $7,000,000 last year is made somewhat stiffer. Corporation income taxes are increased from 12½ to 13 1-3 per cent. A levy of 2 per cent will be made on gifts up to $25,000. On gifts of $50,000 it will be 3 per cent and over $1,000,000 it will be 10 per cent.

The excise duty on whisky and other spirits is lowered from $7 to $4 a gallon, which is expected to make whisky radically cheaper for the consumer. The duty on Scotch whisky is reduced from $8 to $5.

The dominion's deficit on operations last year was $69,300, compared with $76,300,000 the previous year. The Canadian National railway deficit was $48,000,000.

BELGAS TUMBLE AGAIN ON RUMOR OF DEVALUATION

Denial Brings Only Partial Recovery.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—Belgas were the object of all attention in foreign exchange markets today. The Belgian currency tumbled 65 points on a rumor of inevitable devaluation or abandonment of the gold standard and regained only a fraction of the loss when the report was flatly denied by Belgium.

Late in the afternoon the National Bank of Belgium in a telephone communication with London said the report that Belgium would go off the gold standard or devalue the belga was false. Financial circles in Brussels claimed surprise that the rumor should have spread in London and affected other exchange markets. Official sources reiterated that the country is determined to do everything to remain on gold and prevent devaluation.

Belgian Politics a Factor.

The opening in New York was at 23.15 cents, off 15 points from yesterday. The break in the belga followed the announcement from Brussels that Louis Franck, governor of the National Bank of Belgium, had declined to form a government.

The implication was that leaders whose insistence upon leaving gold has become stronger in recent weeks might have maneuvered into a position to control the next cabinet. The low point in trading here was 22.65 cents, off 65 points from yesterday's close. The denial of the London rumor by Brussels brought little reassurance to trading with the close at 22.85 cents, off 45 points from yesterday.

French Francs Steady.

The French franc opened here at 6.59⅜ cents, off ⅜ point from yesterday, but steadied at 6.59½ cents, just about the mark at which gold may be shipped here without a loss. There was a slight rally later, with the close at 6.59¾ cents, unchanged from yesterday.

At this price the dollar was worth $1.0054 against francs while the gold value of the dollar based on the old parity of the franc was 59.38 cents.

Swiss francs also closed unchanged at 32.37 cents, still below the gold import point. Dutch guilders again passed under the import point by dropping 3 points from yesterday to close at 67.62 cents.

Rise in Sterling Laggard.

Observers of gold movements have commented upon the failure of sterling to rise more rapidly with the weakening of gold bloc currencies, surmising that the British equalization fund might be responsible because of sales of sterling to accumulate a larger supply of gold.

The London gold price eased 5 pence today to 146 shillings 5½ pence, while gold taking amounted to £225,000, compared with £494,000 yesterday. At the time of fixing sterling stood at $4.76¼, making the dollar equivalent for gold $34.87½ per ounce.

Sterling opened here at $4.78, up 1⅞, but eased later to $4.77. Exchange operators did not consider the fluctuation in the face of the belga's slump as significant in view of the steadiness of the French franc.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—(AP)—Placing of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad in the hands of federal courts for reorganization seemed likely today as officials of the road and representatives of bondholders abruptly left a conference with Reconstruction Finance corporation officials.

Objections of the bondholders' representatives to a plan for reducing fixed interest charges two-thirds by issuance of income bonds and the claim of Reconstruction Finance corporation officials that fixed charges had not been reduced sufficiently were blamed for the situation. Negotiations, however, may be resumed.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—The New Deal, shifting the emphasis of its agrarian problem from production control to dust control, was planning today to pay $100,000,000 to American farmers whom they expect to do nothing in return.

Approximately $75,000,000 of the total is to be paid to hog producers for keeping this year's production within limits they cannot possibly reach, in view of the drouth, dust, and consequent shortage of corn. Spring wheat growers in the west and northwest are to receive about $30,000,000 in benefit payments without restricting their production. The latter, however, must agree to cooperate in case the federal government undertakes production control next year.

Most of the farmers will grow as many hogs as they can and plant as much spring wheat as they can, but they will be paid, officials admit, just as if they had actually made an effort to reduce their production.

The Agricultural Adjustment administration is going through with its contract with the farmers. In the case of hogs, the farmers obligated themselves to produce not more than 90 per cent of the 1932-'33 average. Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, virtually admitted today that it would be impossible for the farmers to raise that many hogs, anyway.

Refunding Leads Way to New Financing

Refunding operations which have increased rapidly in the last few weeks constitute the first step in rebuilding the capital market, Ralph T. Crane of Brown Harriman & Co., and president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, said yesterday at a luncheon given at the Palmer house by the association's central states group and the Bond Men's Club of Chicago.

While administration leaders may look askance at refunding in their desire to see business embark on new financing, the latter should follow naturally after refunding issues have determined a basis of credit and restored more nearly normal conditions, Crane said.

Following National Course.

The investment banking leader believes events are following a natural course, but hopes that a foundation is being laid which will prevent recurrence of the depression depths of the cycle when the investing public cried out for the scalps of investment bankers and stock exchange men.

"All we do is sell a little piece of green paper—it used to be yellow before certain happenings" [referring to the gold clause decision], said Mr. Crane. "The type on it always has been so fine no investor could read it, so we tell him what it says. When that paper doesn't act right, he does the natural thing—goes to his congressman, who is the friend of all, and asks for an investigation.

"When matters reach the investigation stage, I feel we are on our way out. In every depression time comes a demand for stock exchange regulation by the government. But fortunately, or unfortunately, previous depressions were over before congress got around to doing anything.

"Time Is Great Help."

"Time is a great help in everything, and congressmen found investment bankers and exchange men who were really honest. So congress was willing to listen. And when they came to hard points they left the making of rules to the Securities and Exchange commission."

Mr. Crane praised the SEC and its chairman, Joseph P. Kennedy, for a sane attitude which, he said, has resulted in regulations "now without excessive costs or risks."

However, Crane holds out no hope that human nature and the search "something for nothing" have changed, despite a belief that the public realizes more fully that there must be a balance between speculation and conservative investment for a sound, progressive economy. In times of prosperity, "venture capital" will be advanced freely, while industry and government pay high prices in interest for "investment capital," he said, while the reverse will be true in depressed times.

REPUBLIC STEEL ENDS DEFENSE OF MERGER PLAN

Cleveland, O., March 22.—(AP)—The defense rested its case today in the government's suit to enjoin the $330,000,000 merger of the Republic Steel corporation and the Corrigan, McKinney Steel corporation. The government contended the merger would be a violation of the Clayton anti-trust act.

Witnesses today substantiated testimony that the merger would not eliminate competition in restraint of trade as contended by the government. They testified the merger would intensify competition.

Judge Fred M. Raymond of Grand Rapids, Mich., will take records of the case, regarded as a test suit, home with him and will give a decision about May 1.

UTILITY BILL HITS MIDDLE WEST STOCKHOLDERS

Reorganization Plan May Be Abandoned.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Nearly 140,000 investors in the securities of Middle West Utilities company stand to suffer even greater loses on their investments in the stock and notes of that company if the Wheeler-Rayburn utility holding company bill is passed by congress it was learned yesterday.

These additional losses would occur through abandonment of plans for reorganization of this former $625,000,000 Insull holding company. Bank creditors of Middle West, it was learned, are contemplating ceasing their efforts to effect a reorganization of the company under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act in the event that congress passes the Wheeler-Rayburn act to force dissolution of utility holding companies by 1940.

Bill Forces Dissolution.

"What would be the use of going to a lot of work and expense reorganizing Middle West only to dissolve it during the next five years," an officer of one creditor bank said yesterday. We creditor banks would realize more through straight liquidation than we could possibly get through the reorganization plan that we have been working for, and we would be relieved of any responsibility to other interests."

Straight liquidation of Middle West, it was pointed out, would leave the creditor banks with control of practically all of the holding concern's interests in valuable operating company properties except Great Lakes Power company. In addition the banks would retain participating interest along with the noteholders in Great Lakes Power company and other remaining assets not represented in the actual collateral now held by the banks as security for their loans to Middle West.

Stockholders to Get Nothing.

In the event of liquidation Middle West's 115,000 common stockholders and 15,000 preferred stockholders would get nothing at all on their investment. Under the proposed reorganization plan the stockholders would be given warants which would give them an opportunity to stage a partial comeback in the event that the reorganized company should prosper. Liquidation also would cut deeply into the amount available for noteholders, the losses of the latter depending upon the amounts realized in the process.

Middle West owes the bankers $21,635,000, secured by collateral consisting largely of stocks and bonds of operating subsidiaries. The claims of the banks are distributed as follows: Bankers Trust company, New York, $7,451,000; Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, $4,972,000; First National bank of Chicago, $4,942,000; Central Republic Bank and Trust company, $1,820,000, and Halsey Stuart & Co., $2,500,000.

Changes Brokers Claims.

Under the proposed reorganization plan Halsey Stuart & Co. would take its own collateral and not be included in the plan. In the event of liquidation, however, Halsey Stuart & Co. would be privileged to demand participation in the general assets of the company to cover the deficiency in its collateral.

Middle West has outstanding $40,000,000 of notes, $69,771,000 of $100 par preferred stock, and $158,329,000 of $10 par common stock.

HARMONIC MEAN AVERAGE STUMPS EXPERT WITNESS

Explanation of "harmonic mean average" stumped Ivan Dobson, chairman of the bond and stock committee of Standard Statistics company, said to be the largest statistical firm of its kind in the country, when he was testifying as an expert statistician for Commonwealth Edison company at the rate reduction hearing case before the Illinois commerce commission yesterday.

Dobson was being cross-examined by William A. Dittmer, statistician for the commerce commission, and was unable to accoutn for several arithmetical aspects of an exhibit which he had submitted. He was asked if he knew what a harmonic mean average was, and said that he did not, but had heard of it.

Dittmer later explained that a harmonic mean average is "a reciprocal of the arithmetic mean of the reciprocals of N measures, N standing for the number of items being considered."

STOCKS FIRMER; RISE IN UTILITY SHARES SLOWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 22.—Some further improvement was recorded in stock prices today, the bulk of it on a flurry of buying orders which fluttered into the exchange in the late afternoon. Advances were confined to a point or less in the main and trading was at a somewhat slower pace than that of yesterday. Public utility stocks, which led Thursday's final hour rally, could not muster much momentum today.

American Telephone advanced fractionally on comparatively light turnover and slight gains were registered by Consolidated Gas, Public Service, Brooklyn Union, Standard Gas, United Gas Improvement, and others. American Water Works moved up a point or so and Lacleda Gas jumped $3 a share on the common and $5.75 on the preferred on a little late afternoon buying spurge.

Carloadings Help Rails.

The rails were a bit more prominent than usual, due to a considerable gain in the car loadings figures and the subsidence of the duststorms which have been affecting the future earnings prospects of Atchison and other roads traversing the western crops. Union Pacific scored an advance of nearly 2 points and gains of a point or so were made by Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna, Atchison, and others.

Tobacco stocks had little respite from the selling up to the late afternoon turn in price trends and most issues of the group touched new lows. Liggett & Myers B sold down more than 2 points before attracting support and Lorillard and Reynolds declined moderately. American Tobacco issues stood up the best of the lot, finishing with gains of a point on both the common and "B" shares.

Among the higher priced issues, Allied Chemical was prominent on the rally, rising 2½ points on the company's earnings report.

Merchandise Issues Sag.

The merchandise group did not perform so impressively. Spiegel-May-Stern dropped 4 points on a run of selling orders in the forenoon and succeeded in recovering only a point or so of its loss when things began to brighten up. Other shares of the department were inclined to lag.

Reports of price cutting and lower profits worked against the liquor shares. Oils showed a somewhat better undertone, but were no great shakes on the final showing.

So far as price movements disclosed, the passing of the Patman inflationary bonus bill by the house had no effect on trading sentiment, having been pretty generally anticipated in the speculative community.

PREDICT FIGHT FOR PRESIDENCY OF N. Y. EXCHANGE

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—An open fight for the presidency of the New York Stock exchange appeared inevitable today when friends of Richard Whitney, the incumbent, organized aggressively to promote his candidacy for reëlection. The elements of conflict spring from the fact that the nominating committee, which traditionally has determined the exchange's choice of a president, is said to favor Charles R. Gay, senior partner of Whitehouse & Co., as the nominee over Mr. Whitney, who is rounding out his fifth term in office.

Efforts are being made by a neutral group to effect a compromise which would result in the reëlection of Mr. Whitney for another term and the selection of Mr. Gay as vice president, to succeed to the presidency a year hence. Friends of the latter doubt, however, whether he and his supporters would accept such a solution.

GAINS OF 25 TO 30 CENTS IN LARD AS SHORTS BUY

Efforts on the part of shorts in lard to reduce their commitments found offerings small yesterday. Some improvement in the shipping demand for cash lard was also reported and the removal of hedges against the business helped along an upturn which did not culminate until the close. Net gains were 25 to 30 cents. Strength in hogs, grain, and cotton were the bullish influences. Bellies were 5 to 15 cents higher for the day. Cash, loose and leaf lard were quoted at $13 and bellies at $16.37 per 100 pounds. Prices follow:

DR. CAVANAUGH, EX-NOTRE DAME PRESIDENT, DIES

Headed the University for Fourteen Years.

South Bend, Ind., March 22.—[Special.]—The Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. C., 64 years old, former president of Notre Dame university, died in the Community infirmary on the university campus here today after a long illness.

Dr. Cavanaugh entered St. Joseph's hospital here several days ago and was taken to the infirmary last Wednesday, when the last rites of the Roman Catholic church were administered.

With Father Cavanaugh when he died were Sister Evangelista of Mount Carmel hospital in Chicago, a niece; Catherine and Mary Cavanaugh of Chicago, nieces; Charles Cavanaugh of Salem, O., a brother, and the Rev. Joseph Burke, C. S. C., superior of the infirmary.

As president of the university from 1905 until he resigned on April 10, 1919, Dr. Cavanaugh was largely responsible for its growth to its present commanding position. Known as one of the outstanding scholars of the Roman Catholic faith and as an able leader of men, Dr. Cavanaugh also took an active part in civic affairs, gaining an international reputation as an orator and an author.

Born in Ohio.

The priest was born at Leetonia, O., on May 21, 1870, the son of Patrick and Elizabeth Cavanaugh. He was educated in the parish school in Leetonia and in Notre Dame university, where he was ordained April 21, 1894. The year of his ordination he became associate editor of Ave Maria, magazine published at the university, holding that position until 1905.

In 1908 Dr. Cavanaugh became rector of the Holy Cross seminary, of which he was superior when he relinquished the position to accept the presidency of the university in 1905. He resigned as university head after announcement of a new canonical law prescribing that community superiors must be changed every three years.

After his resignation Dr. Cavanaugh became professor of English at Holy Cross college in Brookland, D. C., but was recalled to Notre Dame university as an English professor in 1920, serving until 1931.

Stricken in Chicago.

While delivering the funeral sermon for Mrs. Joseph E. Bidwill Jr. in Chicago in 1923 Dr. Cavanaugh was stricken with serious illness while in the pulpit.

At the time of his death Dr. Cavanaugh was chairman of the Indiana compliance board of the National Recovery administration, and was also chairman of the Indiana commission of liquor control. He was a member of the national council of the Boy Scouts and of its national educational committee.

Among his writings were: "Priests of Holy Cross," published in 1904; "The Modesty of Culture," and a biography of Knute K. Rockne, famous football coach, both published in 1931. He was also the author of many magazine articles and other writings concerning the church.

The body of Father Cavanaugh will lie in state at the university administration building from 4 o'clock Saturday until shortly before solemn requiem mass at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

FISH CONVICTED OF SLAYING; TO DIE IN CHAIR

White Plains, N. Y., March 22.—(AP)—Albert Howard Fish, self-confessed slayer of 10 year old Grace Budd, was convicted tonight of first degree murder a verdict which makes mandatory a sentence of death in the electric chair.

Five and a half hours after the jury received the evidence, the wizened, 65 year old defendant was led from a detention cell to the Supreme court room to hear the verdict.

Fish's six children who had come to his aid in spite of his three bigamous marriages after their mother left him were not in court. It was the first session of the trial they had missed. They waited in a corridor. Mrs. Annie Collins, one of his daughters, collapsed.

Albert Budd, father of the child who was slain after she was lured by Fish to a cottage on June 3, 1928, was not in court.

Hands Knife to Her.

"He took the knife out of his pocket and handed it to me. He said, 'O.K., baby, I've told you that any time we had a difference of opinion and you felt it would develop into a fight, all you had to do was ask for your difference.'

"Then he made about two remarks. I don't care to say what they were, but they were insulting, rather pointed, and I told him to cut it out. He didn't do anything but just deliver another jibe."

Suddenly witnesses saw the young woman stand up. The knife blade sprang open. Her hand swept toward the man's heart and the blade went out of sight.

"After I stabbed him," the girl was quoted, "I said: 'I didn't mean it, Johnnie, I'm sorry.' I didn't want to hurt him; I just wanted to make him stop.

"He took the knife from my hand, closed it and placed it in his pocket. Then he handed me his bill fold and said:

"'Excuse me, please. Will you pay the waiter?'

"He walked about ten feet and fell dead.

Though he could get no specific reason for the stabbing from the girl, Prosecutor Culligan made public two letters which he said might throw some light on the case.

One note, written on a telegraph blank, was signed by Pierce. It was addressed to Montgomery, Ala. It read:

"I love you. I have come to my senses now. I trust you. I really do. That will never happen again. Please come back to me. I am lost without you. I have wired a ticket. Call at the ticket office. Wire me collect."

The other letter was written on stationery of the United States destroyer Babbitt and was sent from Annapolis, Md. It was signed, "Frank." One passage in it said: "Won't be long now when you'll be with me."

Pierce's roommate, Gordon Stevenson, a medical student at Tulane university, supplied police with more information about the history of the young writers.

She "Kicks the Habit."

He told of Pierce "running around with Miss King for about two months before bringing her to share the apartment." He said she was addicted to narcotics but that Pierce, who had also studied medicine at Tulane, and himself persuaded her to "kick the habit."

Pierce studied at Tulane until several months ago when he quit to go into the real estate business. Later he gave that up to do free lance writing for magazines. His father, John I. Pierce, widely known engineer, died eight years ago. It was said he left a sizeable fortune of which his son was executor.

Miss King told Pierce, Stevenson said, that she had been a newspaper woman and had written "sob stories" for papers in New York, Detroit, and Chicago. However, no record could be found of her employment in those cities.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Though Eddie Cantor will leave the air at the end of April, Dave Rubinoff and the orchestra probably will carry on with Ethel Merman, the star of "Anything Goes," who has appeared with Cantor in pictures, as the headliner. Ted Husing, too, is to stay with the show. . . . Gary Taylor, a baritone, may be the successor to Joey Nash with Richard Himber on the Champions' broadcasts. That name Nash has caused lots of grief on a program sponsored by another motor concern. . . . Frank Parker will make a guest appearance next week.

ETHEL MERMAN.

Goodman Ace of Easy Aces is writing a book about all the stage and radio people he has known. The title is "I." In his current air script Ace is out of business and contemplating a new one. He has invited the audience to send in suggestions—of the kind of businesses to avoid. And what a list he is getting. . . . Jack Fulton's mother used to be kept up at all hours of the night in order to hear him sing over the air with Paul Whiteman's orchestra. Now Jack has his own orchestra and a morning spot on CBS. Other day he got a wire from his mother reading: "Thank the Lord, you're on morning hour—we're able to get some sleep now."

Ray Perkins, who presides over the National Amateur hour, is having amateur headaches. He opened an engagement at Philadelphia theater with a troupe of his radio neophytes—and several insisted on star billing in the theater mazdas in advertisements. But they didn't get it. . . . John Fogarty, NBC tenor, opened at the Palace theater yesterday. . . . Jack Tarr, who sings and plays every evening with Keith Beecher's orchestra playing at the Stevens hotel over CBS, is a senior at the University of Chicago. He lives at the Delta Upsilon house.

Several minutes of Columbia's "Diane and Her Life Saver" show went out over both of National's chains the other evening through a blunder at telephone headquarters.

BIG CLIPPER SHIP IN TEST FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

New York, March 22.—(AP)—The giant clipper ship on a 2,600 mile nonstop test flight over the Atlantic ocean was reported to Pan American Airways headquarters at 10:40 p. m. [eastern standard time] tonight to be 370 miles from St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands.

This position would place the ship near its turning point in the Leeward Islands where it was scheduled to begin the return flight on its great circle route to Miami.

The flight simulated those planned for clipper ships as Pan American Airways planes spread their wings for trade over the Pacific from California to Honolulu and China.

The ship swept into the air from Biscayne bay at the international airport late today, and its six man crew expected to return about noon tomorrow.

At the controls was a veteran of 10,000 hours aloft, Capt. Edwin C. Musick, who has made 1,000 round trips over the Caribbean between Miami at Latin American ports. On the flying bridge with him was First Officer R. O. D. Sullivan, a former naval pilot who has flown for fifteen years.

Oakland, Cal., March 22.—(AP)—Maj. Chester Snow, in charge of the government's "robot" airplane here, announced tonight his resignation from the department of commerce staf. He declined to give the reason, but associates indicated a controversy over a projected Hawaiian flight was the cause.

Maj. Snow wrote out his resignation during today's test flight and telegraphed it to Eugene Vidal, chief of the bureau of air commerce at Washington, upon landing here again.

Associates in the flight tests said Maj. Snow felt nothing could be proved by further flights unless a longer one, perhaps to Honolulu, was made. Secretary Roper has withheld permission for such a cruise.

In his report Maj. Snow added that some interference from commercial radio stations had been received, but that the radio compass worked. They were not, however, able to make contact with any Honolulu radio stations.

The plane ran into rain and clouds and at one time one of its engines lost revolutions, probably on account of ice, Maj. Snow reported. He said it averaged 155 miles an hour and returned on the Oakland radio beam between layers of clouds from off Point Sur.

RADIO EXPERTS SEE NEW SHORT WAVE DISPLAY

More than 2,000 radio technicians and service experts witnessed a demonstration of nine centimeter [ultra short wave] transmission by Dr. Irving Wolff, physicist of the RCA laboratories, Camden, N. J., at the opening of the third annual convention and radio trade show of the Institute of Radio Service Men in the Hotel Sherman last night.

Transmission in this subshort wave field opens up a new field of hitherto undiscovered scientific data, according to Dr. Wolff, who said it may have definite uses in television. These waves vibrate at a speed of 3 billion 3 hundred million times a second, almost 5,000 times the rate of those used in radio station W-G-N's transmission. The demonstration revealed that radio waves at this speed have several of the qualities of light waves. They may be bent, deflected and reflected after the fashion of light.

The Institute of Radio Service Men is a national organization, with units in all large cities, operating to maintain technical and ethical standards in the radio service and repair field. The convention will close tomorrow.

An exhibit of servicing and scientific radio equipment is on display in conjunction with the meeting.

First Week-End of Spring Will Be Busy One

Parties for Students Add to Festivities.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THIS, the first week-end of the spring, will be a gay one, with numerous parties both in town and in the country, and quite a bit of extra festivity because of there being so many college girls and boys at home for their spring vacations.

A young English girl, Miss Patricia Benn, who arrived Thursday to visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal, in Winnetka, will be the raison d'être for two parties tomorrow, a tea that the Boals are giving at their home and a supper that Miss Leslie Wilson and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Wilson, will give for Miss Benn and her cousin, Miss Henrietta Boal.

Miss Boal arrived from Vassar yesterday and Miss Wilson, who also goes to Vassar, arrives today. Last night Philip W. Moore Jr. entertained at a small dinner for Miss Boal and her English cousin, and there will be several other parties during Miss Benn's visit of several weeks.

Miss May Stillwell, who was with her mother, Mrs. Glidden Osborne, in England until last summer, will be one of Miss Benn's hostesses during the time she is here.

Another guest who will be the cause of several parties is Miss Posy Jackson of New Haven, who is arriving from Vassar today with Miss Margery Preston, daughter of the Howard P. Prestons of North State street. Miss Virginia Preston and her parents will give a dinner a week from tonight for Margery and her guest.

Cocktail Party This Afternoon.

A gay party for some very young married people and their friends this afternoon will be a cocktail party Ralph W. Applegate and Webb Harrison will give at their residence, 57 West Burton place, for the Nathan Swifts [Nancy Traylor] and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Sawyer of Holland, Mich., who are spending the week-end here. Mr. Applegate and Mr. Sawyer were roommates at Princeton and Mr. Harrison and Mr. Applegate were attendants at the Sawyer wedding a few months ago. John McWilliams II. and Leicester Yarrow Ryan share the bachelor establishment on Buren place.

Mrs. Vernon Welsh is entertaining at luncheon today in the Dunham Woods Riding club at Wayne for Miss Betty Gillies who is to be married next Saturday to Dr. Wallace Dundas Mackenzie. Miss Gillies is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gillies of Winnetka. Mrs. Walter Corning will give a tea tomorrow afternoon for Miss Gillies and her fiancé.

The Dunham Woods Riding club has announcements out for a spring dance next Saturday, preceded by dinner "not buffet." The next afternoon there will be a tea at 4:30 o'clock to open an exhibition of work of "the painters and butterers of the club." Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., who is a talented artist, one of the best in the Chicago Junior league, has been getting together the exhibition for weeks and it gives promise of being interesting and amusing.

Reception Tonight at Fort Sheridan.

The first formal social affair to be given at Fort Sheridan for the new commander of the Sixth corps area, Gen. Frank R. McCoy, and his charming wife, will be a reception and dance the officers and ladies of the post are giving tonight at the Officers' club. The officers and ladies of the Sixth corps area and of the Great Lakes Naval Training station have been invited to meet Gen. and Mrs. McCoy.

Preceding the dance there will be a number of dinner parties in the clubhouse with Gen. and Mrs. Dana T. Merrill entertaining for the McCoys. Their guests will be Col. and Mrs. James R. Graham, Col. and Mrs. George C. Marshall, Col. Louis Brechemin, Col. and Mrs. W. N. Richardson,

Front Views and Profiles

SATURDAY Notes from the Friday Cuff. A woman who expresses the social side of her nature chiefly through her church activities, to the annoyance of her husband, wistfully confided to a friend that she was giving up church for Lent. . . . Today's folksy note: When southbound I. C. train No. 691 left the 63d street station Tuesday noon the conductor passed a bag of popcorn around among the passengers in the front coach. . . . One of the large downtown clubs is having a membership drive and one of the leaders of the membership committee is an undertaker. He promised to dig up some former members. . . . Collectors' note: A Chicagoan named John P. Morrall is collecting radio tubes. . . . The current issue of a movie magazine lists the attraction, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," as "Lives of a Bengal Tiger." . . . Belated early robin note: June R. Walcott, aroused from sleep by agonized chirps of four robins that arrived while the ground was still frozen, wonders if the early bird does get the worm and if a frozen worm's worth being early for. . . . And Shepard Vogelgesang, speaking on gardens at the Little Traveler in Geneva, said he thought spring in this part of the country would be more rightly named pounce. . . . Sign on country road: "Dinner 49c on Highway No. 49." . . . Seller of horoscopes barking: "It may take your last dime, but you'll know your future." A 47th street handbook outfit in an old garage has a cocktail hour for ladies and door prizes as an added attraction.

WHEN the Dresden Cross choir of sixty-six boys, touring the world for the first time, sings at the Auditorium April 12 there probably will be in the audience a woman who, like the boys' organization, formerly sang in the Dresden opera. Although that woman is both venerable and venerated, the choir has the advantage in longevity. The Holy Cross church choir has maintained its organization without lapses since 1200. It made its Dresden opera début in 1717, and it sang there for an entire century. The singer who is expected to be in the audience here did not make her début there until 1878. She might have sung in the Vienna Opera a year earlier, but she was turned down. She was too skinny and gangling a girl to be considered. She was, of course, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink.

THIS column has had altogether too many wisecracks and too little literature. Monday we print the first instalment of a serial novel, to be run in this space. The author is Jane Little of Western Springs, Ill., and she is 9 years old. Little Miss Little will be pretty surprised to find that her novel is being printed, for she isn't even aware that her parents know that she is writing it. It concerns, as one might expect in these days, the struggles of a poor family. . . . But Monday you may begin it for yourself in instalment 1, chapter 1, of the "Novel Without a Name."

Mrs. Irma Lindheim of Palestine to Aid Land Fund Campaign

Mrs. Irma Lindheim, formerly of New York and now a resident of Palestine, will come to Chicago tomorrow morning for a visit under the auspices of the woman's committee of the Palestine land redemption campaign sponsored by the Jewish National Fund council. For years Mrs. Lindheim has been a leader of Jewish women in America.

She is a former president of Hadassah and the Woman's Zionist Organization of America. She is now a resident of Mishmar Hayardein, an agricultural settlement on Jewish national fund land in the valley of Jezreel, Palestine. She has recently returned to this country to undertake a nation-wide tour in the interest of Palestine land redemption.

Shortly after her arrival Mrs. Lindheim will occupy the pulpit of Rabbi Charles Shulman of the North Shore Congregation Israel in Glencoe. On Monday she will address the conference of Jewish women at 185 North Wabash avenue. On Wednesday evening, April 3, a reception will be tendered her at the Washington Boulevard Temple community house.

Dashing Brims, Clever Crowns Give Style to New Felt Hats

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Flattering brims are not only making the best of the spring straw hats but are also cutting a good bit of dash and distinction on the new swanky felt models. There is so much to be said about the dress parade hats of straw and shiny new fabrics that unless you know these famous felts from other seasons you will be rather overwhelmed with the 1935 numbers.

Every clothes collector needs one or more good felt hats that can be unceremoniously slapped on the head and still look smart. This spring you'll find them in grand assortments of color, all the pastels, all the clear, bright shades for sudden and spectacular contrast and in black, brown, beige, and navy.

A dozen or more styles are available, everyone different, with brims that dip alluringly down over the eye or turn up sharply at the back. Very young faces as well as sophisticated headlines can wear these hats. They are the best finds in town for your spring tailored suits and street costumes. They go with camel's hair coats; with bright checked swaggers of the new forty inch length; they'll top a swinging cape three piece ensemble with just the right casual feeling and they'll make smart headlines for one piece thin wool dresses or knitted costumes.

The cut of the crowns is what makes them new and different. These late arrivals have deftly tucked and cleverly creased crowns, not even distantly related to the rather masculine affairs of former years. Some of them have double creases. Others have rows of titchings outlining the tucks that make them fit smoothly. Still others can be dented and creased to suit your fancy each time you pull them over your curls.

Opera to Close

Lack of financial support has ended the stay of the New York Opera Comique company in Chicago, and the last curtain will fall at the Auditorium theater tonight on the renamed Tales of Hoffman.

That was decided yesterday at a meeting between representatives of the company, headed by Kendall Mussey of New York, and Fred Crow, manager of the Auditorium theater.

Box office receipts have been low, it was explained, outside financial support has been slight, and the New York sponsors of the company have said: "We can't subsidize opera for Chicago."

The New York group, which includes Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President; Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, E. Roland Harriman, and others, seemed concerned solely that the members of the company should not be "stranded" in Chicago and have agreed to pay the return fare of the singers.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There are makeups and makeups; in effects that range from the pale and interesting to the completely bizarre. It's news when a new one is submitted for the edification and beautification of the women who seek nothing more than subtle, natural enchantment. One of our great beauty specialists has just done that—and we greet it with loud cheers.

There are rouge, lipstick, and powder, each specially blended to give an effect that is comparable only to the natural glow of good health and radiance that is not at all artificial looking. The shade of each is called terra cotta, but don't let that frighten you.

The lipstick and rouge escape completely the purple undertones that make a lot of women look as though they needed cod liver oil and a sentence of one year in the sun. In both there is the tone of a mellow, warm brick with the barest suggestion of the tinge between gold and bronze that good coloring born of sunshine always has.

On the face of a woman of almost any coloring the combination of both gives a tremendously becoming, natural effect. And that effect, we might remind you, is utterly grand with the spring colors the fashion people are prescribing for us.

The powder has a warmish undertone too—though not a rosy one—and all three assume the proportions of a grand slam in makeups for the woman to whom they're becoming. It is a knockout ensemble for the woman with white hair, by the way—and we think she represents a group that has been too long neglected.

Makeup aids with a purplish cast make her look older than time and the brilliant reds make her look as though she were trying, in a distressingly blatant fashion, to compete with her grandchildren. The terra cotta tints in powder, rouge, and lipstick are flattering, but natural.

A trio of makeup aids—rouge, lipstick, and powder—are in an entirely new shade that gives the natural, subtle glow of sound health. They are becoming to almost all types and are especially flattering with the new spring colors.

This One May Be a Comeback on Helen Hayes

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 22.—[Special.]—Maybe somebody was smarting a little at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio over Helen Hayes' recent criticism of the movies as a frame for an actress' talent and maybe it was just a coincidence.

But when Ruth Renick, serial star in the silents of the early 1920s, was called in to play a lead in one of this studio's "goofy movies," short reel comedy burlesquing film sequences from other stories, the wardrobe department arrayed Ruth in the blue gown Helen Hayes recently wore in a starring vehicle.

Ruth's rôle required her to be the distressed and half starved young mother abandoning a child on somebody's front doorstep. In the comedy Ruth chose a vacant house, and the scenes show her returning to the house at five and ten year intervals to find the baby girl grown that much older each trip, but still on the doorstep waiting for the front door to open.

Miss Renick, with features familiar to a past decade of filmgoers, looks much the same sparkling eyed 110 pounds of vivacity as in her silent successes, "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.", "The Mollycoddle," "The Witching Hour," and "Rags to Riches." She is now in her forty-first talkie at Metro in the last year or two, having been a sob sister in "Thin Man," a nurse in "The Band Plays On," and taking the parts as they come: bits, two reel comedy leads, character rôles, or anything else desired. In real life she is the wife of James Lee, Los Angeles newspaper reporter, although the marriage was never publicly announced.

Her present rôle is a witness in courtroom scenes of "Age of Indiscretion," which presents Paul Lukas as a rich young man who wants custody of his child. May Robson is the mother-in-law who resents his about town habits and goes to court for the child herself. Madge Evans is the rich man's secretary, who becomes an object of suspicion, and Helen Vinson is the feminine heavy.

David Holt, new kid character player, and Flush, the dignified spaniel who played in the film version of "Barretts of Wimpole Street" but who is not to be confused with Miss Cornell's "Flush" of the stage run, also are in "Age of Indiscretion." The youngster and dog more than hold their own in the tussle for camera prominence against their rival adult troupers.

Grant Wood Delays Flannels Painting; Blames Publicity

Iowa City, Ia., March 22.—(AP)—Grant Wood's "Bath, 1880," which was to portray a man in red flannel underwear pouring water from an old fashioned kettle into a wooden tub, will not be painted this year, the Cedar Rapids artist said today.

"The picture will be shelved indefinitly because I am being accused by art magaznes of seeking publicity," Wood said.

He added that he had not sought the nation-wide attention which he had received in connection with his search for "red flannels."

"I carried on a quiet search for a suit of red flannel underwear for more than two years," Wood asserted, "but was unable to locate the authentic garment which I wanted Finally I advertised in three newspapers. One of the newspapers made a news story from the ad."

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts a post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician, who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, thaws she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron and Baronne Henri de Bellemarve, Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel. Sarah gathers that Dr. Gilcrest is in love with the baroness. Harry arrives. The evil looking gardener of the De Bellemarves arouses Sarah's suspicion. Beryl Tomlins dies suddenly. She had just had a prescription of Dr. Gilcrest's filled by his chemist, Marjorie Barrows. Sarah had received capsules for Miss Venables at the same time. Dr. Gilcrest states that her death was caused by an intestinal hemorrhage. Miss Venables receives another threatening letter, telling her she has one more day to live. The fatal day comes. Harry is on a visit to Monte Carlo. The baroness has gone to Arles for the day. Mrs. Cripps, Beryl Tomlins' sister, has tea with Miss Venables. The day passes safely. Miss Venables takes her capsule and retires. Shortly after Sarah is awakened by her agonized call. She dies within the hour, after declaring to Sarah that she was poisoned. In a letter she left Sarah, enclosing 100 pounds, she asks her to demand a post-mortem in case of her sudden death.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

THREE SIMILAR DEATHS.

Now she was alone, her false strength ebbed entirely, leaving her shattered. Why, O, why had she locked those capsules in the drawer and taken the key?

When Sarah woke the mistral had ceased—when she did not know—and the maid was at the door with her coffee. Promptly at 9 o'clock a waiter came to say that Dr. Gilcrest was waiting for her in the card room. She picked up the copy of "Trois Contes" and walked steadily toward the lift.

The card room looked deserted, but no, Gilcrest was there, at the far end, staring out of the window. His greeting was perfunctory, accompanied by one searching glance.

She had steeled herself for the encounter, and imagined he was doing

"All three of these women had been taking your capsules and all three died."

likewise. However, as she stole a covert look at him across the square of green baize she was struck by an alteration in his expression which she was at a loss to understand. His face still had the grayish pallor and lines of fatigue she had noticed the night before, and she guessed he had not slept, but what else was it?

"Well," he began evenly, "and what have you decided?"

"I told you I didn't need to reflect on this. We'll have to order the post-mortem."

After a moment's pause he remarked, "People in violent pain are apt to snatch at irrational explanations. She was especially prone to do so, but I gathered last night that you, also, considered the poison theory well founded. May I ask why?"

"You insist on knowing?" Now she would have to speak. She had hoped to get out of it, well aware that her beliefs were largely a matter of instinct. "Let me think . . . Well, first, there was the warning. It laid emphasis on the date. Yesterday, you know, was the anniversary of Maj. Frampton's death. Then the writer was present in the town. He—or she—might even be some one in this hotel."

He appeared unimpressed. "Yes. And then?"

"The food Miss Venables ate. From the time the letter arrived she had nothing whatever but boiled eggs, biscuits, and tea which we made in her room. She even drank Vichy water from a case kept in her room."

"Wait! Do you realize that what you're saying now is argument not for but against poison?"

"But there's one thing I've not mentioned." Her heart beat suffocatingly though her gaze remained unwavering. "We're overlooking the capsules. One after each meal, one at night, just an hour before she was taken ill . . ."

"Only that we've no right to leave the capsules out of our calculations. Let me finish, please! Miss Venables is not the only patient of yours who died soon after taking medicine you'd prescribed—and each time it was a capsule. Miss Tomlins, who'd been dieting even more rigidly, fell ill two hours after her dose. Both these women were dead inside of twenty minutes. The two bottles of medicine were fetched at the same time."

"You can't mean this seriously," he muttered. "Different complaints, different prescriptions. . . . What made you connect the two cases?"

"What I saw—and heard. Remember, I was with them, you weren't. In trying to describe the pain they used almost the same words. They spoke of it as a terrible burning."

"Utterly impossible! The composition of those two lots of capsules was totally dissimilar. If it interests you to know, Miss Venables was taking valerian, which acts as a mild nerve tonic, Miss Tomlins an intestinal disinfectant. You see how ridiculous it is?

"Yes, if the capsules were all what they should have been. But mistakes do happen," she reasoned, unconsciously quoting Mrs. Cripps.

"Not in my dispensary," he retorted.

"Another thing," she said slowly. "Miss Venables' sister-in-law in London—she had capsules, too . . ."

"I realize," she said, "that her prescription came from a chemist shop, and that the post-mortem examination brought a verdict of natural death, but is it one more coincidence that she was supposed to have died from the identical cause you give for Miss Venables?"

"Why not?" he flung back at her. "They both suffered from the same weakness. I knew the other woman was in a state where anything might happen. I frankly admit I had no such fears over either Miss Venables or Miss Tomlins. Appearances in these two cases were deceptive. But seeing that a clear verdict was given over the London affair just why do you bring it up in the present connection?"

"Only that all three of these women had been taking your capsules, and all three died painful and very sudden deaths. Surely you must think it extraordinary?"

"It's more than that—in a way," he burst out. "It's—devilish! Yet it can be nothing but chance. Even assuming it isn't, what underlying cause could link up three individuals unrelated by blood, two of them not so much as acquainted? Whatever you may choose to imagine about the two Venables, Miss Tomlins is in a class by herself. For theoretical purposes she was a nonentity, above all so poverty stricken as to be utterly removed from ——"

"O, I quite see that! All the same, are you still perfectly satisfied as to what killed her?"

"Perfectly!" His jaw set hard on the word. "I'd stake my entire professional reputation on it. And on the other cases, too."

Sarah had yet another card to play.

"Let me ask you this: Can you positively deny that not one of these deaths could have been contrived in such a manner as to appear natural to you? You see, I'm not questioning your sincerity, only trying to find out what is possible."

To her dismay he remained silent. Her heart beat suffocatingly, and scarcely knowing what she said she began to stammer broken words of insistence.

"We must do this—we must! Whatever you may believe, I, for one, can never have a moment's peace if I've failed in my duty to her. . . . I owe her so much. It's a point of honor, of common loyalty, not to disregard her dying wishes. How else can I prove my gratitude, my ——"

"Gratitude!" His vehemence startled her. "Good God, as though I, too, hadn't cause to be grateful! Need you remind me of obligations, of honor? You must think me a swine. Here—look at this!"

It was the letter she had given him, dragged from his pocket and thrust in front of her.

"Read it," he ordered in a choked voice. "Then, just possibly, you'll see how I'm placed."

After all, why not read it? If the dead woman had confided some secret relating to the present situation she ought to know about it. She picked up the letter, scanned the opening lines, and gasped.

Merciful heavens! Was she dreaming? In defiance of every preconception, Christine Venables had bequeathed her beloved physician an income of a thousand a year!

Creams Don't Cause Hair.

M. G.: Hairs on the face are not the result of using soap or creams. Superfluous hair is due to a peculiarity of the structure of the skin. The hair, however, may be bleached so it will hardly be noticed. Peroxide, to which a few drops of household ammonia have been added is a popular bleach. My leaflet on superfluous hair has other suggestions.

Col. and Mrs. C. W. Meyer, Col. and Mrs. H. D. Chamberlin, Col. and Mrs. C. C. Reynolds, Col. and Mrs. C. A. Thuis, Maj. and Mrs. George L. Kraft, Maj. and Mrs. T. J. Cassidy, Chaplain A. V. Simoni, Maj. and Mrs. H. B. Maguire, Capt. and Mrs. Dover Bell, Miss Drue Merrill, Lieut. Lawrence K. La Due, Lieut. S. T. Hames, and Lieut. J. G. Ondrick.

Among other dinner hosts will be Capt. and Mrs. J. L. Murphy, who will have 21 guests; Capt. and Mrs. C. B. Cole, whose guests will number 16, and Miss Theodora Putnam, who will be hostess to a party of 10.

Admiral Downes May Succeed Cluverius.

Although Admiral Wat T. Cluverius' successor as commander of the Great Lakes station has not been named yet, there is a strong possibility that Admiral John Downes will follow in the footsteps of the handsome and charming naval officer who is leaving next Tuesday for sea duty on the west coast.

Mrs. Cluverius, to whom Chicago society is saying au revoir with regret, is leaving Wednesday with her daughter, Mrs. William S. Parsons, to motor to Annapolis for a visit with Lieut. and Mrs. Parsons and their family before joining her husband in California.

Admiral Cluverius says that Admiral Downes has a charming wife, a Virginian, and a grown son and daughter, so if they do come to the Great Lakes, they will be a welcome addition to society, without a doubt.

Play Polo League Finals Here Tonight.

There will be a large and enthusiastic audience at the 124th Field Artillery armory tonight for the windup of the season of the Metropolitan Polo league. The seniors at the Chicago Riding club are going to play the Cleveland Riding club and the winner of the match will play the 124th Field Artillery team for the high goal championship during the western championships to start next Wednesday night at the armory.

Many boxes and seats have already been spoken for for the western championships. There will be a second game a week from tonight and three games the following week on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The nationals are to be played in New York this year, but several Chicago polo enthusiasts are already making plans to attend them. It was hoped Prentice Porter would be playing with the Riding club trio tonight, but a fall during his recent vacation in Virginia prevents.

Bolger-Martin Nuptials Today.

Mrs. Stephen Joyce Bolger has come from Grand Rapids Mich., and Mrs. William Wilkins Carr has come from Philadelphia to be present this afternoon at the marriage of Mrs. Bolger's daughter, Mary Katherine, to Mrs. Carr's son, William Paul Martin Jr.

The service will be read at 3 o'clock in the rectory of St. Chrysostom's church, the Rev. Dudley Stark officiating. Then the fifty guests will go to the East Division street apartment of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Caldwell, for a reception.

Miss Joanne Bolger of Grand Rapids will be her sister's only attendant, and Snelling Robinson will serve as best man for Mr. Martin. After a month's trip to Jamaica Mr. Martin and his bride will be at home at 42 East Elm street.

Mr. Martin's sister, Mrs. Helene Martin Howard, who is engaged to be married to William Mitchell Blair, gave the bridal dinner for her brother and his bride in her apartment in East Delaware place last night. The bride's other sister, Mrs. Charles S. Leonard, and her husband have come from Grand Rapids for the wedding.

Ethel Harmon Bride Today.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon in the drawing room where she made her debut a few years ago, Miss Ethel D'Arcy Harmon and Edmund Marland Gifford will repeat their wedding vows. The ceremony, which will be read by the Rev. Christoph Keller of Trinity church, Highland Park, will be witnessed by members of the immediate families only, and a slightly larger reception will follow.

Miss Harmon will be given in marriage by her father, John H. Harmon, in whose home at 209 Laurel avenue, Highland Park, the service will be read. The bride's younger sister, Emily Boulton Harmon, will be her only attendant, and John Gifford will serve his brother as best man. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Gifford.

Among the bride's relatives who have come here for the wedding are her aunt, Miss Marjorie Boulton, from California, and another aunt, Mrs. Arthur Van Schaick, and her daughters, Marjorie and Helen, and son, Gerrit, from Southport, Conn.

Final Luncheon at Glen View Club.

Because they have so heartily approved of the Sunday buffet luncheons this winter at the Glen View club, the members are going to turn out almost "en masse" for the final luncheon tomorrow. Many of them will come in the morning to see Johnson Couch and John J. Healy play a matched trap-shooting tournament for the club championship and then at noon entertain friends at luncheon.

The Balkan situation as related to Germany's recent steps toward rearmament will be discussed at the luncheon of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations today at the Palmer house. The speaker will be Nicholas Roosevelt, former United States minister to Hungary and at present on the editorial staf of a large

Instead of a lecture at noon today in the headquarters of the Alliance Française in the Fine Arts building, members will hear a program by Mlle. Madeleine Monnier, violincellist. After the musical most of the audience will go upstairs to the Piccadilly restaurant, where Mlle. Monnier will be an especial guest at a French déjeuner.

Graceful Lines Are Tailored

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This slim looking cotton print dress is the softly tailored type that all women like. It has the raglan shoulder effect, so becoming to the average figure. The tricky, flared sleeves, besides being cool, are new and smart. It is a one piece dress, and will be attractive made of pastel linen or one of the tub silks.

The pattern, No. 2938, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

Family Should Be Democracy, Not Despotism

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

One sometimes feels that the whole world is going backward to the outworn fallacy of the despot—kindly or otherwise.

A country may seem strong under a dictator. But history has proved that when that dictator falls—foully or naturally—the people, being untrained to rule or think for themselves, fall into difficulty.

A family may seem strong under a dominating father or a dictatorial mother. But when the children of such parents reach maturity, either the unaccustomed liberty that is then theirs runs into license, or is unable to be used properly because the youth has been robbed of initiative and has been untrained for responsibility.

In the long run a democracy—whether in a nation or in the home—is the safest form of government. But we must remember that liberty is the hardest thing to use wisely, and only by continuous practice can children be helped to stand on their own, so that at maturity they are self-reliant and self-sustaining.

Who doesn't number among one's acquaintance the Mussolini mother or the Hitler father, whose children, when they become grown, are incapable of using wisely the precious liberty that eventually has to be given them?

Untruthfulness is one of the bad fruits that a system of severity and domination sometimes bears. If your child lies you may find the reason in our new, fully written leaflet which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BY MARY MEADE.

With uncanny faculty for leaving out the most important things, we mentioned baking powder biscuit waffles a week or so back and omitted the recipe to make space for the cajolerica of other waffle iron possibilities. However, letters have been arriving in baker's dozens to catch us up on the slip. Here it is now, with abject apologies:

Baking Powder Biscuit Waffles.

2 cups flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons lard
1 cup milk

Sift the dry ingredients together and blend with the lard to a coarse, crumly consistency. Add the milk, stir only to mix with the flour thoroughly, and drop a spoonful on each section of a pre-heated waffle iron. Serve as a hot bread, a base for fruit shortcakes, or with creamed chicken, meat, shrimp, and peas, or what you will.

With clear conscience now we go to the queries of Mrs. L. E. of Wisconsin. First: "How can I cook string beans to keep the fresh green look?" And then: "How does one serve a chocolate souffle—with whipped cream? Is it served hot or cold?"

String beans, like other green vegetables, best retain their greenness in hard water, considerable quantities of it, with the lid off during the cooking. If the water is unusually hard the cover may be put back on after the first five minutes. A pinch of soda in the cooking water is an old way of keeping the gay green color, but it's not looked upon with much favor at present. For one thing it tends to make the beans soft and mushy; it may impair their fresh flavor, and it speeds the loss of certain vitamins.

Chocolate souffle, like all the rest of those ethereal and undependable egg structures, must be served the minute after it has popped out of the oven, Mrs. E. To chill it would insure a complete collapse. It's usually served with whipped cream, although some people feel that it's distinctive enough without any such garnishing.

Request for an inexpensive yet unusual dinner came recently from Mrs. C. J. T. and in answering the letter we felt that the suggested first course especially deserved to be given a little extra ballyhoo. It's icy cold jellied tomato juice, put through a ricer, and served with an ever so tiny dab of unsweetened whipped cream and a dash of paprika on its sparkling top. Sounds nice? Don't just take our word for it—try it and see for yourself!

Home made sauces for ice cream and simple desserts are troubling Mrs. A. L., who says she's more than a little weary of all her old recipes. Well, here's one of the ideas that's being passed on to her:

Marshmallow Honeyscotch Sauce.

2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup strained honey
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
10 marshmallows, quartered

Melt the butter, remove from heat, and stir in the cornstarch, blending smoothly. Add the honey and water, return to the heat, and simmer slowly for five minutes. Add the lemon juice, salt, and quartered marshmallows (don't forget the old trick of cutting them with wet scissors), and again remove from the heat as soon as the marshmallows have melted. Serve hot or at least slightly warmed.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SHADES OF WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD!

NORTH.
♠ K-Q-x-x-x
♥ Q-J-x-x

WEST	EAST
♠ A-8-5	♠ J-10-6-x
♥ 4	♥ 10-2
♦ 10-9-7	♦ A-K-J-8
♣ K-Q-8-4-3-2	♣ A-6-5

SOUTH
♠ 9
♥ A-K-9-x-x-x
♦ Q-x-x
♣ 10-9-7

East bid a diamond, third hand; my partner [Wernher] overcalled with a heart; West bid the clubs; I bid spades; East raised clubs; I then raised hearts and eventually we played the hand at four hearts, down one not vulnerable. We both felt that four clubs could be made, so we had to defend the match-point score by overbidding a trick. At that, four hearts can be made if West carelessly omits to put up the ace on the first spade lead, which, indeed, happened at one or two tables. At others they got to five clubs and were down one or two tricks. West really could see little hope of beating four hearts, and did not show bad judgment in going to five clubs. However, the bidding of this hand is not my reason for giving it. To me, the interesting feature is that with a heart lead FIVE DIAMONDS CAN BE MADE AGAINST ANY SUBSEQUENT DEFENSE.

Of course, it cannot be bid; if bid, it will presumably be doubled, and it is only makeable because South cannot put North in again after playing hearts once. To beat five diamonds, South must open the spade and subsequently underlead the heart to get in a ruff of spades after winning with his queen of diamonds, for declarer must take this finesse.

This hand, in its playing potentialities, illustrates in a truly sensational manner the tremendous advantage in having THE SHORT SUIT FOR TRUMP AND THE LONG, UNEVENLY HELD SUIT AS THE OFF SUIT.

I think teachers who read this should make note of this hand for teaching this important playing factor by illustration. Usually the point arises in connection with two suits held 4-4 and 5-3 or perhaps 6-3, respectively. Here we have 4-3 and 6-3, so that the first suit is really not available for trumps. But the academic point is proved. The late Wilbur Whitehead was especially fond of stressing this vital playing factor when there is a choice between suits for trumps, and when we post-mortemed the hand, both my partner [Wernher] and I said: "This one would have gladdened dear old Whitey's heart," simultaneously, almost like a vaudeville team. I suppose many of my readers like to discuss and "reminisce" about the great names in bridge. I hope they will never let the name of Whitehead be forgotten. In my opinion, he stood absolutely alone as an authority and writer on auction, and his "Auction Bridge Standards" is, to my way of thinking, the greatest book on bridge that has been written. It was a tragedy that he had to die before he had been able to devote to contract anything like the years of intense study and reception consultation with others which preceded the publication of "Auction Bridge Standards." The few elements of auction bidding which are retained in my contract system are also pure Whitehead—for instance, the bidding order of short suits with constructive hands, and my preference for bidding A K x x before J 10 x x, etc. A few days before he sailed on that last sad journey [he died at sea] he spent the week-end at my house. He, Wernher, and I sat up all night discussing our contract theories; we showed him the material we were preparing for publication, which subsequently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and took codified form in my book "Money Contract," and his last words to both of us on the Sunday night were: "When I return from Europe I want to spend a lot of time down here with you. I must recreate the Whitehead system for contract; auction methods do not apply. You are quite right in claiming that contract is an entirely different game." This, however, is still not understood by many of his imitators.

Men Prefer Simplicity in Feminine Clothes Today

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Whether women dress for the other sex or whether they dress for a brighter personal reflection in their own mirrors doesn't matter. What men think about women's clothes usually is given enough importance to warrant attention.

If the menage has ever boasted a man, heaven only knows we women have learned that there are things men like and things they don't like in women's dress. Frank Chapman, whose voice is known to you over the radio circuit, and who happens to be married to one of the best dressed women, Gladys Swarthout, tipped me off to some of the things men like and some which they don't.

The gee-gaw, fluffy-ruffle and face girl isn't the charmer she was formerly held to be with the modern male. Men, I learn, want to look at the girl, not the dress. If you have a good figure, they look at it, so the system obviously is to wear simple, molded lines. Anyway, don't gild the lily with the use of superfluous trimming.

Girls thinking of starting breach of promise suits in order to hang their arms in bracelets are shooting up the wrong alley as far as men are concerned. Yards of bracelets or costume jewelry get in the way of the girl. They become the center of interest, not the woman wearing them.

Man's favorite color is red. But, unfortunately, we learn that few women can wear it, except for touches or accessories, and should not try. Black, the dressmakers' choice for smart women, isn't a male favorite. It makes a woman look older, one hears, and more sophisticated looking, and sophistication is not the thing for which to strive. Men like gay colors at night, rather than subtle ones. Men abhor mad hats, fashions that are exceedingly new and, to the masculine eye, still strange.

Men understand beautiful tailoring, so the woman who can wear classic tweeds and tailleurs without a hint of mannish appearance rates high with his sex, says Mr. Chapman. Girls can inject the feminine note into the tweeds and tailleurs with curls brushed and shining. "Tweeds are irresistible on the really feminine woman."

Cube Lattice.

"Cube Lattice" is quite as well known by its older name, "Cubes and Tile." Although it is one of the oldest quilt patterns on record, it presents a singularly modern appearance. It is equally attractive in prints, plain colors, or a combination of both. Plain colors usually are preferred when the quilt is to be used in a room of modern design.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Miss Roberts Writes Novel of Kentucky

Thomas Duncan Describes Chautauquas.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"He Sent Forth a Raven," by Elizabeth Madox Roberts. [Viking.] Published yesterday.

"O, Chautauqua," by Thomas W. Duncan. [Coward-McCann.] Published on Tuesday.

A FOURTH novel and a first novel, both in a way the work of citizens of Chicagoland, were published this week, and both are probably destined for much critical discussion.

Elizabeth Madox Roberts, although born and now rooted in Kentucky as nearly permanently as any one is ever rooted in one spot, spent the years between 1917 and 1921 at the University of Chicago and there left such an impress as a poet and winner of the coveted undergraduate poetry prize that her fellow writers all think of her as a fellow westerner.

Thomas W. Duncan lives in Iowa and is a native Chicagoland man. He writes with native wit and a certain native sharpness about the lush passion of our fellow midwesterners for what, for the want of a more exact word, we call "culture." "O, Chautauqua" is as native as the tall corn growing in Iowa or a lake in Wisconsin in which the tale is set.

"He Sent Forth a Raven" is a modern story of Kentucky . . . at least the action takes place in the years preceding, during, and immediately following the great war. But except for the mention of a war in Europe [which gives motivation to the latter half of the book] it is as remote from modernity as a crane-hung pot over a bed of ashes. The main characters in it are Stoner Drake, who made a vow "if Joan Drake should die he would never set his foot on God's earth again," and who in fulfilling his vow ruled his farm like a shah from his indoor throne; and his granddaughter Jocelle, who was thrust as a child into that strange household with only her aunt, sickened by the hermit's cruelty, for companion.

Grandfather, the immovable body; granddaughter the irresistible force . . . the resultant impact is not at all modern. It is as undated as a perpetual calendar. Miss Roberts' style is not more modern than her theme. It has something of the primeval quality of the style in "The Great Meadow" and "Time and the Man." But it seems to me to have acquired a wordy mysticism. So much of a veil is drawn about the style that at times I, for one, am bitterly confused by it. Especially is that true of the conversation which Miss Roberts records. It sounds like no conversation known lips have spoken . . . not in its use of words, which might conceivably be native talk, but in its relation to the ideas which the author has stated at the moment before the words were spoken.

There is undeniable beauty of phrase, the lilt that the prose of all born poets has, but there is, to this reviewer at least, chaos about it. One paragraph in the early part of the novel describing the young Jocelle's reactions seems to me so perfectly to describe the author's effort and her accomplishment that I quote it as a beautifully written criticism of the book:

"A faint haze of things known and unknown spread around her," Miss Roberts writes, "those things which she could never bring together into a pattern of thought were left unrelated, floating in a fog."

There is no faint haze about "O, Chautauqua." The pattern of Mr. Duncan's fictional idea is as plain as the proverbial nose on whosever face that nose is. It is a novel of manners in the strictly traditional sense. It tells how the members of a chautauqua circuit pursue their calling, and how the inhabitants of the towns in which they pitch their tents accept a phase of social existence.

Its chief interest for the city reader is the peek which Mr. Duncan allows him into the inner springs and cams of a piece of social machinery which to him is novel and for the less urban reader, familiar. In both cases the reader is intrigued by his look-see.

The characters are more interesting as a part of those mysterious arcana than they are as themselves. They are types . . . of actor, manager, spieler, performer, local banker, child-mayor, audience. . . .

And yet there is something engagingly human about all of them, something that gives "O, Chautauqua" a tang. It is much the same sort of book that "State Fair" was (also by an Iowan, Phil Stong), but it has a sharper satire giving an occasional whiplash to the tale.

There will probably be huzzahs for both these novels: from the intellectuals, for "He Sent Forth a Raven," from the professional native sons' school of critics for "O, Chautauqua." My private notion is that Miss Roberts' and Mr. Duncan's novels are far less than their best, Miss Roberts' than either "Time and the Man" or "The Great Meadow," and Mr. Duncan's than his possible future work.

Authors of Novels Reviewed Today

Sinclair Tells of Devil Hunt in New Book

Gordon Sinclair, wisecracking newspaper globe girdler for the Toronto Star, author of "Footloose in India" and "Cannibal Quest," slangy sagas of tropic travel, has dashed off another whiz bang volume of exotic exploration. This time it's a search for devils and their magic, and Sinclair tells results in "Loose Among Devils." [Farrar & Rhinehart.]

A few chapters tell of the Canadian reporter's reactions to Devil's Island, which he found to be a place of paradoxes and not as sensationally terrible as it has been repeatedly front-paged.

But Sinclair's search for the bizarre, as per his managing editor's orders, brought weird enough results when he turned from South American devils to the jungle devil practices of West Africa.

On the way he took a looksee at Haiti black magic and solved the mystery of the voodoo stunt of bringing the dead to life by the simple means of reading section 249 of the Haitian criminal code:

"It shall be qualified as attempted murder if a person shall employ against another substances which, without causing actual death, produce a lethargic coma. If, after the administration of such drugs, the person has been buried, the act shall be considered murder no matter what results follow."

In Nigeria Sinclair uncovered some of the most fantastic secrets of black magic that any good reporter could ever hope to find. His most convincing confirmation of African voodoo terrors was obtained from Dr. Oguntula Sapara, a juju expert and a graduate of St. Thomas hospital, London, who was twice decorated by English kings for reducing the baby death rate in Nigeria.

Dr. Sapara stated that there were thousands of Africans who could kill any one near or far by merely wishing him to die. He admitted that he himself could perform this voodoo feat.

The black physician added: "The drum, which carries rhythms of sound up and down this country quicker than the telegraph, can also send poison mists.

"Now, I know that your readers will call such a statement utterly absurd and fantastic—a tall tale from the jungle. I happen to know from definite personal knowledge that Marconi studied that identical piece of magic in this very land and from it built the radio."

And Sinclair adds this comment: "Poison thought waves that kill in three days! And witches actually sitting over caldrons of poison brew to kill innocents many miles away! I couldn't believe him any more than you do. But Dr. Sapara is a scholar and practitioner of international fame. You simply can't dismiss his statements as bunk and tommyrot. He puts forty-one years of experience with the black arts against your credulity. You are the judges." A. C.

Meetings and Lectures

At the meeting of the Society of Midland Authors this noon at the Hotel Sherman Mignon Eberhart will be the guest of honor.

At the meeting of the Friends of American Writers Wednesday noon at the Chicago Athletic association Dr. Gordon J. Laing of the University of Chicago will discuss "What Everybody Reads."

'Image of Monkeys' Is Satirical Story of Man's Creation

"In the Image of Monkeys" is a satirical tale of man's creation, by M. H. Ansour, globe trotting vagabond and scholar, and for many years restaurateur at the foot of South Water street. It is not an ordinary book, and the reader will be entertained by the philosophical and bitingly satirical vein of the creation of Adam and Eve.

Mr. Ansour's unusual imagination elaborates on the story of the Garden of Eden. He even tells of the rivalries of the many fruits, vying to please the palate of Adam. Mr. Ansour also throws a new light upon the birth of Cain and Abel.

Mr. Ansour holds his reader with his ironical style. You will enjoy this book from the pen of a restless rover who has visited many of the countries of the old world and who has been "slinging hash" in Louie's restaurant for the last seventeen years.

The book is privately printed by the Momus Press, Chicago.

The story of the incredible life of the widow of the once fabulously wealthy H. A. W. Tabor, who died in poverty recently, is told dramatically in "The Tabors" by Lewis Cass Gandy [Press of the Pioneers].

London Offers Many Volumes About Authors

Another on Lawrence to Be Published.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The season is rich in new books about famous novelists recently dead. We have already had Mrs. D. H. Lawrence's account of her husband, "Not I, but the Wind" [Heinemann]; and a further—it is too much to hope that it will be the last—book about Lawrence is to come from Jonathan Cape, in "D. H. Lawrence: a Personal Record," by E. T., who was the original of Miriam in "Sons and Lovers." This book, dealing with Lawrence's early life, should be a real contribution to knowledge.

Cape is also publishing what may be an extremely interesting work on Arnold Bennett, written by Dorothy Cheston Bennett. We have already heard what Marguerite Bennett remembers of her husband; and Mrs. Bennett has written a second volume of autobiography which has not yet been published in book form.

Dorothy Cheston Bennett, so brightly described by the London press as "the other woman," was an actress whose life with Bennett has been much too much publicized in recent legal proceedings. She has a fluent pen, a definite point of view regarding Bennett, and a remarkable collection of letters written by him from the beginning to the end of their association.

The book is called "Arnold Bennett: a Portrait Done at Home." It will be more than that. It will be an elaborate psychological study, to which the writer has given much time in the last three or four years, with the advice [but the work is entirely her own] of more than one well known writer who has seen and commented upon the MS.

Finally, in this field, we are to have from Mrs. Joseph Conrad a portrait of her husband, "Joseph Conrad and His Circle" [Jarrolds]. Mrs. Conrad wrote some brief papers shortly after Conrad's death; but this will be a more ambitious effort. And as Conrad has not been made the subject of endless memoirs—the standard "Life and Letters," by G. Jean-Aubry and Ford Madox Ford's slight volume of reminiscence are nearly all the personal estimates to appear—it will be welcome. But it may not be quite the dramatic portrait which would reawaken intense interest in a man who was little, as a person, in the public eye.

To these books a footnote of more than passing moment is that volume of "Chronicles of Barabbas" which George H. Doran has written. The book is so far announced only by Harcourt, Brace in America, and no English publisher has yet included it in his list for the spring; but it will certainly find a place ere long.

For Mr. Doran, now retired and resident in New Mexico, had a more intimate acquaintance with a number of English authors than any other publisher. His parties in London, at the Savoy, were famous. He gathered to them all the best known writers in England. They were unique. If the book is as good as the parties it will be stupendous.

Story of Finance.

"Years of Plunder" by Proctor W. Hansl [Smith Haas] is a stirring history of American finance since the turn of the century, with the spectacular figures of Wall street highlighted and X-rayed.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

A "mystery of the week" is all very well, but just now the weeks fairly teem with mysteries. The presses are rolling them off, pretty good, pretty bad, and bang-up.

Among the latter is "Was It Murder?" [Harpers], by James Hilton, who established himself as an author with "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," and ever since has been reaping rewards from earlier and no less engaging books. This last one was published in England some years ago over the name of "Glen Trevor" and under the title of "Murder at School." I read it then and the mystery expert will know what it means when I say that even after such a lapse of time I remembered all about it.

Even though it is a story of many appalling murders the book has a lively charm which is Mr. Hilton's special gift. It is readable, plausible, rememberable, and perhaps is another picture of the school in which Mr. Chips quietly lived and loved. But if it is, the school endured some crowded hours which escaped Mr. Chips' attention, but which will focus the attention of the reader to the point of keeping him awake well into the night.

A nice young man whose detecting is just a little bit better than his poetry, a charming headmaster, a lesser master's beguiling wife, and some unusually human detectives are more conspicuous but not more interesting than a dozen other sharply drawn characters. Let us hope that Mr. Hilton will not be so busy writing best sellers of another genre that he will neglect this special type which he handles with such smooth ease.

For those people who like the retelling of an actual crime Catherine Meadows has made a mystery novel out of the lamentable case of Dr. Crippen. In "Dr. Moon" [Putnam] she recounts so well the rise and fall of the doctor's poor little romance that he becomes touching and excusable instead of the monstrous criminal we have so long believed him to be. There is an authentic ring about it, too, which convinces you that the doctor was a good little man harried by a formidable wife who finally became unbearable. Not the stuff of murderers, was the private verdict of his counsel, but "with something about him both admirable and pathetic."

"Death in the Air" [Dodd-Mead] is another Agatha Christie, entertaining, swift, plausible to a degree, but pretty hard to swallow at the latter end because no pains have been taken to insinuate those deft suggestions which make any solution to a mystery story, even the most unlikely, acceptable to the less gullible reader.

Even Mrs. Christie has allowed herself to enter the mind of the murderer and think thoughts that do not assort with guilt, and that, I submit, is the mystery writer's unforgivable sin. But, as always, up to a certain point it's a cracking good story.

And now a sad farewell to J. S. Fletcher, whose last sound, careful tale, "The Eleventh Hour" [Knopf], has just been published. I know of no other detective story writer who will be so greatly missed. To him every fan turned, sure of an excellent story excellently told. He was early in the field and unsurpassed in his own particular manner. Surely his innumerable books will have a place among the classics of their kind.

And good-by, too, to Arthur Somers Roche, who wrote so smartly about smart people and whose mysteries were less notable for their problems than for their sharp and always funny wisecracks. "Shadow of Doubt" [Dodd-Mead] is the last book that will come from his ready pen and it will give you two or three kinds of a laugh, an epitaph which I think Mr. Roche would like.

Two Travelers Give Different Views of Asia

AUSTRIAN and Swiss viewpoints on what is taking place in central Asia are interestingly told in two attractive travel books of the spring output: "Changing Asia," by Egon Erwin Kisch [Knopf], and "Turkestan Solo," by Ella K. Maillart [Putnam].

Kisch, a famous journalist of prewar Austria, a cosmopolite, linguist, specialist in crime, athlete, and world traveler, has written an enthusiastic account of the transformation now taking place in the country of Genghis Khan and Tamerlane. His book is translated from the German.

He travelled over Tajikistan and Usbekistan, each now a soviet republic. Kisch paints a glowing picture of Russian accomplishments, but overloads his pages with such countless detail that at times it becomes a bit tiresome and confusing.

But Kisch is a vivid and fluent writer and his knowledge of languages and dialects gives him an insight into native life intimacies unseen by the average traveler, which makes his pages lively and interesting reading. He weaves in much historical and industrial data, so much, in fact, that it often slows down the reader's journey with this unusually competent guide.

Mlle. Maillart, a native of Geneva, also is a world traveler, an athlete, a good sailor and mountain climber, as well as an interesting writer. Her "Turkestan Solo," translated from the French, covers much the same territory that Kisch did.

Her journey, however, is more interesting to the casual arm chair traveler than Kisch's Asia tour, for she gives a lively, humorous, and straightforward account, unhampered by personal views on politics or industry. She covered several thousand miles by camel, boat, and motor. She is said to be the first European to cross the 500 miles of the Kizil Kum, or Desert of Red Sands, which she did in fifteen days on camel-back in biting cold.

The book is well illustrated with the author's own photographs and has unusually fine end paper maps, one of the entire trip and the other a detail map of part of it.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 22.—Most of the active interest in today's bond market was centered in the foreign department, where selling pressure was sufficiently urgent to bring about further declines of as much as seven points.

While Belgian government issues found enough support to cause some recovery, Antwerp 5s broke sharply on a few offerings. At the beginning of the last hour of trading they were thirty-four points under their high for 1935.

French and Germans Weak.

French bonds were heavy and many German issues broke through their old lows for the year. At one time German Agricultural bank 6s were more than six points under yesterday's closing.

For the third consecutive day Italian bonds were subjected to selling pressure and recorded losses running almost to four points. The extreme decline was in Milan 6½s, but the government 7s were not much firmer. British bonds were relatively strong.

Corporate List Higher.

All groups of the domestic corporation list closed higher. Heavy buying of Utilities Power and Light 5½s and 6s was a feature, these issues climbing 3¼ and 2½ points on the day. The Paramount Public issues rallied fractionally to 2 points and many of the lower priced rails recovered a point or more.

Federal issues were irregular, but net changes for the day amounted to only 1-32 to 3-32 point in most instances.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, March 22. — (AP) — Cotton goods continued very quiet today with prices unchanged in the gray goods division. Rayon novelties and fancies sold in small lots with cutters showing more interest. Retail silk sales were reported improved but the sales have not yet been reflected in first hands transactions. Wool goods for fall held very steady with some mills having secured very fair sized fall orders on suitings. Burlaps were quiet in local markets.

United States Gypsum.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me your opinion on U. S. Gypsum common?—C. P. S.

Answer: United States Gypsum company is the leading manufacturer of building products which have gypsum as a base. It has extensive raw material deposits and adequate, efficient manufacturing facilities. It also produces about one-fourth of the metal laths used.

Despite the fact that building operations during the last few years have been at the lowest point in decades, the corporation has consistently operated profitably. This has been due to the high degree of efficiency in operations and the management's aggressive drive to stimulate modernization programs to offset the drop in demand for materials for new construction.

There were no large projects carried over from 1934 into 1935, as there were the year before. Sales of plaster for the first half of the current year will probably be less, therefore, than in the corresponding 1934 period. Dollar volume of total business for the first two months of 1935, however, was 35 per cent larger than in the first two months of 1934.

Net income for 1934 was $2,155,000, or $1.28 per common share, against net of $1,739,000, or $1 per common share, for 1933. In 1932 net income was $1,600,000, against $3,653,000 for 1931 and $5,409,000 for 1930.

Capitalization consists of 78,222 shares of $100 par 7 per cent preferred and 1,251,821 shares of $20 par common. The common pays regular dividends of 25 cents a quarter. An extra of 25 cents a share was paid in December, 1934.

The company has demonstrated its ability to operate in the black during periods when little business was available. A large scale resumption of building should swell profits.

"Yield."

Investors' Guide: When bonds are quoted as offered by banks, what does "yield" mean? Please answer soon.—C. J. S.

Answer: The yield is the percentage of return per year on the bond, based on the ratio of coupon rate to purchase price, plus the loss or profit that will result when the bond matures, depending on whether the purchase price is above or below par.

For instance, a 6 per cent bond, maturing in one year, purchased at 96, will yield a return of not only 6-96ths, or 6 1-6 per cent, but also the $4 a bond profit that will accrue to the bondholder when the bond is matured at 100, or 4.15 per cent. The net yield on such a purchase would then be 10.31 per cent.

OLD NORTH SIDE STRUCTURES TO BE TORN DOWN

BY AL CHASE.

Another block of old north side structures will be turned over to wreckers in an effort to solve the problem of mounting taxes and increasing obsolescence. The three story building on the west side of Rush street, from Austin avenue to Illinois street, erected shortly after the great fire, will be torn down. Work starts today.

The cleared space will be used by Benjamin Bortz, automobile parking chain operator, who has leased the property, 216x75, for five years, for an open air garage. McMenemy, Inc., represented the lessor and Willoughby & Co., the lessee.

Another Parking Lease Made.

The Central Parking Station, Inc., has leased the northwest corner of Dearborn and Kinzie streets, from the Espert estate, for ten years. A four story building on this property recently was wrecked because of high taxes. McMenemy, Inc., was the only broker in leasing this corner.

Two building projects are scheduled for Wheaton. Plans have been drawn by Holmes & Flinn for a $75,000 church edifice for the College Church of Christ, a community church, to be erected at 304 North Washington street, opposite the Wheaton college campus. It will be colonial, with red brick walls, a cupola, and with white trim. It will seat more than 600. Bids will be taken early next month.

Holmes & Flinn designed the present edifice used by the college church which was erected on the Wheaton college campus ten years ago. A ten year contract for its partial use by the college has expired and the college plans buying the edifice. This necessitated the new church building. The Rev. Evan D. Welsh is pastor.

Addition to Be Built.

Robert H. Salisbury, Wheaton architect, has drawn plans and yesterday let contracts for the erection of an $18,000 two story fireproof addition to the Du Page Title company's office building, opposite the Du Page county courthouse, in Wheaton. It will be used to house valuable records of the title company. Ehlers Brothers of Elmhurst have the contract.

A Chicago group headed by the Howard W. Elmore company has purchased forty acres at 183d and California avenue, in Homewood, from Henry Hassberg for an undisclosed consideration. Shirley J. Cowing of Cowing Bros., Homewood realtors, was broker. The property will be subdivided into one acre tracts and placed on the market by the Elmore company at once.

HOGS CONTINUE RALLY DESPITE SLUMP I NPORK

Hog prices rose 15 cents to 20 cents more yesterday as pork in wholesale channels around Chicago fell to the lowest levels in more than a month. Top light loins were being sold at 19 cents per pound, indicating a drop of 6 cents from the high point of last week and 2 cents to 3 cents loss since

Although hog prices have been higher the last two days, quotations still are 75 to 90 cents under March 6, the first day of Lent. Packers are unable to move the meager receipts of pork at present prices, but receipts in the last two days have been too small to enable packers to check the rise in their live costs.

Packers paid up to $11.25 for selected 198 to 233 pound butchers, including the processing tax, or 15 cents more than top grades cost in the previous session. Prices averaged $11.05, with the bulk of purchases made within a range of $10.95 to $11.25 tax included.

Fully steady prices were paid yesterday for a meager supply of 2,000 cattle, but quotations still were 25 cents to $1 lower than a week ago.

The best available beeves were 1,160 pound stock that cashed at $10.75. The bulk of the small run consisted of $7.50 to $9.50 kinds.

Lambs sold at strong to 15 cents higher prices yesterday, the bulk of the good grades going to local packers at $8 to $8.25, some at the latter price averaging 103 pounds. Native spring lambs averaging 66 pounds sold at $9.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per hundredweight collected by the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are per 100 pounds of live animal.

REALTY MEN REPORT APARTMENTS SCARCE AND RENTS RISING

Increased occupancy of apartments and dwellings, higher rents and in some instances an actual shortage in certain types of flats, were reported last night at the first open forum of Chicago renting men held at the Chicago real estate board under the auspices of the renting and management division of that organization.

Harry W. Emme, president of the South Side Renting Men's association, reported approximately 97½ per cent of all flats in his district rented on March 1. He said it was difficult to find even a six room apartment, the slowest to rent.

In Evanston, according to Archibald G. Jennings, president of the local board, there are only 299 vacant apartments of 6,259 listed in a recent survey.

Oak Park, according to Harry Hopkins, president of the local board, already has a shortage in some classes of flats and a lack of residences is imminent. He stated that more than $500,000 has been spent since Jan. 1, in the purchase of sixty homes.

Burt R. Kiely, president of the North Side Renting Managers' association, told of increased rentals of $2.50 to $5 an apartment, and predicted there will be a jump of from 50 to 75 per cent in the next two or three years.

Howard Haynie, head of the renting and management division, warned the realtors that a city wide rent increase was not justified. He said the question of a rise or drop in rents should be handled by individual owners.

MARCH BUTTER UP 1 CENT; EGGS GENERALLY HIGHER

Strength in cash butter, with prices in the local market advanced ½ to 1 cent per pound and 1 to 1¼ cents in New York, was reflected in fairly good buying of the March delivery on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, gaining ¾ cent to close at 30¾ cents. There was a net out of storage movement from the four leading markets for the day, compared with an increase during the same period a year ago. November butter closed ½ cent higher.

While receipts of eggs were fairly liberal and the spot market was as much as ¾ cent lower, there was fair buying of futures, with the close ½ to ¼ cent higher, except on March fresh grades, which lost ¼ cent per dozen. The movement into storage was somewhat more favorable than a year ago. Sales of butter were 56 cars and of eggs 52 cars, with 1 car of butter and 7 cars of eggs delivered on March contracts. Prices follow:
